Young Liberals Win Revolt Over 'Old Guard'

By JOHN MIKA
Times Staff Reporter
VANCOUVER—B.C.'s Young Liberals swept to victory over the party's "old guard" this morning at the first annual convention here by forcing the resolutions committee to submit all resolutions to delegates. The revolt broke out on the floor of the convention after resolutions committee chairman Forrest L. Shaw of Victoria revealed that some of more than 100 resolutions submitted by ridings and associations had been consolidated and some "discarded because of policy."

Ron Lyon, president of the Vancouver-Burrard division five—a stronghold of young Liberals—launched the revolt by demanding that all resolutions sent in by ridings, the Young Liberals and the Liberal Women's Association, be presented to the delegates.

"Our new constitution clearly says the committees' job is only to compile and present all the resolutions, not to decide which ones will be submitted," he said.

He charged that at least 12 resolutions, "all of a controversial nature," had been dropped by the committee and made a motion that all be stenciled and distributed during the afternoon.

The motion, seconded by Kathy Sanjean, secretary of the

B.C. Young Liberals' Association, carried without an opposing vote following a flurry of impassioned debate.

T. R. Burnett, Vancouver-Quadra member of the resolutions committee, said, in a vigorous defence of the committee's actions, that no resolutions had been discarded.

"Some have been re-worded to consolidate a number of similar resolutions," he said, "but no resolution has been discarded."

Mr. Lyon countered that he knew at least one resolution—urging disclosure of all campaign funds by political candidates—from his group had been discarded.

Mr. Shaw said there were about 60 resolution from Young Liberals and it would be virtually impossible to have them all typed out for the afternoon session.

This was countered by an unidentified girl who said the Young Liberal resolutions already were available on stencils.

Gerald Duffus, president of the Terrace and District Liberal Association, demanded that the convention reserve some time for discussion of a Liberal reorganization in the province.

"We are not getting through to the small man," he said. "And if we go back to our people and tell them we heard (national leader) Pearson, Sinclair, and (provincial leader) Laing it will make everyone go to sleep."

"What we need is something new. We have two years to win a provincial election and at the same time we should be keeping our eyes on Ottawa as well as Victoria."

George Gregory, Liberal MLA for Victoria, who recently hinted that he would like to stand for the leadership, would make no immediate comment on Mr. Laing's call for a leadership convention.

There have been spreading reports among the delegates that a resolution setting up a general meeting was to be presented during the one-day convention.

However, if realized, a general meeting is not expected to take place for several months. Mr. Laing attacked the "high handed, arbitrary attitude in disposition" of timber and mines affairs as shrouding the province "with the most sinister forebodings in its history."

Applause greeted his question: "How many people will now say that Gordon Gibson (former Liberal MLA who attacked the Soerds forest policy) has not rendered people of this province an enormous service?"

Mr. Laing said Premier Bennett's methods of "getting things done through money power" had resulted in ministerial decisions becoming the order of the day with "disposition of huge sums of money demanded of the legislature, turned over to small groups of cabinet ministers . . . without benefit of inspection of any public accounts."

BULLETIN

LONDON (AP)—Soviet Communist Party boss Nikita Khrushchev was reported by Moscow Radio tonight to be ready to discuss a ban on intercontinental ballistic missiles as part of a general disarmament agreement.

The Soviet news agency Tass published his speech today.

The broadcast said he stipulated that the West must first agree to a ban on nuclear weapons, an end to nuclear tests and the liquidation of overseas military bases.

The West has acknowledged that the Soviet Union is the only power at present capable of firing intercontinental ballistic missiles—possibly with a hydrogen bomb warhead.

LONDON (Reuters)—Nikita Khrushchev has said that the Soviet intercontinental rocket is so powerful that it can launch still "heavier sputniks and send them higher than has been done before."

"We shall probably do this," he said in a speech Wednesday and released today.

EARLY ELECTION HINT REPEATED BY JOHN D.

By VICTOR MACKIE, Times Ottawa Correspondent
OTTAWA—Prime Minister John Diefenbaker threw out another deliberate hint of an early election when he spoke in the House of Commons Friday on the government's farm price stabilization bill. His statement strengthened speculation that the election will come on March 31 or April 14.

"The opportunity may not be too long delayed for the people to have the privilege of saying what they think of this legislation," he told the House.

B.C. Unhappy With New Plan For Hospitals

B.C. Health Minister Eric Martin today expressed "great disappointment" when told of the newly announced federal government policy of hospital grants.

The new policy, announced in Ottawa by Health Minister J. Waldo Monteith in many cases, will double the previous assistance given for construction of new hospitals.

He said they were designed "both to facilitate hospital construction and to alleviate shortages of employment in the construction industry."

"The mountain has labored and brought forth a mouse," commented Mr. Martin.

"Even though they have doubled many of these grants, they are still poor by comparison with the B.C. government grants of 50 per cent of the total cost."

In Ottawa Mr. Monteith said the federal grants will be calculated on the following basis:

For acute-care beds, $2,000 instead of the present $1,000.

For chronic-care beds, included

ing mental and tubercular, $2,000 instead of the present $1,500.

Nurses' residence beds, $750 instead of $500.

Internes quarters on the same basis as nurses'.

Bed equivalents, such as the present computation of three new baby bassinets equalling one acute bed, $2,000 instead of $1,000.

"For a long time," Mr. Martin said, "the provincial government and the hospitals of B.C. have attempted to obtain an upward adjustment of the federal grants in aid for construction purposes, long recognized as inadequate. Now they have been doubled but they still do not compare favorably with the provincial government's grants of 50 per cent of the total cost."

B.C. Rate Highest in Canada

"The provincial government grants come to between $6,000 and $8,000 per bed and this is the highest rate paid in Canada."

"At the present time, 1,380 acute care beds are in course of construction in B.C., at a total cost of $21,000,000. Our share of this is approximately $10,000,000 or $11,000,000."

"Because of the provincial government grants, hospital construction has already been stimulated in B.C.," the minister added.

"In the last five years construction, current construction and construction-to-be has amounted to $50,000,000."

B.C. Receives $5.5 Million

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government plans to give an additional $87,206,000 to the provinces in the next fiscal year starting April 1 without a new federal-provincial money conference, Finance Minister Donald Fleming announced today.

His statement to the Commons said that the federal government will give the provinces more leeway in collecting income tax without double taxation and will also provide direct cash grants from the treasury to the four Atlantic Provinces.

The Atlantic grants amount to $25,000,000 a year for the next four fiscal years. The other $62,000,000 may be collected by the provinces in personal income taxes given up by the federal government.

As an "interim" measure, the central government will allow the provinces to take over 13 per cent of the tax liability of individuals to the federal treasury. The previous federal offer to the provinces for tax-sharing agreements was 10 per cent.

(British Columbia receives an extra $5,563,000 under the new tax-sharing, proposals, but due to the weekend shutdown at the Legislative Buildings, no expression of opinion could be obtained from the provincial government.)

(Premier Bennett, who is also finance minister, has an unlisted telephone number and his secretary, Ron Worley, said he could not be reached today.)

Interim Measure, Subject to Approval

Mr. Fleming announced the government's new stand in tabling identical telegrams by Prime Minister Diefenbaker to all provincial premiers, in which he stressed the policy is an interim measure only and also that it is subject to the approval of Parliament.

Mr. Diefenbaker said it is aimed at assisting the provinces to meet immediate problems of preparing budgets and to help ease unemployment.

"This is an interim measure pending reconvening of the dominion-provincial conference to seek fiscal settlements," his telegram to premiers said.

Under previous proposals put before the provinces by the federal government, the provinces would have been allowed to take only 10 per cent of the tax liability of individuals to the federal government.

The extra grants to the provinces are: Prince Edward Island, $2,870,000; Nova Scotia, $10,127,000; New Brunswick, $9,611,000; Quebec, $17,780,000; Ontario, $21,316,000; Manitoba, $3,219,000; Saskatchewan, $3,290,000; Alberta, $4,335,000; British Columbia, $5,563,000; Newfoundland, $9,095,000.

Various provincial governments have asked the federal government for tax concessions in new agreements that could run to well over $1,000,000,000 a year.

At the latest federal-provincial conference here in late November, nothing conclusive was done on the income tax question, though some provinces indicated they wanted more than the 10-per-cent deductibility on income tax offered in the federal plan.

Lowly Scunthorpe Upsets Newcastle in Cup Soccer

LONDON (UP)—Newcastle, a six-time winner of British soccer's coveted Football Association Cup, was eliminated in today's fourth round of the trophy competition by Scunthorpe of the Third Division, 3-1.

While the First Division club was humiliated on its own field by Scunthorpe, Tottenham of the First Division also was upset. Sheffield United, whose forwards mastered the ice-covered Tottenham field, scored a 3-0 shutout.

The fourth round matches and today's other regular season contests were played in the worst playing conditions of the season. The players slithered on thawing snow or ice. Two of the scheduled 16 fourth-round cup matches were postponed because officials considered the men could not play on the fields.

York City held Bolton of the First Division to a scoreless tie. Darlington, another Third Division club, held Chelsea to a 3-3 draw.

Manchester United, favorite to win this year's cup at Wembley Stadium May 3, had to work hard to defeat Ipswich, 2-0. Wolverhampton, the league leader, romped to a 5-1 victory over Portsmouth in its cup game.

'Playing Politics' Charge Fans House Jobless Debate

By PETER MURRAY

Unemployment touched off an unscheduled and angry debate in the legislature Friday.

The traditional second-day procedure was shattered when Opposition Leader Robert Strachan rose at the start of the sitting to move that the Throne Speech debate be adjourned to allow immediate discussion of the unemployment problem.

The government voted him down after Speaker Hugh Shantz had ruled the motion out of order, but opened the gates to the debate by moving another motion that unemployment be referred to the House labor committee.

The words flew thick and fast, with each side accusing the other of "playing politics" with the unemployment situation.

It was a harrowing baptism of fire for Speaker Shantz, who was just elected to the chair on opening day Thursday.

The debate—mainly between CCF Leader Strachan and Premier Bennett—crackled for about an hour, then fell away into a hassle over amendments and amendments to amendments.

Final vote on Labor Minister Wick's motion to refer the subject to the labor committee was taken at 5 p.m., two hours after the sitting began.

The vote was unanimous, with the reluctant support of the Opposition.

"Half a loaf is better than none," said Mr. Strachan, who said the problem was a matter Continued on Page 2

NORMAN CRIBBENS

IN THE
LEGISLATURE

When people stand up in the public galleries, as they did Friday afternoon, you can be sure something exciting is happening on the floor of the House.

So it was that both men and women rose to their feet during the unexpected session on unemployment which developed between Premier Bennett and CCF leader Robert Strachan—and were as quickly ordered to sit down.

"No standing in the galleries, please," said the attendant.

This is apt to be provoking when you are stretching your neck to get a proper view of Premier Bennett's quivering forefinger (pronouncing doom on the CCF) or Mr. Strachan shaking his fist at the government.

One elderly gentleman was so irritated by being told to sit down during these exchanges that he turned to the attendant and said: "Am I permitted to stand in order to leave this place?" The attendant nodded and the gentleman left in what looked like a bit of a huff.

Pleasantries Between Bennett, Uphill

The premier was in full flood when for some strange reason Tom Uphill, the pukka 83-year-old Labor member from Fernie, raised the glass of water on his desk and smiling across at Mr. Bennett, said: "I drink your health."

The premier, of course, made full use of this.

"There," he cried, pointing at Mr. Uphill. "There is the only genuine Labor man in this house. He drinks my health because he knows I am sincere when I say this government has the interests of labor at heart."

Mr. Uphill bowed an acknowledgment. Some of the CCF members started to laugh, but broke off quickly when they realized the premier was not just patting his government on the back but Mr. Uphill as well. And Tom, with his 38 years' consecutive experience in the House, is respected by all.

When Premier Bennett gets worked up his words have a habit of coming out in a rush, one on top of the other.

"Th-banks-are-to-blame," he exploded.

Then hastened to say that

Cariboo Member Makes Good Debut

Young William Speare, the new Social Credit member for Cariboo, made his debut two hours late because of the unemployment debate.

He received a thunderous welcome and spoke in a firm, strong voice that promises well in future debates. His tribute to the late Ralph Chetwynd, his predecessor, was well and tastefully expressed.

Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross ignored a severe pain in his back in order to deliver the Throne Speech in the legislature Thursday.

He was suffering from what is believed to be a slipped spinal disc, but insisted on attending the house opening as the Queen's representative.

His Honor suffered this injury several days ago. He has been undergoing twice-daily medical treatment and is under doctor's orders to rest as much as possible.

Two Police Departments Deny Gorge Crime in Their Bailiwick

A houseboat break-in, and theft last Sunday on the Gorge turned into a week-long jurisdictional dispute between police departments asked to investigate.

Entry to his houseboat and theft of $100 worth of gear was reported to Esquimalt police by owner P. J. Smith, 334 Goldstream, last Sunday.

Esquimalt police, who agreed to carry out an investigation, claimed Gorge waters were RCMP territory.

Mr. Smith called Colwood RCMP, who referred him to Esquimalt. RCMP headquarters told him to see Saanich police, who in turn suggested he take the matter back to Esquimalt.

Mr. Smith has offered a $25

reward for recovery of the gear and Sunday is sending a frogman into the Gorge to see if it was dumped overboard.

If he finds the equipment the frogman gets the $25.

Meanwhile the attorney-general's department is expected to rule on jurisdiction so that charges could be laid if inquiries are successful.

Break-in was between midnight Saturday and 10 a.m. Sunday.

BY PETE LOUDON AND IRVING STRICKLAND

Several persons attending the opening of the B.C. legislature Thursday criticized the Centennial decorations on the front of the Buildings. Some people approved. What is your opinion?

James Anderson, 311 Huntingdon:

"I think the decorations are fine. They are just right the way they are now. If you added any more though, you would likely hide some of the architectural beauty of the buildings."

Anderson Cummings
Mrs. N. E. Cummings, 580 Simcoe:

"The decorations are lovely. They set off the buildings and the grounds. I don't think people should be so critical. I've been here in Victoria since 1951 and I've never been anywhere I liked as much."

Mrs. E. V. Bryan, visitor from Dodge City, Kansas:

"This is my first visit in Canada and I think everything is wonderful — including the decorations. I hope I am able to come back during the celebrations."

Bryan Hawes
R. R. Hawes, 3620 Saanich Road:

"The decorations are quite nice but they could do with a few more. I work at the CPR and I walk past twice a day so I've had a chance to look them over. After all this is supposed to be our centennial year and this is the only reminder we've been able to see so far."

Siebert White
Mrs. W. Siebert, 412 Dallas Road:

"I think the decorations are in poor taste. They are almost as bad as the centennial show was on TV. I think the buildings looked far better without them. Blue and gold are fine colors for B.C. but hung the way they are, they don't blend with the green and orange."

Dave White, HMCS Naden:

"They look all right to me. There should be something with a totem pole in it, though. The whole picture would be improved a great deal if all those parked cars were removed from the front of the Buildings."

Mr. Bennett, after accusing Mr. Strachan of making a political speech, injected a bit of politics into his own speech:

"The Social Credit government leads the world in getting things done per capita," he said.

The government's expansion programs for the PGE and Power Commission were helping to provide jobs, Mr. Bennett said.

The premier also hit out at "tight money" and blamed the present economic decline on the central banks, which he said had mistaken a deflationary

NOT OUTSTRIPPED BY BRITAIN

American H-Bomb Tamers 'In Step'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congressional atomic specialists today appeared generally satisfied that the United States is not being outstripped in the effort to harness the H-bomb reaction for electric power.

"We're keeping our end up," was the tone of comment by members of the Senate-House of Representatives atomic energy committee who were questioned about Friday's joint British-U.S. announcement on the break-through.

The atomic agencies of the two allies announced "fruitful and promising results" from separate laboratory-scale experiments in both countries, but said practical power from hydrogen fusion still is years away.

The announcement came after a series of stories in British newspapers that Britain had achieved a significant break-through in this research, but that U.S. pressure had prevented its announcement until American achievements could be shown in a good light.

There seemed little disposition among committee members here, even among some who have been critical of U.S. Atomic Energy Commission policies, to accept this view of the situation.

In fact, representative James Van Zandt of Pennsylvania said his principal interest was "to see that we got enough credit in the announcement."

"Without the information our people furnished, the British could not have accomplished what they did."

Chairman Carl Durham said the U.S. program seems to him to be "well along—see no basis for thinking we were outstripped by the British."

A congressional source who asked not be quoted by name said he thinks the U.S. announcement was "perhaps unnecessarily defensive in tone—we stand up fully in comparison with the British."

"Unfortunately, the effort has become embroiled in politics in both countries—but especially in Britain, where the Opposition is trying to make an issue by charging the government with knuckling

under to the United States and keeping—British scientists' achievements under wraps."

This source suggested also that both countries may be holding back some even more promising information in hopes of making a better showing at the September session of the International Atomic Energy Agency in Geneva. Russia, an agency member, will also be demonstrating progress in its admittedly well advanced program to achieve useful power from hydrogen fusion.

HOUSE

of urgent public business and should be discussed immediately.

Finally, at 5:07, William Speare, the newly-elected Social Credit member for Cariboo, arose to move the reply to the Speech from the Throne.

The unemployment debate almost precipitated a night sitting, but the House was adjourned until 2 p.m. Monday when Mr. Speare finished his 35-minute speech.

Gordon Gibson, new government member for Delta, who was to have seconded the reply to the Throne Speech Friday, will speak first on Monday. He will be followed by Mr. Strachan, who will launch the Throne Speech debate.

During Friday's debate, Premier Bennett accused the opposition, specifically Mr. Strachan, of being "discourteous" to the new members in holding up their speeches.

The CCF leader touched off the battle by asking leave of the House for an adjournment to discuss unemployment.

Speaker Shantz, previously forewarned by Mr. Strachan of his intended motion, ruled that it was out of order.

The Speaker agreed that unemployment is a matter of urgent public business, but said the motion was out of order because it "anticipated" business to come before the legislature at a later time in the session.

This was because unemployment had been mentioned in the Throne Speech as a matter which would be considered by the House.

Mr. Strachan challenged the Speaker's ruling, which was upheld by the government in a 37-12 vote.

Tactical Win for Opposition

That appeared to end the discussion, but then Mr. Wick's made his motion to refer the question to the labor committee and the subject was opened again.

After Mr. Strachan had finished speaking on the motion, Speaker Shantz attempted to cut the debate off, but Premier Bennett demanded an opportunity to answer the leader of the opposition.

The Speaker then asked for a vote on whether the debate should continue, and the government members were in the embarrassing position of having to agree that it should.

It was a tactical victory for the opposition.

Mr. Strachan said the opposition took the only method open to it under our parliamentary system to show the urgency of the unemployment problem.

Bennett Charges Manoeuvre

Mr. Strachan criticized Labor Minister Wicks for using the phrase "seasonal unemployment" in his motion to refer to the committee.

"The minister still doesn't know what it's all about," Mr. Strachan said, "because he talks about seasonal unemployment. That's a fairy wish that it will go away."

Premier Bennett charged that the original CCF motion was a "straight political manoeuvre."

"They" (the opposition) stand naked before the people of B.C.," the premier said, to the accompaniment of hoots from the CCF benches.

The premier and Mr. Strachan got into a hot exchange when the CCF leader said:

"If the premier wants a dog fight, he can have one."

That brought the premier to his feet in an angry flush: "The leader of the opposition can't threaten the prime minister of B.C."

Mr. Bennett, after accusing Mr. Strachan of making a political speech, injected a bit of politics into his own speech:

"The Social Credit government leads the world in getting things done per capita," he said.

The government's expansion programs for the PGE and Power Commission were helping to provide jobs, Mr. Bennett said.

The premier also hit out at "tight money" and blamed the present economic decline on the central banks, which he said had mistaken a deflationary problem for an inflationary one. Defending the government's record, Mr. Bennett said:

"This is a government of the people, by the people and for the people."

The premier wound up by saying proposals to help combat unemployment would be placed before the legislature "in due course."

Farm Price Program Misrepresented—P.M.

WINNIPEG (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker said today the government's farm price stabilization program has been "grossly misrepresented" and he is "not in the least concerned about the reaction of the western farmer when the misrepresentation has been torn away."

Mr. Diefenbaker, here to attend celebrations of Ukrainian Independence Day, said the legislation is the greatest advance ever made for farmers.

Asked by a reporter about the possibility of including wheat, oats and barley under the legislation, Mr. Diefenbaker beamed as he replied:

"The wheat pools and wheat organizations said they didn't want the legislation where wheat, oats and barley were concerned."

With the Canadian wheat board looking after marketing and another board looking after price fixing "there would be a clash that would bring about emasculation of the wheat board."

The London Daily Express says that "with resources at their disposal maybe only one-hundredth of those available to the Americans, Britain's scientists are right out in front in the most vital of all fields of research."

"No honor is too great for the pioneers of this industrial sun," says the London Daily Herald.

The Times notes that fusion reactors may be some time away. "It is enough for the moment to recognize today's announcement for what it is—the publishing of a great achievement in science."

The Manchester Guardian says it is "important that the collaboration between Britain and the United States which started in 1956 should be kept going."

The Edinburgh Scotsman says "the facts released show Britain, America and Russia running more or less neck and neck."

"The important thing is that Britain, with smaller total resources than her competitors has at least a claim to consideration as the strongest runner."

FRONT-PAGE NEWS

The front page of every British newspaper today hails the major step by the Harwell scientists in taming the H-bomb in a machine called ZETA and providing an unending source of cheap power from sea water.

"Britain Unveils Her Sun," "A Sun of Our Own," was typical of the reaction.

Sir John Cockcroft, Britain's chief atomic scientist, has denied some newspaper reports that Americans were in any way chagrined at British progress in harnessing hydrogen power. He added that it was not true that the U.S. had asked Britain to delay her announcement of successful experiments so as to give the U.S. a chance to catch up.

The feeling of many Britons is perhaps expressed by the London News Chronicle, which says that "in certain sections of America the reaction so far has been ungenerous."

IN PARLIAMENT

Gov't Concessions On Farm Prices Bill

(From Times News Services)

OTTAWA—The government has gone part of the way in making concessions to meet opposition criticisms of its farm price stabilization bill.

However, changes announced Friday night by Agriculture Minister Harkness still do not establish a formula for parity prices as advocated by the CCF and Social Credit groups in the continuing House debate.

Two of four amendments proposed by Mr. Harkness appear to give a greater emphasis to production costs in the establishment of floor prices for farm commodities.

One change would ensure that the cabinet "shall be guided by" estimated average production costs and other relevant factors in setting support prices. Previously, the bill proposed only that the cabinet "have regard to" production costs.

A second specifies that the agricultural stabilization board shall ensure that price supports shall bear a fair relationship to "the cost of production," instead of the 10-year-average base price as previously proposed.

Two other minor changes announced would have the board's advisory committee of between six and nine farm representatives meet at least twice a year and amend the bill's preamble to state its purpose is to give farmers a fair share of the national income.

The bill allows the government to set 12-month support prices each year on any farm commodity, basing it on the average of prices in the previous 10 years.

A minimum floor of 80 per cent of this base price would be specified for cattle, hogs, sheep, butter, cheese, eggs and non-prairie wheat, oats and barley.

Tories Defeat CCF Snap Vote

Mr. Diefenbaker personally stepped into the farm debate—then in its seventh full day—after Stanley Knowles, deputy CCF leader, called for a snap vote on his motion that the government immediately declare its intentions on the amendments it had forecast earlier.

The motion was stalled long enough to allow 30-odd Progressive Conservatives to scurry into the chamber and defeat the motion 63 to 30. The House was in committee of the whole at the time and the government would not have been defeated if the motion had passed.

However, the situation prompted Mr. Diefenbaker to say that the intent of the amendments, disclosed later by Mr. Harkness, would be to give farmers a fair share of the national income and that "in every case the base price will be determined upon the cost of production of the farmer."

He also gave another hint of a possible forthcoming election when he said the opportunity "may not be too long delayed" for the people to express an opinion on the farm bill. The feeling is growing that an election is likely within a couple of months.

Earlier, the bill was given second reading approval in principle by a vote of 110 to 37. The CCF and Social Credit groups were joined by two Liberals, Walter Tucker, Rosethorn, Sask., and Louis Deniset, St.-Boniface, Man., in opposing it.

Later, the CCF attempted to amend the bill to extend its price support provisions to wheat, oats and barley marketed by the Canadian Wheat Board, but the move was ruled out of order.

Victor Quelch (SC, Acadia) said his party refused to support the bill because it contained no provision for a system of parity prices.

Stanley Knowles' 10-year battle for enactment of the voluntary revocable checkoff of union dues received another setback Friday.

But the deputy CCF leader said there is "virtual unanimity" in the Commons for his proposal.

His bill, introduced at every regular session since 1949, would provide that any certified union under federal labor laws could request employers to deduct at payroll source union dues and transfer the money to the union. Employees would have to authorize it and could revoke their authority at any time.

Conservative members "talked out" the bill during an hour reserved for private members' legislation. This means, in effect, that the bill is defeated for one more year.

Liberal Parley Head Denies Press Charge

OTTAWA (CP)—Duncan K. MacTavish, chairman of last week's national Liberal convention, said Friday in a letter to the Parliamentary Press Gallery that release of the leadership vote result Jan. 16 was so planned as to "be available to all communications media."

He was replying to a protest decided upon unanimously by the gallery executive, over the convention committee delaying announcement of the vote result until it could be announced by Mr. MacTavish during a television broadcast.

Scottish Names in Minority As Clubs Join on Burns Night

By TONY DICKASON

About 400 persons were there.

And they didn't burr-rrr, much.

This was at the dinner of tribute Friday in Holyrood House where the Burns Club and the St. Andrew's and Caledonian Society met jointly to mark the 199th anniversary of Burns' death.

It was the first time the clubs had joined forces for the dinner.

In the gothic Sir William Wallace room, a table of about 40 diners were asked if they had Scots names. Seven said yes.

"But we are all of Scots origin," explained one grey-haired lady, "you must remember that!"

There wasn't much tartan showing, except the plaid jacket of baritone John Dunbar, a thoroughly Scottish Scotsman.

Presiding at the head table were Mrs. Angus MacKay, Burns Club president, and Jack Robertson, society president. The traditional meal of hags, roastie bubbly jock, chappit tatties, mashed neeps was served. Then came...

HIDDEN SOMEWHERE in this raging Caracas mob of civilians is one of former dictator Perez Jimenez' secret police, literally torn to pieces as rampaging crowds vented their wrath in the Venezuelan uprising. (AP Wirephoto.)

Military Purged By Ruling Junta In Venezuela

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP)—Venezuela's ruling junta has fired two of its military officers, and as a result has won a pledge of support from the civilian patriotic group that sparked the successful revolt against dictator Marcos Perez Jimenez.

The civilian leader, a young newspaper reporter named Fabricio Ojeda, said Friday night's ouster of the two officers who had been closely identified with the fallen regime meant there now is "absolute political unity" in the country.

Ojeda joined with the junta in appealing for an end to rioting and vandalism that has swept Caracas since Perez Jimenez fled early Thursday. But angered mobs still seeking vengeance against the dictator's supporters and die-hard adherents to Perez Jimenez continued to roam the capital.

300 KILLED
About 300 persons have been reported killed and 1,000 wounded in disorders that began with a general strike against Perez Jimenez Tuesday.

Thousands of rioters roamed the streets Friday, attacking government buildings, homes of former officials and stores. Several lynchings were reported.

Calms were restored when a curfew went into effect, but later armed bands rode through the capital firing machine-guns and small arms from cars. The army officer commanding the heavily armed curfew patrol, said they were die-hard supporters of Perez Jimenez.

B.C. Denies Iron Ore Tax Blow at Japan

Mines Minister Kenneth Kierman, Friday, took exception to an article in The Japan Metal Daily published in Tokyo that B.C.'s tax on iron ore shipments was "discriminatory" against Japan.

"We just don't believe that strategic natural resources should be removed from B.C. without making at least some contribution to the treasury of the province," he said.

The tax is between 25 and 50c a ton on export iron ore shipped from B.C. ports.

The Japanese publication said the Japanese government may be contemplating counter-measures by putting import duties on lumber and grain shipped from B.C.

Mr. Kierman said it was only a "coincidence of economics" that the tax on iron ore affects only exports. A steel industry in B.C. would also have to pay the tax, he said.

Modified Free Trade Advocated by Pearson

Liberal Leader Says Time Running Out to Meet Red Economic Threat

By JOHN MIKA, Times Staff Reporter

VANCOUVER—Opposition Leader Lester B. Pearson Friday urged immediate launching of negotiations by Canada aimed at welding the Commonwealth and NATO countries into a modified free trade area.

He told the 71st annual meeting of the Vancouver Board of Trade "time is running out" before economic nationalism splinters the Western alliance and puts Canada's trade position in double jeopardy.

More than 1,120, largest board of trade audience since Anthony Eden addressed the organization a dozen years ago beat out thunderous applause at the conclusion of Mr. Pearson's first major speech outside the Commons since he was elected new Liberal leader.

Canada's Liberal-sponsored trade policy since the war of working through the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade is being outmoded by changing world developments he suggested in his 3,000-word speech.

"The best policy for us is to seek economic interdependence within the North Atlantic, Western Europe and Commonwealth communities through freer trade.

First step for Canada, in launching this move would be "careful sympathetic and detailed consideration" of the United Kingdom offer of free trade with Canada.

"For Canada a North Atlantic area with the freest possible trade would certainly mean a much greater export market in the U.S. and Europe lower costs of production for many Canadian industries and lower living costs. I would hope, for Canadian consumers.

He added there are "undoubtedly certain industries that would have to receive special consideration" under such a plan.

But he urged immediate action to begin negotiations and planning before it "became 'too late' for North America to participate in the free trade zone emerging in Europe.

GATT's Usefulness Near an End

"In short, it seems that the era of gradual tariff reductions through GATT have just about come to an end. We do not wish, surely, to replace it by a Western Europe and a North America aiming at self-sufficiency."

He rejected the alternative of self-sufficiency through high tariffs as leading to "disastrous economic isolation" for Canada.

U.K. Mere Stepping Stone

Mr. Pearson urged as first step that the United Kingdom offer of free trade with Canada be given "careful, sympathetic and detailed consideration." It could be a stepping stone into the proposed European free trade area of which Britain was to be a partner. Once the European countries had set up the union, it might be too late for North America.

To avoid weakening of the Western alliance and defeat by the Communists in the economic sphere as well as preventing Canada from having to compete single-handed against the U.S. or alternatively becoming its satellite in the economic field, he proposed:

"Then surely the best alternative and the best way to meet the Soviet economic and political challenge is an Atlantic free trade area to complement the European customs union and free trade zone.

Canada would benefit by reducing economic dependence on the U.S., increasing its trade and raising its standard of living.

Turning to short-term planning of trade policy he said

Israel Seeks Wheat

OTTAWA (CP)—Trade Minister Churchill said today the Canadian wheat board expects to sell "a quantity" of wheat to Israel. He did not elaborate.

A Neglected Frontier

ACTION of the Federal Government in discontinuing subsidy arrangements with Union Steamships has left more than 30 seaport communities on the British Columbia coast in a precarious situation. Residents of these small settlements, scattered between Knight Inlet and Portland Canal, today must rely on aircraft or motorboats for much of their transportation requirements—expensive, uncertain, and often hazardous in the winter months.

The background to the present situation is well known. For more than half a century Union Steamships has served the small villages, camps and industrial operations dotted along the shores of the coastal inlets. Much of this service has been subsidized—at one time by the Post Office, later by a special board—because although it was not always economically profitable it was necessary from the standpoint of public communication.

Over the years the needs of the communities have changed. In an earlier day an occasional shipment of food was sufficient, but with growth of the settlements and an influx of families along with the workers a larger measure of contact and traffic with the outside world was necessary.

The coastal ship service was therefore developed in keeping with the need. Until recently Union Steamships was serving some 40 communities along the B.C. coast with two vessels in winter and three in summer on a basic schedule of one call a week carrying passengers, freight and mail.

Because many of the stops were unprofitable, particularly in the slack season, the Federal Government developed a subsidy arrangement whereby the company received $27,000 a month throughout the year. This applied to operation of only two of the company's 10 ships.

With the passage of time, however, and changing conditions, this subsidy was found to be inadequate. But except for a supplemental grant in 1956 when the ships had to be rehabilitated, the subsidy remained unchanged. The ships were being run at a loss, and in the words of a company spokesman, "We found we were subsidizing the coast instead of the Government doing it."

Union Steamships proposed a new financial arrangement whereby the company would operate the regular service at cost with the right to profits up to five per cent. The Government would subsidize deficits below cost and receive any profits over five per cent.

This proposal was not acceptable to Ottawa and last January 8 the normal service was terminated. The Government made an arrangement with the CPR to serve six of the main ports of call, with a subsidy of $82,000 to apply until the end of March. This is approximately the same rate as had been paid to Union Steamships for a much more extensive service.

The larger ports, served by the CPR, provide profitable business. It is the smaller ones on which money is lost, and these are at present without regular passenger service.

Union Steamships continues to handle freight to many of the coastal communities, but only as traffic warrants, not on regular schedule. On this basis, company spokesmen say, the service pays its way.

The situation of the coastal settlers is unsatisfactory. Many of them may be isolated for considerable periods, particularly in the winter. It is a simple public duty of the Federal Government to reassess the whole problem and recognize a responsibility to Canadians in the frontier areas. The present arrangement is not good enough.

Life on the Fringe

A SERIES OF FACTUAL articles in this newspaper during the past few days has brought home in a real-life way the problems of those citizens who through chronic unemployment from various causes are unable to maintain themselves and their families on an adequate standard of living.

There are 765 men, women and children in this category in Victoria. In some families the breadwinner cannot earn a living due to illness, disablement, or inherent lack of ability to cope with life. Women with children have in many cases been left without support because of the death or desertion of the husband.

Such people, whether their plight be temporary or extended, need the assistance of the community not only for themselves but for the growing generation. At the present time, social assistance payments, made up of federal, provincial and city contributions, are provided. But as graphically shown in the descriptive series, the payments in many cases are woefully inadequate.

When a father must choose between warming or feeding his children, when there is constant pressure for daily decisions on whether to buy clothes or fuel, shoes or bread—a sordid, even dangerous, social condition is in the making.

It may be asked, why should the public at large be responsible for aid to such persons; why should they not make their own way as best they can.

In an earlier age those questions had a harsh answer. Generally speaking, the neighbors of such unfortunate "walked by on the other side."

But our era has evolved a different view of the problem. There is a feeling of community responsibility that did not previously exist. Even those who are not ready to admit to being their brother's keepers are aware that the wound of poverty in one part of the body politic reacts to the detriment of all parts. It is in everyone's interest to keep destitution and despair out of all of our streets.

Local welfare authorities recognize that the present scale of social assistance payments is not adequate for the needs of today. A family of eight living on some $200 a month is hard-pressed to maintain the standards which Canadians feel this prosperous land should provide.

For this reason the senior governments are being asked to review the situation and, at a trifling per capita annual cost, improve conditions for the needy to a point where adequacy and hope would replace anxiety and disintegration. It is a move which the majority of citizens would fully approve.

Heroically Out of Character

WE JOIN THE ATLANTA Journal in the position it has taken on one of the unsung heroes of the day.

The Journal informs us that Mr. Murray Snyder, U.S. assistant secretary of defence in charge of public information, has seen his duty and done it.

Mr. Snyder, a public information figure, has actually informed the public. And for that he was placed in the Washington doghouse. His sin, it appears, was failure to hide the facts on the unsuccessful firing of the Navy's Vanguard.

Mr. Snyder took the position that his job was to inform, not to glorify. So he informed.

No direct comparison will be drawn between popular concepts of the United States' information officer attached to the forces, and the Canadian information officer attached to the forces.

But as a newspaper, we lift our hat to an official who actually gave out the actual news.

As Our Readers See It

Missing Bureau

I had reason to check the integrity of a business firm that had a representative here in the city. On trying to contact the Better Business Bureau, I found that no such agency existed and was referred to the Chamber of Commerce, but to no avail.

This would seem to be a gross oversight, as an agency of this type would not only assist the citizens and merchants, but help to record for reference those firms with doubtful business practices.

Possibly some of our interested citizens would care to comment and enlighten me on this subject, as I believe it to be in the public interest.

AN INTERESTED CITIZEN

Better Business Bureau

I was very surprised when I came to Victoria to find that there is no Better Business Bureau here. In a city of this size and a capital city at that, we certainly should have one.

There are quite a few practices in Victoria that go on that should be investigated. Being a widow, and thus fair game for the unscrupulous business operator, I have had several little deals tried out on me.

Some of the little tricks are fairly obvious but they are annoying. A certain contest offers a "down payment" on a fairly large item as first prize and a small consolation prize. I was informed that I had won both and the salesmen came out to demonstrate a record player that was certain not worth the price asked, even with the "down payment" I had won. This was obvious of course, but when I asked where the consolation prize was I was told it had been left in the car. When I had made it clear that I was not interested in the record player the gentlemen made off rapidly in the car "forgetting" to bring in the consolation prize. They still haven't remembered it.

This seems like a peculiar way to go about getting customer goodwill.

I have also "won" several phony gift certificates from people who have telephoned asking quiz questions. These things may not be illegal but they are a trap for the unwary.

"ONCE BITTEN."

'A Bobby's Job'

Nothing is initiated in Oak Bay, not even petty crime. Why then is there a demand by the police for a handsome increase in wages? Oak Bay has no skid-row (or has it?), no drug addiction, no crime, nothing offensive to disturb its peaceful solace. One wonders if police are necessary there at all.

The term, "a bobby's job," has always meant something "cushy," something to be desired. One imagines that the phrase must have had its birth in Oak Bay.

Tourists and Gas

Who cares about tourists anyway?

Victoria City Council, on the face of it, does not seem to be concerned about unnecessary annoyance or inconvenience to tourists. In fact, the recent by-law governing auto service stations has unfortunately been passed in good time to annoy and irritate the largest possible number of tourists in B.C.'s Centennial year.

As you know, this by-law causes small operators of filling stations in Victoria city to close at 6 p.m. because they cannot afford to stay open all day and all night—the only other alternative allowed by the by-law.

Very recently I had a demonstration of how this by-law will irritate tourists. I was driving into Victoria at about 6.30 p.m. and just inside Victoria city limits the driver of the car ahead of me slowed down as we approached a filling station. He and his passenger looked over at the station obviously wondering if it was open. Apparently they decided it wasn't and drove on again.

Shortly after that we approached another filling station. Again the driver ahead slowed down and he and his passenger looked at this second station. Apparently they decided it was open. They drove in and I drove on.

How the Victoria City Council would have laughed at the success of their practical joke if the by-law had been designed as such. The second filling station was closed too.

One thing the majority of tourists want is gas. Surely they should be allowed to get it at the nearest filling station within reasonable hours—up to, say, 9 or 10 p.m. Surely they should not be compelled after 6 p.m. to wander and wonder where to find a filling station that is open, and at the same time wonder what sort of a crazy city, Victoria is anyway.

Travelling in Circles

A man lost in the woods is apt to go around in a circle. Mr. Pepper would have been responsible for his own choice but is rather negative in not indicating such choice. I would suggest that he read Psalm 19 in the Bible. It reads:

"The law of the Lord is perfect, converting the soul; the testimony of the Lord is sure, making wise the simple."

WHEN WE WERE VERY YOUNG

By GUS SIVERTZ

When Gravel Pits Were Playing Fields

ONCE in a long while a government will do something that is so completely apposite that the great mass of people who elect governments take heart again. Now the government at Ottawa gives signs of doing just such a thing.

It is considering appointment of Thomas G. Norris as Chief Justice of the Appeal Court, the highest legal or judicial office in the province, as successor to another native of Vancouver Island, Gordon McGregor Sloan.

That Tom Norris possesses the necessary legal qualifications for such a high and often lonely office goes without saying—we know he does. But he has far more than that; he has a mind that is in fine balance; a mind free of petty prejudice or bias. And he has an earthy wholesomeness that is no less evident today than when he trudged along Fernwood Road's wooden sidewalks to and from Central School and the old Victoria High School.

Today he has a keen analytical mind in a four-square, sturdy body, a great heart which he attempts to disguise under a gruff exterior. And there is even yet much of the boy still in the man—the twinkling humor that had always a sort of pixie quality about it—the single-minded courage that in France and Flanders won him the Military Cross and bar.

Well, that's how Tom was as a boy in the big rambling old house whose grounds occupied a whole block on Fernwood between Vining and Grant Streets. It was a good sort of house to grow up in. Like all houses of its age in Victoria it was almost wholly unblest by household conveniences and there were plenty of chores to keep the Norris' boys busy after school.

It was also the kind of house that becomes a magnet to children in the neighborhood and in all the years—in the old house and latter in the new home at Cook and Princess—the Norris home echoed happy voices.

The location of the old home gave all sorts of opportunity for rough-and-tumble play, for the Norris boys, Tom and George, were anything but softies. To bump them on a football field or in ordinary horseplay was like coming up against old Cyclone Taylor or Moose Johnson.

Well, they had scope for play. Right across the road was one of the great sandpits (now covered by the High School) on the bottom of which was a dandy pond that just dared you to make a raft of half-a-dozen boards.

Almost directly across the road was a horse barn in which were kept some very skittish and spirited horses—for what purpose I now haven't an inkling. Down Vining Street and lying between it and Gladstone was a fine open field on which a group of boys could kick a football to their heart's content.

As he passed from the freedom of boyhood to the weighty concerns of youth Tom naturally was drawn to rugby and became an outstanding player on high school teams and later on the fine team fielded by the Victoria law students.

Such stalwarts as Pete Ogden, Bill Ross, Morris Carmichael, Matt Scott and Joe Shier played with Tom in those days. It was the most natural thing in the world, then, that when the Germans started their march across Belgium Tom Norris would get into uniform just as soon as he could.

He enlisted in the 47th Battalion (Westminsters) but overseas transferred to the Canadian Field Artillery with which he served to the end of the war. He was commissioned in the field and became—as you may suppose—one of the most popular subalterns in his brigade.

I do not remember the action for which he received the Military Cross but he was awarded a bar to it for being in command of a battery that was right on our heels (the infantry) in the battle of Amiens and had his gunners firing over open sights in close support of us.

That's why it is eminently right that the lusty boy from Fernwood Road; the youth who distinguished himself on the rugby field and the gunner who won his commission on the field, should now be considered for the highest judicial office in the province that he knows and loves so well.

Who's for Negotiating With the Kremlin?

AT first hearing, the current debate about negotiating with the Kremlin seems to verge on sheer lunacy. Not one of the Western leaders means one word of all the innumerable words they have spouted on the subject of East-West talks. As for those who sincerely advocate negotiations, most of them are wish-thinkers of the Left whom you can hardly tell apart from the wish-thinkers of the Right who used to plead for "doing business with Hitler."

These are the reasons why the state department spokesman keeps squawking "just propaganda," like a squawking, self-righteous parrot, every time the Kremlin fires off another suggestion for a jolly chat between representatives of the two world blocs.

But in fact this Kremlin campaign for East-West talks is a very serious business. It needs to be analyzed carefully, not just squawked about.

As is the Kremlin custom, the Soviet leaders are plainly pursuing two different animals at the same time. If they do not catch one, they hope to get the other. What the Kremlin is after is analyzed as follows by the leading Western experts on Soviet behavior.

The minimum objective, first of all, is to exploit the fears inspired by recent Soviet successes in weapons development. Everyone in Britain and Western Europe now has a vivid sense of being under the gun (or rather under the missile with hydrogen warhead). The result is a blind impulse to negotiate just for the sake of negotiating.

No one is strong enough to combat this unreasoning impulse because of the present bankruptcy of Western leadership.

Thus the Soviet leaders can toss off intellectual abortions like Polish Foreign Secretary Rapacki's scheme for unpoliced, unpoliceable "denuclearization" of Central Europe. No Western leader makes the effort to point out that the Rapacki scheme will merely deprive the Western armies of nuclear weapons, while the Soviet and satellite forces will of course be secretly supplied with nuclear weapons more powerful than ever.

Instead, the proposal is taken quite seriously, even in Prime Minister Macmillan's recent formal reply to Premier Bulganin. The Macmillan government, one must add, is in especially hot water with its public opinion.

With the West in this flabby and maudlin condition, one can imagine the character of a big East-West meeting with every Western representative looking over his shoulder at the folks back home.

Such a meeting would have a fair chance of splitting the West for good. And the hope of splitting the West is the sole motive for the Soviet demands for such a meeting.

The Soviets have always used large international conferences to make political trouble. Otherwise, they have always regarded such conferences as totally useless. But within the drive for a big East-West meeting, there is another, far more interesting drive for a quiet Soviet-American dialogue. This kind of talk in a corner is what the Soviets always seek, if they mean to negotiate in earnest.

The drive for a big meeting is in some sense acting as a lever to force a dialogue. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles is perfectly aware what troubles a big East-West meeting would probably bring. Hence he must naturally be tempted to accept a dialogue as an alternative.

A major question remains about the motive of the Soviet drive for a dialogue. The Allied distrust of Secretary Dulles is both deep and bitter.

If Dulles ever begins private talks with the Soviets, every other Western foreign minister will take the next plane to Moscow, to start private talks of his own. If this happens, Western unity will end by looking like a rotten melon dropped from a fifty-story window.

A Soviet-American dialogue will thus be desperately risky while John Foster Dulles is still at the state department.

Yet the leading Western experts do not believe that the drive for a Soviet-American dialogue is just another splitting operation. They think the Kremlin genuinely desires to get down to business on certain very important points, such as the horrible problem created for the U.S.S.R. as well as the U.S. by the continuous development of continuously more horrible armaments.

In these circumstances, it seems too bad that the United States should be virtually debarred from testing this supposed Kremlin desire to get down to serious business. And the regrets will be all the deeper if and when the present period of negotiating about negotiation merges into a new period of acute danger arising from new Soviet forward moves in the Middle East, Soviet pressure on Berlin, and so on and so on.

'Pledge To Do Everything Possible for Unity and Co-Operation in These Matters'

By Hon. Lester B. Pearson (Copyright 1958. All rights reserved.)

THIS is in the nature of a farewell column as my new duties as leader of Her Majesty's Official Opposition are not likely to give me time for any extra-curricular activities—even such an agreeable one as writing a weekly column. My observations now are more likely to be restricted more to the columns of Hansard and they may not always be as non-controversial as I have tried to make them in my journalistic column. I have greatly enjoyed writing this column, the only interruption to which took place last week during the national Liberal convention and for which I should apologize.

I had hoped to do it even then but events seemed to crowd in on me during those days in a way which was completely, if happily, engulfing.

I now have a new and very responsible position, and I will need all the health and strength I can muster, moral, mental, and physical, if I am to do justice to it.

I would certainly have welcomed a few days respite from activity, and a short period for rest and reflection after the stirring but exhausting events of the Liberal convention before taking on these new responsibilities. But there was no such pleasant interlude.

There was only a period of a few hours before I was in my new place in the House in a very difficult situation indeed; with a decision whether to introduce a motion which would probably bring about a general election at once and immobilize parliamentary and governmental action on employment and other matters for two or three months, or whether to throw—at least at that moment—the responsibility entirely on the government by a motion which would indicate our own party's willingness to form a government and to take immediate action in accordance with the resolutions of the Liberal convention. If Parliament wished to give us the chance.

Parliament indicated no such wish and so now the government continues to have the responsibility for action or for calling an election by asking for a dissolution.

The position of the leader of the Opposition is one that is now recognized officially in our constitution by, among other things, the fact that he is in receipt of a salary from the Crown to encourage and support him in his endeavors to upset and replace the ministers of the Crown.

Could there be any more graphic illustration of the difference between our concept of democratic and parliamentary government and that of the Communists? When the leader of the Opposition in Parliament—as I said, it is in a purely political or temperamental sense, in Moscow, or Budapest or Peking it could be in a very literal sense.

It is the duty of the leader of the Opposition to act and talk vigorously against the government of the day, to oppose their moves and their motions whenever the occasion requires it. Nevertheless, parliamentary opposition should not be merely destructive or negative.

That is especially true of today when the times are far too serious for narrow partisanship or factionalism. In short, it is the duty of the Opposition, not only to get back into power itself, but to bring about, in so far as it can, better government and better administration when it is not in power, by constructive criticism.

It is not necessarily the duty of the Opposition to be provoked into an initiative which will result in a defeat of the Government which that Government may itself wish.

There is one field where there should certainly be a maximum of co-operation and a minimum of controversy between Government and Opposition; it is foreign affairs, and all those questions which bear on the vital issue of peace and war.

I can and do pledge myself to do everything possible for unity and co-operation in these matters, between all parties, subject always to my responsibility to criticize and oppose procedure which may seem to our party to be wrong and action which may seem to be unwise and harmful to the national interest.

And so I bring my temporary career as a columnist to an end as I begin a new career as leader of Her Majesty's Official Opposition, which I hope will also be temporary.

The Wind in the Pillows

THIS column returned from the mysterious East, and settled back into its accustomed harness only to be greeted on Monday by its long-suffering and affectionate publisher with something that read remarkably like a cuff on the ear. Ah, well! Slings and arrows, and all that. There was nothing left to do but waddle morosely down to the Court House and take up the six weeks slack.

The Seagull was full of new news. "So you're back!" he squawked. "And about time too! Wow! Things have really been popping hereabouts, while you were loafing about in the Chateau Gatinau! Judges have been dropping away like bees off a dead daffodil! At the rate we're going there won't be any left soon! Talk about royal commissions! Brother!"

"What on earth are you talking about?" "The days of the big barons are back! They're snapping up our judges faster than they can be appointed! I see a dangerous trend shaping up! Awrrrk!"

"British Columbian, as you well know, has been a hotbed of dangerous trends ever since the war. What difference does the odd new one make?"

"Dangerous trends, as a matter of principle, should receive a dim view, and the dim view should be one of alarm. I would be remiss in my duties if I did not register a protest against this wholesale kidnapping of our judiciary by certain interests!"

"This sounds very sinister indeed."

"Inquire no further! My beak is sealed!"

SILENUS

And the old bird looked hastily over his shoulder before motioning me into a corner of Bastion Square. "Can you keep a secret?"

"You mean this is off the record?"

"Yep!"

"Can it be leaked?"

"Well... I'll leave that to you." And he did. Hence what follows, which I must insist that gentle readers treat as entirely confidential, if not classified.

"You know," he went on, lowering his raucous screech to a hoarse whisper, "there's going to be a new Chief Justice?"

"It's bound to happen sooner or later. There's an old custom..."

"Shh! The big question around here is WHO?"

"Don't make owl noises like that. They don't suit your character. And stop trying to hide my head under your wing. The underneath side of it, if you will pardon me for mentioning it, is not all that it should be."

"Somebody will hear! And I had a bath yesterday. Ask the boys on the garbage scow. Listen to this!"

"What?"

"Don't you want to know who it will be?"

"Naturally. I even asked the Governor General in Council, but he wouldn't tell me."

"That's what comes of not keeping your ear open in the right places. Now I have a cousin on Lake Ontario who spends the odd weekend in Brewery Creek. The birds there (knowledgeable birds they are, too. The UK High Commissioner wrote a book about them... called them the most knowledgeable birds in the capital) well, these birds told my cousin that they had it straight from the Rideau Club raven that... "I'm sorry. This will have to be finished next week. That sudden gale got blown so far he didn't quite make the deadline."

Treasury Surplus Below Last Year

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal treasury had a surplus of $287,700,000 for the first nine months of the current fiscal year that ends March 31, Finance Minister Fleming announced Friday night.

This compared with a surplus for the same period of the previous fiscal year of $361,000,000.

The nine-month surplus in the current fiscal year was based on budget revenues of $3,755,800,000 and spending of $3,468,100,000.

The budget spending figures do not include operations of the old age security fund, which had a deficit of $65,400,000 for the nine months. The fund—used to pay universal pensions for those over 70—comes basically from ear-marked income taxes but never has been met fully from these.

LONDON LETTER

By WALLACE REYBURN

Black Outlook for Black

LONDON—Short takes... Motorists have always been irked by the law which states that if you've had too much to drink and you have your car keys on you, you can be convicted of being drunk in charge of your car even though you say you had no intention of driving it.

Now here's a really novel twist to that one. A fellow weaved out of a pub in Blackpool and instead of getting into his own car got into another car by mistake. The ignition key was in the switch and when a copper nabbed him he was found to have his own car keys on him. So... he's up on a charge of being drunk in charge of two cars at once!

Men's fashion notes:

(1) It's considered "not quite the thing" to wear a made-up bow tie that snaps onto your collar, so the gentleman-around-town always ties his bow tie a little sloppily, to prove it isn't a ready-tied one. But now a manufacturer has really confused the issue. He's put on the market made-up bow ties with that "I tied it myself" look.

(2) Since umbrellas began, the color for men's umbrellas has never varied—black. Coming on the market here is something new—men's umbrellas in blue and dark grey checks. Nothing fancy, very subdued checks that can harmonize with men's suits. Will the idea catch on? The makers are planning a big propaganda campaign to try and put it over.

Talking of black... In England it had long been the favorite car color, which made sense, considering all the soot around these parts. But now it's the least popular color.

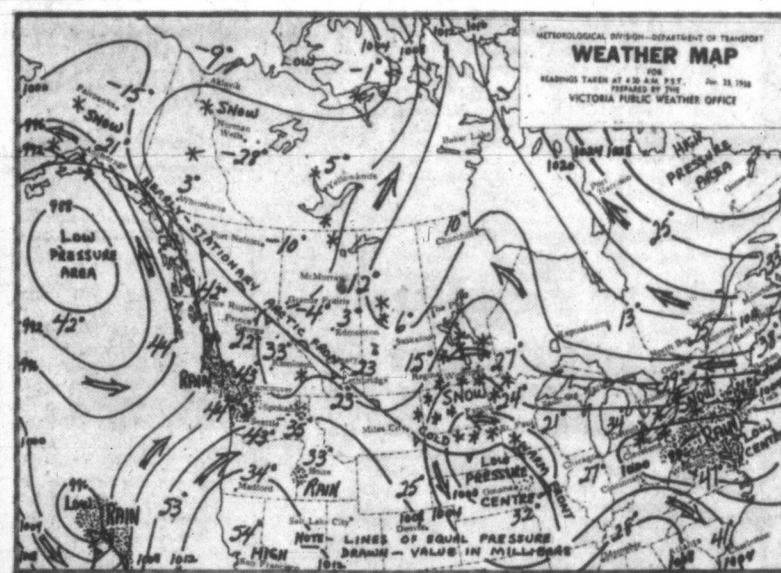

A survey of cars sold following the recent Motor Show reveals buyers favored two-tone (52 per cent), pastel (25 per cent) and black last on the list with a mere 3 per cent.

Young hopefuls in the world of music now have a great chance to find out how the music they write goes over with the public. Famed British composer Vaughan Williams has founded the Society for the Promotion of New Music.

At regular concerts at London's Wigmore Hall young composers now have the opportunity to hear their works performed by professionals, and after each piece members of the audience are invited to stand up and pass comment—and they do!

Experiment to speed up the mails being tried out by the Post Office... each town in England is given a number and instead of addressing his letter to the town the writer puts its number on right hand bottom corner of envelope. With electronic machines, sorters can deal with hundreds of letters instead of dozens.

Whatever happened to Eden Phillpotts, that grand old author of novels and plays set in Devon, including that great standby of amateur actors—"The Farmer's Wife"? Nothing's happened to him. Still going strong at 95 and working on his 251st book. He had his 21st birthday the year "Treasure Island" was published!

WEEKEND WEATHER PICTURE ACROSS CANADA

SYNOPSIS—Aside from a few localities in the interior skies were cloudy over the province this morning and showers were occurring on most windward slopes along the coast. There will be occasional clear periods during the day in the interior and a few brief intervals of sunshine along the coast today. An active storm was moving into the Gulf of Alaska this morning and should bring rain to most of the coast Sunday afternoon or evening.

ART IN REVIEW

By MONCRIEFF WILLIAMSON

Change of Climate Alters Essence of Shadbolt Art

Only last week I was writing that Canadian painting is entirely distinct from the art of France. I still think so, but it seems that the Vancouver painter, J. L. Shadbolt, would have me rescind the statement. That is, if his paintings now on view at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria can be said to speak for him, then it is an alien voice to which I am listening.

In the autumn of 1956, having been awarded a grant, Mr. Shadbolt sets out for France. Twelve months later he returns to British Columbia. During the interval his work undergoes a staggering transformation.

"Where's Shadbolt the poet?" we ask. "Didn't he take his water-colours with him?"

Whether he took them or not, no matter. To Victoria he has dispatched oil paintings and drawings; we must be content with what he's sent us.

The trouble is, of course, the South of France affects artists in a variety of ways. They emerge resplendent from a sun-saturated experience or, alternatively, they are forever afterwards dazzled.

They learn a new range of colours for the palette, and if they work there for any length of time before retreating to their own shores, the readjustment is often long and arduous. Upon Mr. Shadbolt the South of France has poured its beneficence; it has proved to be, in the Aristotelian sense, a catharsis. All that now remains is

Positive

We know the water-colours, so let us look at the oils and ask ourselves if we really like them, and why.

Personally speaking, I like them. I can even tell you why. I like them because Shadbolt is a gifted, passionate artist who paints enthusiastically and with brilliance. His painting technique is positive. He is not niggardly with the application of paint. There's no scratching; no worrying in dark corners. He loads the brush with good, clean color and slaps it on just where it's required.

However, I must not allow myself to be carried away on the winds of enthusiasm. It is important that I mention the critical reservations which drag me back to earth.

I return to that alien voice I mentioned earlier. These pictures do not portray France; they portray Mr. Shadbolt using Menton and Collioure as subjects for an experiment—the experiment of discovering himself as an oil painter. And of the two subjects, he handles the boats of Collioure far better than he handles the scenery near Menton.

Missed Atmosphere

Perhaps he was wise in not going all out for a new approach to an old subject. Had Mike Todd visited Collioure in his eighty day frolic round the world, his cameramen would have "captured" just such scenes as these.

Where Mr. Shadbolt gains our attention is in the way he transfers his excitement. We so enjoy watching him at work, we overlook the lack of a atmosphere.

Despite the rich colors, where is the sunlight? And if there is no sunlight, how can there be heat?

Yet it is unfair to quibble. It is important to consider the wider aspect of Mr. Shadbolt's stay in France. I have been told on good authority that the artist returned to Canada greatly elated by his experiences.

He has since held two very successful exhibitions which do not surprise me in the least. The paintings will sell themselves because they are attractive and gay and — it does no harm to repeat it — Mr. Shadbolt paints with gusto.

For students and amateurs who wish to learn more about composition, and how a painting is evolved from its earliest stages, Mr. Shadbolt's drawings will have particular appeal. He is a confident draftsman, and the twenty three drawings included in this most interesting exhibition are a reward in themselves.

ALL BACH

Yehudi Menuhin's only New York concert this season was made up entirely of Bach—and of Bach for violin unaccompanied, the C major sonata and the E major and D minor partitas. The "proceeds" were divided by Menuhin among the Music Research Foundation, the St. Francis Cardiac Hospital project, and relief for Hungarian musicians.

BOOK TALK

By JAMES SCOTT

Prophets and Angry Men Must Prove Their Worth

In 1958, it is quite possible that the most interesting and vital—if not significant—movement in contemporary literature will be the Cult of the Outsider. This movement has yet to win many converts, but through the ages similar movements have always won their followers—especially in uneasy times—and there is no good reason why this one should not have a like success.

All it needs is a good and convincing spokesman and it may well have found it in England's most successful postwar angry young man, Colin Wilson.

Mr. Wilson catapulted to fame in the British Isles with his first iconoclastic book, The Outsider. Now he has followed up with Religion and the Rebel, a pretty wild collection of disjointed, but powerful thoughts about the mystic experience and the great men of the past who have known it.

Mr. Wilson is not far into his twenties and any roughness of style or lack of discipline in thinking is not something which should be taken too seriously. In many years of university teaching I have rarely encountered dynamic young minds which were not suffering from lack of intellectual discipline.

Only the dull and "safe" ones are carefully disciplined in the early twenties and these practically never write books which stimulate.

So I am not so concerned as many of my book reviewer friends are about a certain touch of wildness and waywardness in Colin Wilson's prose style. If he has anything worthwhile to say, he'll learn to say it better.

The real question is: does the Cult of the Outsider have anything to say?

Well, let us examine it.

PLATO TO SHAW
 Young Wilson takes the view (and it's not a new one) that the great creative contributors to our civilization have always been Outsiders—from Plato, and the Apostle Paul, right through to George Bernard Shaw.

Of this, there is little doubt and Colin Wilson is telling no body anything when he makes this point. However, he goes on from there to try to fathom what it was which inspired these men to make the undoubted contributions they have. Clearly it was not their outsiderness which is a by-product of their perception rather than an essential quality.

As he sees it, the Outsiders are all men who have participated in a profound mystic experience which has enabled them to see values not confined by the demands of materialistic needs. All Mr. Wilson's great men (and they make a motley crew) shared in this extrasensory perceptiveness which comes to them through a mystic revelation.

INADEQUATE

This, too, is not a new idea. What is refreshing is that here we have a young and potent writer (strong enough to attract a lot of attention on two continents) saying these things and calling attention to them in a period where many people feel that our old values are, if not bankrupt, at least inadequate to meet the problems of the atomic age.

I completely agree with Mr. Wilson when he says that if things keep on going as they are now Western civilization will continue to decline, to be out maneuvered, and will work its own doom. For my money this can't be said too often before we have ruined ourselves.

However, it is questionable whether or not his old formula—the need for new prophets—is the answer. If the prophets can convince the populace that they need regeneration and then working to that end—then they will truly be our next great men.

If the prophets only succeed in appearing like crackpots then they are no use to us. In short, the onus is on the prophets.

Mr. Wilson predicts that he will one day be hailed "as a major prophet" of this generation. All I can say is that it is up to Mr. Wilson.

Centennial Mail Plan Ignores Stamp Show

By REG. NAIRNE

Keen disappointment has been felt here, and, indeed, clear across Canada, at the decision of the Centennial committee to have the special B.C. Centennial stamp issued on May 8, instead, as was hoped and expected, on the following day.

For May 9 is to be the opening day for VICEPEX—the big three-day stamp exhibition and convention of the Canadian Philatelic Society, to be held at the Empress Hotel. Reservations for this affair have already been received from as far east as Montreal, as well as from New York and Texas.

To have had the new stamp appear on the opening day would have focussed interest on the show in a way that no amount of advertising could have done—it would have publicized it all over the world.

FIRST-DAY COVERS

So sure were the local societies that are sponsoring the show that the dates would coincide (for Ottawa had practically agreed to co-operate several months back) that large quantities of special envelopes were printed for use as "first-day covers," tying in the new stamp with the exhibition. It was intended to have these on sale at special booths at the show, where they could be stamped and mailed, possibly with a special cancellation.

But unfortunately the B.C. Centennial committee have a project of their own on hand which conflicts with these arrangements.

Modest Livelihood Rattigan's Choice

By WALLACE RAYBURN

LONDON—On the basis of output over the years and current production, Terence Rattigan and Noel Coward share the honors as far as being England's leading playwright of today is concerned.

But they have a basic difference of attitude about all the money that pours into their coffers. Forty-four-year-old Rattigan, back from a visit to the U.S., tells of a meeting with self-exiled Coward.

"I do understand how he feels," says Rattigan, "and I don't want to sound too pompous over this, but I just feel, as I told Noel, that I would rather live in England than anywhere else in the world and I am prepared to pay for the privilege."

"The sort of money that is rolling in for Rattigan can be gauged from the fact that his Separate Tables on Broadway made $3,000 a week; there was $350,000 in advance bookings for The Sleeping Prince, his fee for the film rights of The Sleeping Prince went into six figures; he has sold the film rights of his 1942 play Flare Path and the 1946 play Love in Idleness, etc. etc.

But for "the privilege of living in England," he must restrict himself to living on $12,500 a year. His accountant keeps him strictly to this annual salary. If he goes over it, he's in tax trouble. He lives in a simple little house in Berkshire and has a small, not palatial, top-floor flat on London's Eaton Square.

HANS GRUBER CONDUCTS

Contrasts in Period and Style Feature of Next Concert Pair

There will be a change in the program for the next pair of symphony subscription concerts on Sunday afternoon and Monday evening, Feb. 3 and 4. The Leonore Overture No. 1, by Beethoven, will replace the originally announced Overture in G-Minor, by Bruckner. That is all.

We decided, upon this change after searching re-examination of the structure and balance of this particular program, and are satisfied that it will improve these factors. To those of you who may have particularly looked forward to the Bruckner, we Hans Gruber promise that it will be rescheduled at the earliest appropriate opportunity.

And for those (everyone, I am sure) familiar with the famous Leonore Overture No. 3, interest may attach to the first live performance in Victoria of the first Leonore Overture—one of four overtures Beethoven wrote for his one and only operatic masterpiece, Fidelio.

This is to be followed by a very beautiful, simple, short, and quiet piece—the Pavane by Gabriel Faure. It came into being as a self-contained little composition, but was subsequently used by the composer as part of his Peleas et Melisande suite.

In contrast, again Stravinski's ballet suite, "Firebird," will bring the first half to a close. Igor Stravinski, perhaps the most celebrated and influential of contemporary composers, is celebrating his 75th birthday this year, which is being observed by the entire musical world by means of even more frequent presentation of his great output.

PERMANENT

Not that any such artificial excuse need be seized upon for playing his music, which, to a greater extent than the works of any other, "modern" composer, has found a secure and permanent place in the hearts and ears of this generation of concert-goers.

The Firebird Suite, together with the other two ballets that make up this trilogy Stravinski wrote in 1911-13 on commission from the legendary impresario-choreographer, Sergei Diaghilev—Petroushka and the Rite of Spring—are among the most valuable of authentic 20th century masterpieces.

The version to be heard next weekend here is the one the composer revised in 1919 especially for the purpose of concert-performance, minus the dancing girls.

For the entire balance of the program, Clifford Evans is undertaking the task of his life, for he is soloist in that most challenging of all classical violin concertos, the one by Johannes Brahms.

NONE SO CRUEL
The truth is that, while there may be violin concertos that sound difficult to the listener, there is none that is so cruel to the virtuoso-violinist.

Why? Simply because Brahms was the first and foremost the surpassingly great creator of music, and had only secondary regard as to what is possible upon an instrument. He was not himself an active executant upon a string instrument, though he pretended to consult his great contemporary violinist, Joseph Joachim, in matters of technique of the instrument.

But woe was to poor Joachim when he acceded to Brahms' request for advice! It was thoroughly, utterly, completely disregarded by the composer, save for a historic tongue-lashing which was the only thanks Joachim received for his trouble.

Let him — Joachim — take heart, in whichever of the two likeliest places he may now be for, it is his cadenza in the first movement that is in exclusive and universal use today.

ONLY EQUAL

Otherwise, however, let us be thankful (I don't know about about violinists) that Brahms stuck to his guns. For his violin concerto is the only work of its kind that can stand, fully equal, beside the other extant violin concerto that makes up this duo of the greatest of all violin concertos — the one by Beethoven.

Brahms Condemned By Contemporaries

By HUMPHRY DAVY

"I do not like and cannot like the C minor symphony of Brahms. . . I am willing to admit without argument that the symphony is grand and impressive and all that. So is a Channel fog. . . This C minor symphony seems to me the apotheosis of arrogance."

Davy

An outspoken opinion, isn't it, but it's not mine. It was written by Philip Hale, music critic for the Boston Journal in 1893. It just goes to show that some of the works of the 19th century sounded as unpleasantly in the ears of that age as our contemporary composers do to many of us.

The program notes for a new Epic recording (LC3379) of this symphony, contain some other revealing comments by critics of the day. Here is one that strikes home. It is what the Boston Daily Advertiser had to say about the symphony in 1878:

"Johannes Brahms is a modern of the moderns, and his C minor symphony is a remarkable expression of the inner life of this anxious, introverted and over-earnest age."

Seems to me that some people are saying the same thing about this age.

Another U.S. critic thundered that every note in the symphony "drew blood."

No one can say that these 19th century American music critics were inhibited, but they certainly were not perceptive or far-seeing. Brahms music today ranks among the most popular in the classical literature.

The reaction of 19th century music critics to new compositions raises an important point. How many of us are capable of recognizing a work of art. How many of the much criticized

The first movement finds Brahms in the loftiest of his many heroic flights of fancy, notwithstanding the irresistibly tender second main melody. When the (Joachim) cadenza leads directly into this, it is one of those moments in music when time stands still.

The second movement begins with an extended oboe solo—perhaps the most famous for that instrument together with the oboe solo of the funeral march in Beethoven's Eroica symphony.

The Finale is the sublimation of Brahms' life-long love of Hungarian gypsy music.

Mr. Evans and I have waited for a long time to play the Brahms violin concerto for you. We have spoken and thought about it for many seasons now. In short, we regard its forthcoming performance—and should like you so to regard it, too—as one of the most important events of this or any season.

And just how many other orchestras can boast of a concertmaster to whom the solo part of the Brahms violin concerto could be entrusted? You may need but the odd toe in addition to the fingers of your hands to count them.

modern works of today will be accepted by the next generation. One thing is obvious, despite sputniks, education and television, people today are the same as they were in the "so called good old days."

If you happened to have the Symphony in C, a good alternative is Brahms Symphony No. 2 on a new Angel recording. (A-35218). It is performed by the Philharmonic Orchestra with Herbert Van Karajan conducting.

This is an excellent version of this symphony, one of the best on the market today.

(BB PLUS) "APRIL LOVE" (Royal)—After the recent deluge of rock-'n'-roll films featuring rebels, rebels and devils "April Love" emerges as sweet and wholesome as a sniff of fresh-baked bread. What is more, the musical stars two of the most engaging and handsome youngsters ever started together, Pat Boone and Shirley Jones.

Although it might not have quite the casual slap-happiness of Boone's first starrer, "Bernadine," it has a stronger plot and boasts such color and country background that this dirty old hydrogen-bombed world of ours takes on that precious breathless quality reserved for the eyes of the young and in love.

"April Love" starts off with Boone arriving at the farm of his bitter uncle Arthur O'Connell from Chicago where he has been let out on parole after having been involved in a stolen car incident. At first the big city boy is all thumbs when it comes to h. ses and chores but he displays a neat hand at mechanics and an even neater hand at wooing the two gorgeous sisters who live in the adjoining farm. Shirley and Dolores Michaels.

Eventually, of course, Boone becomes more adept at his chores, wins over his uncle and his uncle's trotter and winds up winning Shirley as well.

But the plot is just a background for the gay swirl of youth. There is the colorful rock-'n'-roll session at the country club, the happy day at the county fair and some entertaining sulky racing. Throughout the 97 minutes running time Boone and Shirley find time to sing some fair numbers including "April Love," "Clover in the Meadow" and "Give Me a Gentle Girl."

(B) "BOMBERS B-52" (Capitol)—Those who enjoy watching the mighty bombers of the U.S. whizz through the skies may find a few minutes enjoyment in this Warner Brothers picture. But it is only fair to warn them that they will have to sit through a highly improbable plot to get them.

The plot goes like this, Natalie Wood thinks daddy Karl Malden should get out of the air force and go into private business and "get somewhere," meaning, of course that she is more than somewhat ashamed of her old man.

Daddy, however, a true blue flyboy, is proud of his sergeant's stripes and believes he is doing very well as he is, both for himself and for his country. But instead of bending daughter over his knees and lustily smiting the place made for smiles he turns in his resignation. Meanwhile daughter falls in love with daddy's new C.O. but daddy thinks the colonel has had too much experience pulling ripcords in other theatres and places the kids out-of-bounds to each other.

Miss Wood's acting is something not to behold.

Torin Thatcher, formerly a lieutenant-colonel in the British Army, didn't mind playing a sergeant in "Darby's Rangers."

"The pay is better," he said.

This magnificent film has been called "entertainment perfection" by all critics without exception. It is a picture which has everything one could desire for sheer entertainment—romance, comedy, drama, music, exotic color and beauty, and children. A picture that will hold and please all members of the family as it tells the story of the English governess who went out to the palace of the King of Siam to educate his children in the ways of Western civilization.

To avoid disappointment, we urge you to see this picture from the beginning and as soon as possible. THREE DAYS ONLY. No increase in prices.

Marian Anderson Lauded; Doing 'Great Job for U.S.'

WASHINGTON, (UP)—The wheel has come full circle for Marian Anderson.

Miss Anderson, one of the world's great singers, was barred because of her race from singing in Constitution Hall here in April, 1939.

The daughters of the American Revolution, who own the hall, would not permit Negro performers to appear. In protest Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt arranged for Miss Anderson to sing on the steps of the Lincoln Memorial.

Since then much has changed. The DAR has long since ended its race barrier in Constitution Hall and Miss Anderson has sung there a number of times. Recently she made a world tour in behalf of the U.S. information agency.

Yesterday the head of that agency, George V. Allen, told a Senate committee the contralto's tour was the "best possible type of refutation to Soviet propaganda."

Allen said Miss Anderson had done "as great a job" of representing her country as any citizen of any other nation had ever done for his country.

Speculative Trend Boosts Trading on Canadian Marts

By RON ANDREWS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Speculative buying and selling this week helped create the heaviest trading in three months on Canadian stock markets.

Penny speculative mines were up and down in a narrow range.

An underwriting on New Mylamague shares Jan. 17 set the stage for that stock's 1,000,000 share turnover Monday on the Toronto Stock Exchange.

The stock continued to lose Thursday, trading 37,690 shares and dropping an additional $1.10. On the week it lost $4.27.

Uranium received a boost late in the week when reports from Britain and United States emphasized it would be many years before scientists could harness fusion of the atom for practical purposes.

The rest of the markets worked their way ahead in a pattern set by Wall Street. Canadian stock prices followed the early forward motion by American markets, which were lightly traded, 162 advanced, 74 declined and 107 were unchanged.

In discount ranges among several Federal Reserve Board banks.

GAINS FAR AHEAD
At Toronto, gains recorded in the five sessions outnumbered losses two-to-one. Of 812 issues traded, 441 advanced, 210 declined and 161 were unchanged.

Sales were the heaviest since the week ending Oct. 25—17,429,000 against 18,946,000. The previous week's sales totalled 17,980,000.

Index changes at Toronto: Industrials up 4.62 to 410.00; golds up 4.96 to 76.76; base metals up 62 to 148.65; western oils up 1.50 to 134.49.

Index changes at Montreal: Banks up 25 to 45.23; utilities up 1.4 to 232.0; combined up 2.1 to 1,066.76; golds up 2.23 to 67.25.

Week's volumes: 235,151 industrials and 2,301,361 metals compared with 213,548 industrials and 1,992,876 metals the previous week. Of 343 issues traded, 162 advanced, 74 declined and 107 were unchanged.

WEEK IN BUSINESS

Discount Rate Cut New Hypo For Industry

By WALTER BUSSEWITZ

NEW YORK (AP)—The U.S. government gave business an other dose of recovery medicine this week. The patient plodded along cautiously, apparently wary of any quick cures.

The medicine was in the form of a cut in the discount rate by the majority of the 12 federal reserve banks. The reduction to 2 1/2 percent was an important move to make it easier for business to borrow.

In the wake of the cut, many major banks slashed the interest rate charged on loans to their biggest customers with the best credit ratings from 4 1/2 to 4 percent.

Will the medicine speed the end of the slump?

DESIRE IMPORTANT

Senator Paul Douglas (Dem., Ill.) commented: "We need not only available credit, but a desire on the part of business if we're going to have an upturn."

President Eisenhower, in his economic report to Congress, said in effect: Consumers haven't stopped spending. Production has sagged because retailers, wholesalers and manufacturers have been getting rid of surplus stocks.

It predicted business will pick up when inventories get down or before mid-year. If a recovery does not come, Washington served notice it will keep pushing anti-recession programs.

A week ago the federal reserve used another of its weapons to give the economy a psychological shot-in-the-arm. That took the form of a cut in margins on stock purchases.

During the week, key business indicators showed mixed trends. Steel operations were off a bit. Auto production rose but retail sales continued well below earlier forecasts.

Railroad freight carloadings climbed slightly but still were about 13 percent below loadings a year ago. Recent head-aches of the railroads were given emphasis when the Pennsylvania and New York Central both deferred paying their common stock dividends. The Pennsylvania, largest carrier in the United States, reported its 1957 earnings fell to $1.45 a share from $3.16 in 1956.

CPR Press Officer, Jack Maunders Dies
WINNIPEG (CP)—Jack W. Maunders, 47, press relations officer of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company here since 1949, died suddenly Friday in hospital at Portage la Prairie, Man.

He was stricken while en route to Vancouver from Winnipeg on a business trip. Widely known in newspaper and railway circles from Montreal west to the Rockies, Mr. Maunders had worked out of Montreal and Winnipeg for the railway since 1942, when he joined the company.

JAIL IN WOUNDING MATSQUI—Roy Snyder, 34, of Matsqui, has been sentenced to 15 months in Oakalla prison farm for wounding Harry Wood during a weekend party here. Snyder pleaded guilty Jan. 13 to a charge of unlawfully discharging a firearm causing bodily harm.

day advance in months Thursday as rumors flooded the air.

One unconfirmed report was that the price was to be increased to $40 an ounce.

Winnipeg and Central Gas was a heavy seller for most of the week. It opened at $7.12 1/2 but tumbled to a low of $2 by Thursday before settling at $2.85.

The stock continued to lose Thursday, trading 37,690 shares and dropping an additional $1.10. On the week it lost $4.27.

EDUCATING OUR MEN AND WOMEN FOR THE FUTURE IS A RESPONSIBILITY WE ALL SHARE

GOVERNMENT

Government has the primary responsibility for supporting higher education. The Federal Government, through the Canada Council, will contribute approximately $5,000,000 towards our University's development. The Government of British Columbia is providing $1,000,000 a year for a period of ten years to aid U.B.C. And, in addition, it will match all contributions to the Development Fund received from business, industry and individuals, up to the amount of $7,500,000. Every dollar you give is worth two dollars towards our University's building needs.

INDUSTRY

British Columbia's phenomenal industrial growth has multiplied the demand on our University for teachers, economists and doctors, in addition to scientists and engineers. Industry recognizes that its development can only be maintained if enough of the best of our young people get to University, and if the University has adequate facilities for their education. Emergency measures and temporary facilities can no longer suffice if the University of British Columbia is to fulfill its job. Improved and expanded facilities are urgently needed now.

BUSINESS

Corporate enterprise has a vital stake in higher education over and above that which it shares with other taxpayers. Modern business, recognizing that trained and educated young men and women are essential to its health and prosperity, is the primary consumer of the product of our University—the graduates. Today, overcrowded conditions and poor facilities are weakening the University's ability to adequately train these men and women. More and better buildings must be constructed if U.B.C. is to serve the growing needs of our rapidly developing business enterprises.

INDIVIDUALS

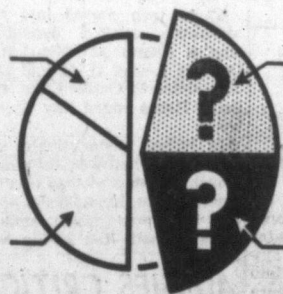

All of us have an important stake in higher education. Those who have derived benefit from a University education, and those who want this benefit for their children have a personal stake. Everyone receives benefit from the qualified men and women produced by our University. Men and women who protect our health; assure us justice; teach our children; and develop our country. Today, more than 8,900 students attend U.B.C.—in eight years enrolment will be 15,000! Teaching and research buildings must be constructed; more residences must be provided; and essential services and academic facilities must be expanded.

Our complex society creates a demand for more and more men and women with higher education. Business and industry require ever increasing numbers . . . all of us expect our country to have the teachers, doctors and scientists we need. Present U.B.C. facilities are inadequate for the work we expect of it. Everyone's whole-hearted support is required if U.B.C. is to fulfill its job.

AUSSIE YOUTH CRACKS FOUR-MINUTE BARRIER

MELBOURNE (AP) — Australian Herb Elliott ran his first below-four-minute mile when he was clocked in 3:59.9 at Olympic Park today.

Elliott, 19, is the youngest miler in the world to break the four-minute barrier. He was racing in an inter-club event.

Elliott is the 18th man—the fourth Australian—to break the four-minute barrier since Roger Bannister did it May 6, 1954, at Oxford, Eng., in 3:59.4.

The four minutes now has been broken 31 times by runners from 10 nations.

The record—still awaiting ratification—is 3:57.2 set by Derek Ibbotson of Britain last July 19 in London.

SIDELINE SLANTS

BY

Doug Peden

Talent is a priceless asset, too often squandered by the foolish and unappreciative.

It hasn't been wasted by Doug Kilburn. He gets tremendous mileage from his modest portion.

Doug wanted nothing greater from life than to be a part of professional hockey. But from the time he started the season with the Cougars, it was evident that his pro career was destined to be a short one.

He has the spirit of a professional, but the skating ability of a raw amateur. Without skating skill, a fellow cannot expect to stay around the Western Hockey League for long. And when he's played hockey half of his 28 years, he's not going to suddenly discover a new way to master the blades.

Yet, Doug Kilburn has been one of my favorite hockey players this season because he gave the Cats a big-league try.

He couldn't keep up with the speed boys and he couldn't stickhandle with the slick ones. Although he knew what to do around the goal (his backhand shot was one of the best in the league), eight goals in 38 games were too few to balance the ledger.

It was only a matter of time, but Doug almost made it through the season because he wanted to play pro hockey and wanted desperately to win.

His example could have been used to advantage by some of the Cougars who are blessed with twice the talent. At least four teammates—two still with the club—have at times been less effective.

Perhaps the fans have paid Doug his biggest tribute. A third-line player and brother of the former coach and manager, he was certainly a vulnerable target if he failed to please the galleries. Yet they were pulling for him.

Often when a player leaves a club, there is only the feeling that it is part of professional sport. But with Doug Kilburn the feeling here is one of regret that his talent and spirit weren't doled out in equal portions.

Bud Poile, who brings his Edmonton Flyers into Memorial Arena tonight, has been under fire for trading all-star forwards Denny Olson and Tom McCarthy to the Cougars for Colin Kilburn.

But Bud has hinted that the ex-Victoria manager may wind up on the Edmonton coaching staff, although the terms of the trade are that Colin will return to the Cougars at the end of the season.

Poile, according to a Vancouver report, said, "This is no phony deal. We wanted Colin Kilburn . . . We'll complete the deal in the spring."

"We can wind up keeping Kilburn, as we may have other plans than as a hockey player for him."

Doug Anderson and the Cougars have agreed to terms and Doug was out skating with the Cats yesterday.

Inactive this season after five years with the club, Doug is only seven pounds above his playing weight and will probably step back into action against Seattle here next Saturday. "I should be ready by then," says Doug. "But I want to be sure I'm in condition when I start and it may take a few days longer."

PO Joe Carver, a Victoria athlete who played guard for the Shearwater Flyers when they won the Canadian intermediate football crown last fall, is carried on RCN strength at Esquimalt.

But there is little chance that the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Carver of 1902 Foul Bay Road will be lining up with Bert Nelson's bluejackets in the Victoria loop next season. Joe is in the Fleet Air Arm and destined to remain at HMCS Shearwater, near Dartmouth, N.S.

Win Spirit Dampened As Elmer Injures Knee

ALBERNI—Two action-packed contests marked the opening games of Alberni's centennial basketball tournament, but the big news, insofar as the hometown fans are concerned, was the injury suffered by Alberni Athletics' playing coach, Elmer Speidel, on whose shoulders Alberni had pinned hopes of another Dominion senior "A" men's championship, suffered a recurrence of an old knee injury and may be lost to the team for the balance of the year.

Alberni's victory in the first round of the tournament seemed little consolation.

Athletics edged the Southern Alberta Chinooks 85-82 in a thrilling game that saw the Lethbridge squad hold the lead up to the last 10 minutes of the game.

In the first game of the evening, Vancouver Elfers downed the Seattle Friendly Chevrolests, 53-51.

With some tremendous long range scoring by both teams, the Alberni team barely edged the Albertans, who were sparked by the two West brothers, Al and Larry.

It took the Athletics more than half the game to catch up to the Chinooks, who at times led by more than 20 points. At the half, the count showed the visiting team ahead 40-43.

Today, Chinooks take on Seattle in the afternoon and the Elfers at night. Alberni goes against Elfers in the early game and the Seattle club at night.

Three men moved into the semifinals against defending singles champ Art Ngai. Ray Dawson passed D. Hagan; Ed Ngai defeated Gordie Chan, and Brian Hobbs edged Ray Greenwood.

In ladies' novice singles action, V. McPhail won the championship with a victory over F. Neave while Kenn Webb took the beginners' crown against Dave Russell. Ken Leung beat

Starting from a humble beginning, with only the National League six years ago, Greater Victoria's Little League system has mushroomed into an 11-league baseball empire with the announcement that four new loops will be ready for action during the coming season.

Two of the new leagues, Upper Quadra and Wilkinson-Prospect Lake, will hold organizational meetings next week. The other new entries are Cadboro Bay and Langford.

Upper Quadra meets in the Lake Hill Community Hall on Tuesday, while Wilkinson-Prospect enthusiasts will gather in the hall at the corner of Wilkinson and Roy Road Thursday.

Both meetings start at 8 p.m.

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Joe Brown, 127½, New Orleans, stopped Ernie (Sonny Boy) Williams, Washington, 8, (two-die), SAN DIEGO, Calif.—Bill Peacock, 12½, Los Angeles, knocked out Pancho Gop, 12½, Chihuahua, Mexico, 4.

SPIRIT OF 'YOUNG CANADA WEEK'

Ready for biggest night of season for Victoria's young hockey players—are Gary Day, 10 (left), and Bruce Sarson, 12, who will be among 375 youngsters on ice at Memorial Arena during "Minor Hockey Night," which is part of Dominion-wide "Young Canada Week." Activities will include six games, presentation of prizes to lucky ticket holders, guest speakers, including Mayor Percy Scurrell and Cougars' Ed Dorohoy, and entertainment by HMCS Naden Band. The first of the games starts at 6.45.

Hockey Blowup Fizzles; Executive Gets Backing

By DOUG PEDEN

Executive directors of the Victoria Hockey Club (1957) Ltd. may still have a burning feeling around the ears today, but they can settle down to the business of planning for the future with the knowledge they have the backing of the club shareholders.

The executive, facing shareholders at an extraordinary meeting at Liberal Headquarters Friday night, were several times raked over the coals for their methods but ended up with a strong vote of confidence for their actions in dismissing Colin Kilburn as general manager of the Cougars.

Held for the dual purpose of explaining the reasons for Kilburn's dismissal and acquainting shareholders with the present status of the club, the meeting got away to a rousing start and ended on definite note of harmony.

When the meeting of approximately 200 shareholders started, it appeared opinion was about evenly divided on whether or not the executive directors should be supported for their actions in the Kilburn affair. But in the often-heated discussions that took up the first part of the session, the aims of the shareholders swung in the same direction and when it came to a vote of non-confidence, only a few wanted to see the executive tossed out.

Club president Dr. Andy Reid opened the meeting by reading a statement outlining reasons for the decision to ask for Kilburn's resignation as manager. During a questions-and-answer period that followed, there were some bitter verbal exchanges between those who had come to fight for the former manager and those who were in full accord with actions of their executive.

Considerable tension was building up before a motion for a public apology to Kilburn for a statement by a few directors, that Kilburn had cast aspersions on the directors, was introduced. Discussion on the motion produced several amusing moments before it was defeated, as was a motion to "express regret" at the action of the executive in dismissing Kilburn.

The humorous interlude eased the tension and the meeting quickly swung behind the directors. And out of a session which could have resulted in damaging discord came a more united group of shareholders.

In the late discussions, several made a plea, most clearly stated by Doug Fletcher, that while many did not agree with methods used by the executive, shareholders could best help hockey in Victoria by pulling together. The idea was heartily endorsed.

ANSWERS SUPPLIED

Early in the meeting, Dr. Jack Patterson submitted a list of questions which were answered by the executive. Dr. Patterson then moved a vote of non-confidence, and after prolonged discussion, the question was put. An unofficial count noted only 19 hands raised to support the motion.

Read to the meeting was a letter from the executive to Kilburn offering to pay his expenses to the meeting if he wished to attend. The reader claimed that the meeting should not have been called on a night when Kilburn was playing hockey and thus unable to attend, and that the action of the executive in asking for Kilburn's resignation was not in order because less than half of the directors (14 of 29) were present when the decision was made.

MORE MONEY?

Dr. Reid advised the meeting that refinancing might be necessary in order to start another season. He suggested the possibility of private ownership of the club if other methods of obtaining money failed.

He also suggested that the Victoria club might obtain a working agreement with Montreal Canadiens, which could result in a confounding club and a better chance of continued community ownership.

Dr. Reid said that the net operating deficit as of Dec. 31 was $2,365.79 and that it was possible that the figure would rise to between $8,000 and $10,000 unless attendance increased.

He estimated that an amount up to $15,000 might be needed to refinance the club for next season.

TABLE TENNIS PLAY

Defending Champion Hard-Pressed by Val

Rocketing shots and a champion's style came through for Nancy Craig Friday night at Club Sirocco as she blasted her way to a final meeting against defending ladies' single titlist May Wong in the Victoria Table Tennis championships.

Finals in all events will be played tonight.

Mrs. Craig hammered out a semifinal 21-6, 21-10, 21-10 win over Ann Stansby while Miss Wong had a tougher row to hoe in passing Val Druce.

Mrs. Druce opened with a 21-9 win against the champion, before dropping the next three, 21-16, 22-20, 22-20.

Three men moved into the semifinals against defending singles champ Art Ngai. Ray Dawson passed D. Hagan; Ed Ngai defeated Gordie Chan, and Brian Hobbs edged Ray Greenwood.

In ladies' novice singles action, V. McPhail won the championship with a victory over F. Neave while Kenn Webb took the beginners' crown against Dave Russell. Ken Leung beat

Starting from a humble beginning, with only the National League six years ago, Greater Victoria's Little League system has mushroomed into an 11-league baseball empire with the announcement that four new loops will be ready for action during the coming season.

Two of the new leagues, Upper Quadra and Wilkinson-Prospect Lake, will hold organizational meetings next week. The other new entries are Cadboro Bay and Langford.

Upper Quadra meets in the Lake Hill Community Hall on Tuesday, while Wilkinson-Prospect enthusiasts will gather in the hall at the corner of Wilkinson and Roy Road Thursday.

Both meetings start at 8 p.m.

Kilburn's Return Draws Top Crowd

Cougars Face Colin, Flyers Here Tonight

Colin Kilburn is still helping hockey in Victoria.

Appearing at Memorial Arena in a rival uniform for the first time in more than six years, Kilburn is undoubtedly the main reason why tonight's game against Edmonton Flyers will attract the season's largest crowd.

Interest generated by the return of popular Kilburn, who has been the centre of a storm of controversy since his dismissal as general manager of the Cougars, has resulted in big demand for tickets and it is possible a near-capacity crowd will sit in on the proceedings.

But there are other attractions for the fans. They will be able to form their own opinions of merits of the trade which sent Kilburn to Edmonton for the balance of the season in exchange for all-star forwards Denny Olson and Tom McCarthy. And they will be watching one of the most powerful clubs in the Western Hockey League in the Flyers, who will be looking for the first victory of their only Coast tour of the season.

CANUCKS WIN

Flyers, who battled to a 2-2 tie at New Westminster Wednesday, came out on the short end of a 4-2 count before a packed house at Vancouver Friday night.

Kilburn, who had collected two goals and two assists in his first two games with the Flyers, was held pointless by the Canucks, flying as they played their first home game since the tightening of WHL rules.

Jackie MacLeod scored twice for Canucks while Phil Maloney and Ed McQueen each beat goalie Dennis Riggan once. For Edmonton, coach Tony Leswick and Gerry Leonard scored.

Bulwark of the Edmonton club is big defenceman Bud McPherson but Leswick has a wealth of scoring power up front. He has Kilburn working with Chuck Holmes and Gerry Melnyk on his first line and the coach teams with sophomore flash Len Lunde and Frank Roggoven on a line which will also take a lot of watching tonight.

NO CHANGES

Cougar coach Pat Egan plans to go with the same lineup that clipped Seattle Americans 4-1 last Sunday.

Egan and Rags Raglan will form one defensive unit and Neil Bullock will partner Carl Kaiser on the other blueline combination.

Up front, Olson will again operate with centre Ed Dorohoy and Gordie Haworth. McCarthy and Doug Macauley will flank centre Gordie Wilson on the second attacking unit while Blinky Boyce, Stan Baluk and Bud Syverson will form the third line.

Game time tonight is 8 p.m.

Young Canada Hockey Night Slated Monday

"Young Canada Night" will be the theme of all activity in Memorial Arena Monday when almost 380 players in the Greater Victoria Minor Hockey Association will take through a six-game program.

Victoria Cougar centre Eddie Dorohoy will be on hand to present prizes to some of the pee-wee players and Mayor Percy Scurrell will be on hand to officially open activities.

Flyweights open the program at 6.45, to be followed by pee-wee teams at 7.45 and a bantam all-star game at 8. Official ceremonies will take place at 8.30 and a midget all-star game will start at 8.45.

Victoria's midget all-stars will play Nanaimo all-stars at 9.15 with the final action of the night coming between Victoria junior and juvenile teams at 10.15.

NEW ORLEANS—Tony Dupes, 135, New Orleans, outpointed Herbie Rodriguez, 135, New Orleans, 2.

DURBAN—Dennis Adams, 111, South Africa, knocked out Warner Batchelor, 122, Australia, 5. (Adams retained British Empire flyweight title.)

NEW BACK SIGNED

Lions Place Six On Trading Block

(From AP and UP Dispatches)

British Columbia Lions have signed a new import halfback and, at the same time, announced that six members of last year's Western Interprovincial Football Union team are up for sale.

Lion's newest acquisition is Bob Luna, a 24-year-old whose 22 points scored in 1952 still stand as the scoring record in an Orange Bowl game. The former Alabama University back spent the 1955 season with San Francisco 49ers and the last two playing football in the U.S. Army.

Up for sale or trade are imports quarterback Maury Duncan and guard Bob Hantla, and Canadians Rae Ross, Lorne Reid, Sherman Hood and Don Ross.

In other football news, Calgary Stampede have reported a loss of $11,700 for the 1957 season, bringing the club's debts to a total of $21,075.

The club's biggest expense item was $311,998 for coaching, players' salaries and travelling. Game receipts amounted to $314,651.

Stampede ended the 1956 season with a deficit of $9,375. Added to last year's loss, the statement shows the club "in the hole" to the extent of $21,075 at the present time.

Japan Wants Olympics

TOKYO (AP)—Japanese leaders have launched a campaign to bring the 1964 Olympic Games to Tokyo.

Prime Minister Nobusuke Kishi is chairman of a preparatory committee for inviting the Olympics.

Horace Can Be Brave With Money Rolling In

NEW YORK (AP)—Flushed with the largest advance sale in Giants' history, Horace Stoneham Wednesday promised San Francisco baseball fans a "highly improved ball club" led by Willie Mays and backed up by two power-hitting youngsters.

"Everyone knows that Mays carried our club during the last few seasons in New York," said the Giants' president. "This year manager Bill Rigney's chief concern will be to line up some guys who can help Willie out."

"We think we have the men in Orlando Cepeda and Willie Kirkland. We're giving the first base job to Cepeda right off the bat and Kirkland, if he hits the way we think he can, will start in the outfield."

Cepeda, 20-year-old Puerto Rican, batted .309 with 25 home runs for Minneapolis last season. Kirkland, in the army in 1957, stroked 37 homers for Minneapolis in 1956.

AUSSIES CRITICAL

This Rose Becomes a Thorn

SYDNEY, Australia (UP)—Mervyn Rose, the world's top amateur doubles player, was under fire today for his temperamental outbursts during the current Australian tennis championships.

Bad sportsmanship charges followed Thursday's semifinals in which Roy Emerson and Bob Mark beat Rose and Mel Anderson.

Rose allegedly sassed the umpire during the match, used bad language in his frequent clashes with the umpire, and then smashed two rackets in the dressing room.

"Harry Hopman (Australian Davis Cup team manager) has turned out many players who have stunned the world with their skill. He might now try his hand on a few lessons in behavior," thundered the Sydney Sun editorially.

During his singles match against Warren Woodcock Tuesday Rose allegedly asked the umpire, "You're cracking the whip aren't you?" and then said, "Go and look in your rule book."

"I wouldn't need a whip to beat you," the umpire replied. Rose admitted he smashed the rackets.

"I laid them on edge one at a time, jumped up and hit them with all my weight with my feet. If I'd jumped on them both together I might have broken my ankle. I've broken dozens of rackets when they were as worthless as those ones were. They were heavier than one I normally use. By the time the match ended the two rackets were not worth a dollar."

But his explanations were not accepted in tennis circles. A senior Australian lawn tennis official said, "You can forgive Merv for lots of things but how can you forgive him for destroying 20 pounds worth of equipment when any kid would be glad to have them."

The association has asked the umpire of Tuesday's match for a full report.

SPORTSCRIPT

BY ERNIE FEDORUK

While it is fairly certain that the Campbell brothers of Avonlea won't be coming to Victoria in March as Saskatchewan representatives in the Canadian curling championships, the all-brother rink continues to keep in the news.

And back on the Prairies, where curling rates second only to wheat in news value, the roarin' game has taken on the aspects of an international incident.

The Prairie lads are up in arms over a ruling by the Ontario Curling Association that has ousted two of the Campbells—Don and Garnet—from competitive curling in the eastern province. In Saskatchewan, the curling fraternity regards the Campbells in the same light that Montreal's hockey population regards Maurice Richard.

OCA officials have branded the Campbells as "professionals" although the OCA did never clearly define the difference between an amateur and a professional. Their rather vague ruling said anyone playing the game "for material gain" is a professional.

The OCA made its classic ruling without specifically mentioning any names. But the good burghers of Saskatchewan believe it was pointed directly at the Campbells. For the record, the OCA edict might prevent Victoria ice-maker (and newly-crowned Vancouver Island champion) Tony Gutoski from participating in bonspiels if it became a Dominion ruling.

But is Gutoski any more of a professional curler than you or I? Would a sportswriter be classified a professional because he writes about the game? This idea is as ridiculous as the men who dreamt up that ruling in Ontario.

Our sympathy leans towards our Prairie pals. Indeed, the OCA action—jealous and lame-headed—smacks of bigotry!

Ontario, long a weak sister in Canadian curling circles, invited Garnet to conduct a series of clinics in that province. Between classes, Garnet, who skipped the family foursome in past seasons, managed to take part in a few bonspiels. Garnet had followed brother Don eastward. His older brother had been invited, and later accepted, to take over a position with an elite Toronto club. Don's chief duties were to instruct members as well as look after the ice-making.

After the brothers accepted the invitations and, we might add, broken up a family rink that had long been recognized as a power and great drawing-card in curling, the higher echelon of the OCA closed the door on their competitive ambitions with that ruling.

The Ontario action is akin to inviting your neighbor over to dinner and then handing him a check before he leaves.

At any rate, the boys on the plains have picked up their biggest cudgels. Regina's curling writer, John Robertson, feels Ontario's ruling "is just eastern Canada's way of saying that it wants to restrict the game to a social outing for those snobs who tell you that winning is incidental—because they never win."

John might have hit the nail right on the head. In many eastern rinks, it must be pointed out, you must have a small fortune salted away before you could even start to think of joining one of Ontario's elite clubs. Cost of curling on the Prairies is practically nothing in comparison. It could be very embarrassing, therefore, for our very-well-to-do Ontario friends to be consistently beaten by "hay-shakers" off the farms.

The Campbell clan has won more than $40,000 in curling prizes during the past decade. Still, you can not call them "professionals" unless you include at least 80 per cent of western Canada's leading curlers.

It has been reported that Ontario intends to carry its ruling to the Dominion Curling Association in the form of a resolution.

We sincerely doubt that Ontario will receive much backing on this stand from western Canada. If Ontario does get this support, then it will be a rather sorry day for curling in Canada.

Classy Totems Tower Above Rest of League

RATED GERMAN SOCCER TEAM TO VISIT CANADA

Canadian soccer fans appear destined to get their first chance to watch a German league team in action this summer.

According to European newspaper reports, Hamburg G.V. has accepted an invitation from the Canadian Soccer Association to make a six-game tour of Canada.

Hamburg G.V., leading club in the German Oberliga Nord (Northern Division) plans to start the tour in Vancouver and also play at Edmonton, Regina, Winnipeg, Toronto and Montreal. No dates have been set.

Werner, Posipal, Geeler and Stirmer are among the Hamburg players well known to many German-Canadian fans.

ON THE ALLEYS

Entries Overflow For Tenpin Event

By GRAHAM COX

Even added days don't seem to be able to accommodate all the teams wanting to enter the Victoria tenpin championship team events slated for Strathcona Bowling Alleys Feb. 2.

It may be because of the recent announcement that the latest in alley equipment that will make its debut at that time, but alley manager Roy Begg stated Friday that they had already added a day to the event and that the day was already nearly full.

The response has forced the local association to open action a day earlier in the team events and will now get underway with shifts starting Saturday, Feb. 1.

Only a couple of spaces are still available.

Striking sparks with every ball rolled, Nick Howard roared into blazing flame Tuesday night in the Senior Tenpin League at Gibson's and set a new season's high of 663, 13 pins better than the mark set by Bill Holness earlier in the year.

On his way to the total, Nick had singles of 182, 235 and 246.

Behind Howard were seniors Roy Begg at 571, George Motion 561, Sheldon Nipp 562, Con McBeth 552, Wally Noonan 549, and Roy Harris 542.

Webb 547, Len Murrant 545, Marg Beane 511, Mona Corbett 505 and Lolly Hughes 503.

High fivepinner of the week was Stan Williams of Gibson's CPR loop with his 877 (328, 300, 249) series ahead of K. Wright, with an 804 series.

In the Commercial Fivepin League, it was Stan Bell with 784 leading the way for Ken Smith's 778, Reg Waggoner 732 and Harry Smith 746.

At Strathcona, Roy Jago peeled off a 788 series in the City Hall League while Miss Jackie Henderson bounced to a 722 in the B.C. Telephone fivepin loop.

Bud Marty topped off the Douglas Street tenpinners with his Senior League 590 score. Behind him were Ralph Baker 548, Steve Chamut 546, Ron Wilson 543, Wilf Smith 571 and Herb Chandler 545.

Pick of the Esquimalt fivepin fraternity was Frank Morgan with his 849 (300, 341) series ahead of Ben Price's series of 765 and 822.

Behind them were ranked Tony Bishop, 740, 796, Jack Frampton 784, Doug Crawford 759, George McCreadie 759, H. Schaub and Geoff Worrall 745 and Flora Kirker 743.

There seems to be no doubt that all the class and polish belongs to Porky Andrews' Victoria High Totems.

The stylish Totems romped through an unbeaten season to capture the Victoria Inter-High Senior Boys' Basketball League championship Friday night with a 44-32 win over Mount Douglas.

Totems would up the schedule two points in front of Esquimalt Dockers, whose only loss was at the hands of Vic High.

Taking full advantage of the 22 fouls called on Mount Douglas, Andrews' charges hooped 18 from the free-throw line.

Pick of the winners was Darryl Lorimer with 22 points. In exhibition action, Dockers thrilled a home-court crowd with a 39-29 win over Mount View.

Dave Nelson led the assault with 23 points as Esquimalt dropped in 10 unanswered points in the final frame.

Oak Bay downed Courtenay 35-32 in a second exhibition.

Vic High moves on now to the Lower Island tournament at Esquimalt High Feb. 21 with the winners advancing to try for a provincial title.

Marlene Moves To Semi-Finals In Tee Tourney

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UP)—Marlene Stewart Streit of Toronto, the Doherty Women's amateur golf tourney's new favorite, meets former winner Dorothy Kirby of Atlanta in the semi-finals today.

In the other match, Mary Ann Downey of Baltimore goes against newcomer Nan Berry of Quincy, Ill.

Mrs. Streit, former Canadian women's amateur champion, hurdled her biggest test in the second round Friday by eliminating tourney favorite Barbara Romack Porter of Sacramento, on the 19th. The young Canadian then went on to beat veteran Marge Burns of Greensboro, N.C., 6 and 5 in the afternoon's quarter-finals.

Miss Kirby advanced with victories over Gale Fleming, Tulsa, Okla., 2 and 1, and Cookie Swift Berger, Buffalo, N.Y., 4 and 2.

VENTURI FIRES 63

So Who's Right, Ken or Jolly Jim?

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UP)—It takes all kinds of people to make a world—and the same holds true for the golf tour.

Ken Venturi is a 26-year-old athlete dedicated to the game, who loves to practice and spends hours every day on the practice tee.

Jolly Jimmy Demaret is 45, a grandpa who never goes near the practice tee and who seldom even plays a game these days.

So Venturi and Demaret, two of the finest tee-shot performers in the business, were tied for the lead as the $15,000 Thunderbird invitational gold tourney went into the third round today.

Venturi, a San Franciscan in his first year as a pro, had a torrid eight-under-par 63 Friday to come up with a 133 total for 36 holes. Demaret, defending champion and three-time winner of this tourney, has played exactly one round of golf in two months. He fired a very fine 65 Friday for the same total.

The two have a two-stroke lead over first-round leader Dave Marr and up-and-coming Paul Harney, each with a 135 score.

Al Balding, Toronto's free-swinging shotsmith, stayed close to the front-runners with a one-under-par 70, for a two-round total of 138—five strokes off the pace.

Canada's "old pro," Stan Leonard of Vancouver, shot a hot 68, but an opening day 74 put him low on the list with a 36 hole 142 total.

Vikings Tackle Alberni Quintet

Victoria College Vikings will be hoping to start a brand new winning streak tonight at Victoria High School when they meet Alberni High School Chieftains at 8:30.

Vikings, who had won nine straight games this season, saw their skein snapped last Saturday as Dairy Queen Eds avenged an earlier defeat with a thrilling 46-45 win.

Chieftains will be hoping to do the same thing, but Vikings have already beaten them twice this year.

Northern MLA Lauds Wengren

Socred Member Says Area Residents
Enthusiastic About Gigantic Project

The people of north-central British Columbia are "most enthused" about the proposed Wenner-Gren development, William Speare, new Social Credit member for Cariboo, said in the Legislature Friday.

Bids Asked On $175,000 Home Project

PORT ALBERNI — Tenders have been called by Victoria architect John DiCastri for construction of buildings for the Alberni Valley Memorial Homes project, to cost an estimated $175,000.

Tenders will close Feb. 14. The homes will consist of seven separate buildings to be erected on a large lot on Tenth Avenue.

Three of the buildings will contain four apartments each for married couples, and the remaining four buildings each will have accommodation for four single persons.

Victor Belknap, member of the home society executive, said suites would be assigned according to a point system based on means, present living quarters and other considerations.

The society itself has $18,000 in assets, he said; the provincial government has made a grant, and a loan from Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation is assured.

False Store Fronts Centennial Feature

COURTENAY — Chamber of Commerce here will sponsor the erection of false fronts on stores as a centennial year feature.

Those decorated will be stores on Cliffe Avenue between Fifth and Sixth Streets, and on Fifth Street from Cliffe to Duncan Avenue.

Costs and construction details were discussed at a chamber meeting here with the president, William Finlayson, in the chair.

Reports given at the meeting on signs of progress in the district were as follows: 7,000 car licence plates will be issued this year for the Courtenay, Cumberland, Comox and Campbell River area, instead of the 6,000 of last year; collections for the UBC development fund have reached $5,000, and fire damage in Courtenay was down 50 per cent from the 1956 total.

In his maiden speech moving the reply to the Speech from the Throne, Mr. Speare said northern residents have full confidence in the Wenner-Gren proposals.

"Conversant with the region involved, they quite appreciate the transformation and tremendous benefit which will evolve," he said.

Mr. Speare, a hospital administrator at Quesnel, also had words of praise for the B.C. Hospital Insurance Service.

"The people of this province enjoy a public service health program which serves as a model for interested centres across the face of the continent," he said.

"It is designed with flexibility of adjustment, yet with measures of control that are essential to ensure its continued operation."

Sidney Club Plans Air Cadet Squadron

SIDNEY—An air cadet squadron will be formed here under sponsorship of Sidney Kinsmen Club, it was announced here this week.

Provincial Air Cadet League has approved establishment of the squadron here, with the service club providing finances for the unit and civilian administration.

It will meet at Patricia Bay Airport.

The squadron will be open to boys of from 14 to 18 years, or those younger than 14 if in grade 9. They will receive instruction in citizenship, foot drill, aero engineering, and aspects of flight, and will be eligible for summer camps, overseas visits, flying courses, and other awards.

Two officers and two civilian instructors will be attached to the squadron. Initial parade of the squadron will be announced later.

Island Hunters Fulfil Promise Of Moose Feast

CHEMAINUS—Before Rotarians Bob Bennie and Jack Jameson left for a hunting trip to the interior last fall with two companions, they had to promise that when they got back they would provide a feast for club members.

This week members of the Rotary Club and visitors were treated to a supper of roast moose.

New Plebiscite Urged On Foreshore Project

Economic Hopes Never Brighter, Chamber Told

NANAIMO — Economic outlook of Nanaimo has never been brighter, William J. Lupton, president, told Nanaimo Chamber of Commerce this week.

Local industries are expanding, he said, and there is the strong possibility of a new industry establishing here shortly.

MORE PUBLICITY

There has been new emphasis by both federal and provincial governments on publicizing Vancouver Island, Mr. Lupton said.

He suggested sending a strong delegation to the B.C. Chamber of Commerce convention in Vancouver May 4-6, and ordered preparation of resolutions both for the Vancouver convention and the annual convention of the Associated Chambers of Commerce of Vancouver Island here June 18.

Chamber council will meet Jan. 30 to elect a new executive. New directors elected to the council were John Dunham, E. L. Hodson, Arnold McGillivray, A. L. Pickard and Norman Schroeder. Installation of the new executive will take place Feb. 22.

Dan Campbell, Social Credit MLA for Comox, said Friday he will recommend to the government that another plebiscite be held on the controversial foreshore development at Campbell River.

In a statement released outside the Legislature, Mr. Campbell said the controversy following the first plebiscite was not healthy for the community.

"The pros and cons of the development and its use as the berthing site for the Quadra Island car ferry have been well aired throughout the Campbell River area," Mr. Campbell said.

"An inquiry board handed down certain recommendations with respect to the development and the Quadra Island car ferry."

"It would be right going back to the people to ask them if they would accept the recommendations of the inquiry board."

ISLAND VIEWPOINT

Winter Irony

COURTENAY ARGUS—It is ironic that the winter of 1958, so far, presents the finest logging and construction weather in years, combined with the lowest level of employment.

Jobless totals have mounted this month to what NES officials describe as nothing less than dismal.

We heartily endorse the action of the Island Labor Council in its program of this week to seek some respite. It seems to us all three levels of government along with business and individuals could be doing much more about the situation than at present.

Farmer's Market

COWICHAN LEADER — A worthy project for some organization to take up is a new and more modern farmers' market in Duncan.

There have been rumors off and on during recent months of a change of location for the present market on Government Street. There will be support for such a proposal.

The market is not in a good position in relation to traffic, although little fault can be found with the general site.

Cowichan Agricultural Society and the Chamber of Commerce have always been good friends of the farmers' market. A new lead might possibly come from them. There are many reasons for them giving it their support. One is the greater income to be derived by farmers at the expense of itinerant pedlars and trucking merchants, few of whom have any investment in the district, but who prosper because they perform a service and fill an existing need.

Another reason why the farmer should be free to market his own produce is to enable him to test a favorite theory of his, that the middleman gets all the profit! A compelling reason is the provision of a market for local produce.

Court of Revision

CHEMAINUS — The first meeting of the 1958 court of revision will be held in the court room above the municipal sub-office here Feb. 12 at 10 a.m.

'FORGOTTEN FEW' COULD HOLD THEIR HEADS HIGH AGAIN

$2.25 a Month From Every Taxpayer Would Give New Life to Needy

To 185 Victorians on social assistance, life has become grim existence. They are the lowest in the city's social order. To them, a pensioner seems well-to-do. In many ways he is, for pensioners receive up to $25 more each month than an unemployed man or woman. City welfare officials feel it is high time the situation was rectified.

By DINAH KERR
An investment of $2.25 will not buy much these days.

"It's no great staggering amount," city welfare administrator Bill Hooson said, "about the price of seven packages of cigarettes."

But that investment on behalf of every B.C. taxpayer would enable the "forgotten few" to hold their heads high again.

For B.C.'s 10,000 heads of families and single persons on social assistance, it would mean an extra $15 each on monthly cheques. For the 9,500 dependents, it would mean an extra $7.50 each.

Four hundred units of 765 persons in Victoria would benefit from the increase.

The total cost to the provincial government and all B.C. municipalities would be about $2,500,000.

Of this, the government would pay 80 per cent; the municipalities, 20 per cent.

But under terms of the Unemployment Assistance Act, the federal government pays one-half the costs of social assistance in the provinces. And since the municipalities pay 20 per cent, the cost to the provincial government is actually only 30 per cent of the total sum.

Victoria's share would be about $18,500, representing an increase of about two-fifths of a mill to city taxpayers. That sum would be tacked on to $185,000 which the city spent on social assistance last year.

What would an assistance increase mean to the 19,500 who need help to live?

To put it simply, it would give them a chance to live half decently again, Mr. Hooson said.

Nobody likes to live at a subsistence level, dealing with nickels and dimes where others have dollars.

No man wants to see his children deprived, no wife wants to prepare only the cheapest foods, no child wants to pass up shows and candy because there is no money.

But some people have to. The increase, for one thing, would enable them to buy more and better food.

But apart from food, personal happiness is involved, Mr. Hooson said.

"More money would help to keep the family unit together," he said.

"If we don't give them enough money, we're just compounding their physical, mental and personal difficulties."

A family of five would allow them to regain "a little self-respect."

David Woodsworth, director of the Family and Children's Service in Victoria, had this to say:

"I know people who come to this agency who, if they went on social assistance, would not be able to hold their heads up. Rather than do that, they ask us to take their children into our care so they can go out and make a living."

Mr. Woodsworth thinks the present social assistance set-up prevents the needy from earning money when it should encourage.

As it is now, heads of families are allowed to earn $20 a month at part-time jobs. Three-quarters of their wages above that amount is deducted from the social assistance allotment.

"Earning restores initiative and self-confidence," Mr. Woodsworth said. "It's good business and good morality to give people a reasonable standard of living."

Current social assistance rates are "completely inadequate," he said. People who must live within them are "either poorly clothed, half-starved or cold."

"If you were on social assistance you couldn't feed your children and heat them at the same time," he said. "Naturally the parent feels guilty and resentful. He just can't live with self-respect."

Mr. Hooson and Mr. Woodsworth have come up with what they think is the only possible solution to the dreary, penniless life of 19,500 British Columbians.

Now, they think it's time for action.

MONTE ROBERTS

The verdict has been returned in the case of the cat, Little Miss Muffet, and the bird, Robin Redbreast. The verdict is "not guilty," the jury having been convinced by the plea of defence counsel that, when Miss Muffet attacked Robin Redbreast, she was only doing what comes naturally.

But the jury—as juries are so fond of doing—brought in a recommendation.

The recommendation said the wrong party was on trial. The jury said the Old Man—namely me—should have been tried.

Joy Stonehouse, Hampshire Road, who was elected foreman of the jury by acclamation, summed up its findings in a personal message to me, as follows:

Dear Old Man:
While voting not guilty, I feel Miss Muffet is neither guilty nor NOT guilty, but is a victim of circumstances. I should like to put the Old Man on trial instead.

Am I correct in assuming the Old Man feels—as I do—that Miss Muffet and Robin Redbreast are natural enemies? If so, what about Judy Boots Streak and Miss Muffet?

When it was decided the cat and the dog were to live in the Old Man's house, did he not teach them to tolerate and get along with each other?

Then why couldn't the Old Man have simplified matters by acquiring a pet bird with whom Miss Muffet would also have to learn tolerance?

To sum up, Miss Muffet may have had one of two reasons for assaulting Robin Redbreast, but both are fundamentally the Old Man's fault.

1. Perhaps Miss Muffet had a common case of hunger. If so, why hadn't the Old Man fed her?

2. It may have been a simple case of lack of activity, or companionship. All cats like to pounce on small moving objects. But the Old Man ever think of teasing her with a bit of his column tied to the end of a piece of string, instead of leaving her to venture away from home to find Robin Redbreast to attack?

Does the Old Man feel he has fulfilled these duties? If so, his conscience may be eased a little.

But he still missed a very important precautionary measure. Why didn't the Old Man tie a little bell on Miss Muffet's neck?

In conclusion, I am sure the jury agrees with me when I say the Old Man should be on trial—and that there is only one verdict.

GUILTY.

Thank you, Joy Stonehouse, for those kind words. I will accept whatever punishment the court chooses to dish out.

As long as Joy Stonehouse will tackle the job of tying a little bell on Miss Muffet's neck.

You don't know Miss Muffet very well, do you, Joy?

HAGGIS IS WHERE THE HEARTH IS

Contrary to the opinion of non-believers, the traditional Scottish haggis can serve a useful purpose.

This was proven Friday by a slightly bemused Scotsman who mistook a generous slice of haggis for a bit of prestidigitator, and added it to his fireplace.

He reports it burned well, and gave out a steady heat over a long period of time.

Appropriately enough, the haggis was burned on the eve of Burns day.

Petunias, Single Roses, Not Dogwood on Plaques

By HUMPHRY DAVY

If paintings of the provincial flower on plaques in front of the Legislative Building bear any similarity to the dogwood, it is purely coincidental.

They are petunias or English single white roses.

That is the opinion of Victoria flower lovers who were quick to notice that someone erred in drawing dogwood blooms for the centennial decorations.

The floral plaques are being used in conjunction with streamers hanging from the buildings.

"They are petunias without any doubt," said one gardener, "but they could be mistaken for the English single rose."

The painted flowers on the plaques are lobed.

The dogwood has four to six flowering bracts—all are pointed.

"It is sloppy work," said one gardener. "There is no excuse for it. A job should be done well or not at all."

Flower experts said several firms which issued calendars with paintings of the provincial flower, also erred in its design. One calendar depicted a cherry flower as the dogwood.

J. A. Heritage, 92, Here 57 Years, Dies

John Alexander Heritage, 92, well-known retired marine engineer and church worker, died early today in hospital after 57 years of residence in Victoria.

He was born in Bloomington, Ill., and came to Canada in 1893. He spent four years on the Pacific service, and later joined the B.C. Coast Steamships. By the time of his retirement in 1932 he had served in all the company's coastal vessels, and had supervised construction of two of them.

Mr. Heritage was a member of First United Church board of managers for several years, a YMCA board member, member of the B.C. Historical Association and university extension worker.

Two Killed, Two Injured In Car Crash

Inquest Into Cowichan Fatalities Set for Today

Two men died Friday night when the car in which they were riding failed to make a turn on the Cowichan Lake Road and rolled over several times before coming to rest 200 feet from where they left the road.

Killed were Norval Petrie, 20, and Robert Ketch, 17, both of Youbou.

Taken to King's Daughters' Hospital for treatment of under-termined injuries were Melvin Edward Hansen, 26, and Larry Ketch, cousin of Robert Ketch, who was killed, also of Youbou.

The car is registered in the name of Helen Phyllis Hansen, wife of one of the injured men.

STILL SERIOUS

Hansen's injuries were understood to be minor. Ketch originally reported as in more serious condition, was reported by hospital authorities today as "unchanged."

RCMP from Lake Cowichan, who attended the accident, said the car had been proceeding from Duncan to Youbou, on the north shore of Cowichan Lake, where the four men worked in the logging and lumbering industry. The accident occurred at 8 p.m. about 10 miles west of Duncan.

They said it appeared the car had rolled both end for end and sideways, and had cut a swath through small trees and brush before coming to rest against two larger trees. The victims apparently had been killed by impact, and were still in the car when found by passing motorists.

Gordon Terness, of Lake Cowichan, took the two injured men to hospital. It is not yet known for certain which of the four men was driving the car at the time.

An inquest was scheduled to open at Lake Cowichan at 2 p.m. today, but it was believed evidence would be heard at a later date.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Assistant director, university extension department at University of B.C., Gordon R. Selman will address a public meeting Wednesday in the Art Gallery on "Canada, an Emerging Power."

Mr. Selman's address will be sponsored by Victoria branch of United Nations Association. He recently attended UNESCO conference in San Francisco as one of Canada's delegates.

Two men were taken to hospital with face cuts after the car in which they were riding crashed into a seawall on Dallas Road at 12.20 a.m. today.

Driver Robert Caird, 462 East Burnside, went to Jubilee Hospital and passenger James Alexander Ray, 21, HMCS Venture, was taken to HMCS Naden Hospital.

Police said Caird drove east on Dallas and was in collision with the wall about 50 feet east of Pilot.

There was medium damage to the car, none to the wall.

The late F. J. Tate, 526 Langford, was a former official of the Silver Spring Brewery here, not of the Crystal Spring Beverage Co. Ltd. as was reported in his obituary Friday.

Victoria Gyros will hear Dr. Gordon Shrum, UBC dean of physics, talk on "Sputniks" at a meeting in the Empress Hotel Monday noon.

Annual Meeting For Red Cross On Wednesday

Annual meeting of the Victoria branch, Canadian Red Cross Society, will be held in Red Cross headquarters, Fort Street, Wednesday at 2.30 p.m. Present will be Eric Marsden, president of the B.C. division, Mrs. J. Theft of 300 pounds of copper wire valued at $300 at Langford Jan. 13 was reported to city police Friday.

The wire, taken from Peterson Electric, was in 11 coils each containing 1,000 feet. Some coils were in boxes, some on metal spools. All was insulated with various colors of plastic.

A suggestion that sports fishing in British Columbia's salt waters be subject to licensing was condemned by Victoria Chamber of Commerce tourist trade group Thursday.

The group maintained that this would be "a direct blow to the tourist industry" since thousands of tourists are attracted by the lure of fishing around Vancouver Island.

A motion deploring licences for sports fishermen was passed after the group heard from Ray Ritchie, president of the Lower Vancouver Island Amalgamated Sportsmen's Association.

Victoria Boy Wins Trophy As Top Cadet

Grade 10 Victoria High School student Edward Walker, 15, of 3405 Browning, Friday was presented the annual trophy as the best army cadet in the Western Command.

He received the award, a cup, from the second-in-command, First Battalion Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, Major Vincent Lilley, at a parade in the Macaulay Street drill hall.

In addition, he was presented with the Archie Fleming trophy as the most proficient cadet of the basic training wing, and a trophy for permanent retention as the best cadet at the Vernon Trades Training Camp.

He has been a cadet 2½ years.

TRAFFIC FINES

In Oak Bay court Friday: John Cecil Cox, 2890 McDonald; Frederick Eliek, Red Deer, Alta.; James H. K. Miller, 271 Denison; Reginald James Cliff, 545 Francis, each fined $15 for speeding over 30.

PUBLISHER'S NOTEBOOK

A Kind of Debt

According to reports, more than 3,000 alumni of the University of British Columbia are out knocking on doors in the current Development Fund drive.

"Don't see how you do it," a friend commented the other day, "I hate begging for money."

The truth is I've never met anyone who actually liked it. People work on campaigns for a variety of reasons: some of them funny, some deadly serious, most of them personal.

Today I'd like to tell you about one.

A group of us went out to Point Grey in the fall of 1930, from the same high school. Like all freshmen, we had our heads shaved (a practice since abandoned). We wore beanies, rolled-up "cords" and signs with our names on the back in green letters.

After a week or so of je-ne-sais-quoi, we observed a strange fact: everywhere we turned there was another freshman, unknown to any of us, following us around the campus.

He was a quiet, self-effacing boy with a shock of copper-gold hair, pink cheeks and bright blue eyes. We learned that his nickname was "Hob."

At the end of a week, one of our mob turned to him and said: "I hope you won't mind me asking this—but who exactly are you? How come you're so friendly?"

The boy blushed violently. "Well," he said, "I just moved into the neighborhood where you fellows live, and you seemed like pretty good guys, so I thought I'd get to know you."

This was the beginning, for me, of a fast friendship. "Hob" turned out to be a boy of endless surprises. Shy as he was, he volunteered for the Frosh Revue and did a hilarious bit in front of an audience of 1,500 as a drunken professor.

Like many quiet men, he had a wonderfully wry sense of humor. He was a good student and an aggressive rugby winger.

About two years after I had met him, he sat down one day and started to play the piano. (This was an accomplishment he had concealed.) It developed that he could play the clarinet and guitar, too. And when he went to his room, ostensibly to study, what did he do? He wrote romantic poetry!

I never knew anyone exactly like him.

Early in the war this gentle, ascetic fellow volunteered for the RCAF—as a bomber pilot. A couple of years later we got word that he had been shot down and killed.

And then, not long after, we heard another startling piece of news. "Hob" had left behind a young wife and son.

A story on the front page of a Vancouver newspaper said that this toddler, playing with a grate, had pried it loose and gone toppling down the flue into the furnace. Thank God (most reverently), the fire was out and the baby retrieved, bruised, bewildered, but alive.

I have often thought of that boy since. I have never met him, but know his mother married, to a fine fellow. "Hob's" son would be about 16 or 17 now—just about ready to enter the university.

So maybe that's why we canvass. It's a kind of debt.

Seattle Minister To Be Guest At First United's Anniversary

DR. C. E. ALBERTSON

TV, 'Nonsense' Courses Debate Splits Educators

CALGARY (CP) — Public statements by teachers at two levels have prompted renewed debate on educators' common talking points: the effect of television on studies, and "nonsense" courses in the modern curriculum.

As ever, few conclusions were reached. The poll of principals was prompted when Dr. Leon Katz, University of Saskatchewan physicist, suggested in Vancouver this week that courses such as hygiene and driver training are "junk and nonsense" and should be scrapped to make way for more emphasis on science.

NO TV; GOOD GRADES

At the same time, public school teacher James Gordon told a panel discussion in Regina that the only two children in his class who got "A" grades in their last reports were the only ones who came from homes without television. He conceded it might be a coincidence.

High school principal H. D. Cartwright, Calgary, said parents have forced schools to add extra courses by neglecting their duties. Dr. Katz was more adamant on the same point. He said that if mothers don't teach their children to brush their teeth it's not the school's job.

Mr. Cartwright also took a moderate view on the effect of television on children. "TV is a distraction," he said, "but it is only one of many distractions. . . ."

He named movies, cars, sports, radio and girls, "not forgetting the opposite sex in the opposite instance."

THREE R'S FIRST

H. T. Pritchard, principal of a Calgary elementary and junior high school said of the curriculum question: "I'll stay with the three R's first and then add the other stuff."

On television, Mr. Pritchard said his own children have grown accustomed to TV and now found more interest in other things.

High school principal Ward Steekle, Calgary, had a good word for TV. He said travel and science films provide useful information and presentations such as the opening of parliament serve a useful purpose.

Junior high principal E. M. Borgal, Calgary, felt the United States has "gone overboard" on "nonsense subjects" to a greater extent than Canadian schools.

At Douglas Street Baptist Church, Rev. Cecil Barner will preach on "The Second Mile" and "I'm Glad I'm Alive."

WESTERN GOSPEL singer Patsy Prescott will play the guitar, sing and testify at a youth rally in the Alliance Tabernacle, 1039 Yates, to night at 7:30, and at services Sunday. Miss Prescott represents the King's Garden, an inter-denominational Christian organization in Seattle. She will give testimony on how she was saved from a world of night club entertaining.

Church Bells To Welcome Queen Mother

VANCOUVER (CP) — The eight bells of Holy Rosary Cathedral will ring out a royal welcome to the Queen Mother when she visits City Hall Wednesday.

Princess Margaret will get a similar welcome when she visits the city in June, says Tony Collins, president of the Vancouver Society of Change Ringers.

"Ring of church bells for a royal visitor is an old English custom," Mr. Collins said Friday. "The peels she hears will be a token of esteem and good will."

Silent for five years, the Holy Rosary bells were set ringing again Christmas Eve by Mr. Collins, a 26-year-old English immigrant.

Visiting Record Set By Rev. A. I. Avery

Rev. A. I. Avery set an all-time record for hospital and pastoral visits in St. Aidan's United Church last year, it was reported at an annual meeting this week.

Mr. Avery made a total of 954 calls—averaging almost three a day through the year.

Evangelistic calls made by the Couples' Club resulted in 50 new members for the church.

Plans for a new church building will be discussed at a special congregational meeting in early February.

Preaching in Victoria Truth Centre Sunday, Rev. Emma M. Smiley's subjects will be "Now are Ye Sons" and "The Birth of Abundance."

Annual Symphony Ball

Outstanding on January Calendar

First major social event on the 1958 social calendar in this city is the annual Symphony Ball to be held on Friday, Feb. 7, in the Crystal Ballroom at the Empress Hotel. Held under the auspices of the Women's Committee to the Victoria Symphony Society, the ball promises to be an outstanding success. Many prominent citizens have signified their intention of attending, not only to enjoy an evening of dancing but also to add their prestige and to show their pride in the Victoria Symphony Orchestra, which has won praise from coast to coast. Mr. Hans Gruber, conductor of the orchestra, and Mrs. Gruber pictured in the top music note, will be among the dancers; also, Mr. Jack Barraclough, president of the board of directors, and Mrs. Barraclough, in music note at left, and Mr. Denis Humphries and Mrs. Humphries, who is head of the women's committee. Mrs. William Erb, pictured at left, is convener of the ball committee. With her is Mr. Joe Zanichelli, maître d'hotel, who is in charge of arrangements for the supper that will be served at 11 p.m. the night of the ball. Dancing will be from 9.30 p.m. to 1 a.m. Proceeds will be used to assist in the work of the symphony orchestra.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Big Plastic Salad Bowls Are Selling in This Shop

By PENNY SAVER

There is one place in Victoria that boasts something new every time I drop in to its fascinating depths. Now they tell me that plastic can be used in almost everything imaginable...

I was entranced with the latest in salad bowls. Large oval and circular-shaped bowls of clear plastic are embossed with gold dust to give any dinner or buffet a party effect. These bowls come complete with matching salad servers and the price is just $9.75.

This set would make a wonderful bridal gift for a young couple... so go and see!

Also in the new and different collection were relish and dip holders in the same transparent plastic sprinkled with gold dust. Tall gold stands held the servers at different heights for simple serving. The price for these marvellous little stands is $3.95.

I noticed that the dip servers come in a black plastic, too... very modern and effective on the hostess table! The amazing feature about this ware is the light, easy-to-handle fabric.

Ever think of how useful a large plate is, in serving at a party? You probably haven't, as you've just been "making do" with the various plates in your china cabinet and running short of them right in the middle of a tea or coffee party! That's why I'm telling you about this long, flat plastic plate that holds miles of sandwiches and buns. Being light, anyone would enjoy passing the refreshments on it! It would be wonderful at cocktail parties too, because it's long enough to stretch along the table, making for easier reaching! It comes in gold dust or black at $7.95.

All you do is... oh, pardon me, I didn't realize you were there. I was just reading the directions for this amazing spun aluminum serving oven.

I really must tell you about this little pot that you place on the top elements of the stove and it bakes just as it would do in an oven! You can bake potatoes, cakes, bread and even roasts, not to mention the wonder of it when you want to keep dishes warm! It's an oven, saucepan and warming oven.

A Move Into Spring With Colorful Straw Chapeaux

By NONA DAMASKE

Silver grey pussy willows are pushing their way through brown winter overcoats, a sure sign that spring is just around the corner.

The first item of winter wardrobe that Milady casts aside is her felt hat and in its place will be a light fresh straw.

Wear a spring chapeau with your fur coat if you want to give yourself a lift and be a fashion pace setter.

During the past several seasons there have been some pretty earth-shaking changes in millinery and spring and summer 1958 will have its full quota of new hat shapes.

Among them, the high-winding Carmen Miranda turban is front and centre on the millinery stage.

Tams pulled to the back or side are tops. The new cloche sits high on the head and may come to a steeple-like point. The few large hats that are being shown have brims that flare out and upward as if they would lift you skyward.

Missing from the scene for the first time in many years is the Breton-type sailor. Long the favorite of many women this shape will be sadly missed.

For the fortunate few who do not have to consider a second season's wearing when choosing millinery some of the new exciting designs will create a sensation. For the rest of us, who carefully put away a few hats at the close of a season, hoping to be able to wear them the following year, a modified version of trend setters is the best answer.

The ever popular beret is a style that is becoming to almost all women, and if chosen in a soft material can be arranged in many ways. The new soft, backswipe look is at its best in berets. When travelling, several soft berets will solve all your millinery problems as they adapt themselves to any hour of the day or evening depending on choice of fabric.

Effect of a turban can often be achieved by a wrapped trimming over a straw bow. Much more easily worn than a really high brimmed turban a lower fuller design will still have the new look.

TODAY'S RECIPE

MUSHROOM TOPPED SALMON STEAKS
Two pounds fresh salmon steaks, salt and pepper, 1 can (5 oz.) mushrooms, drained, ½ cup butter, melted, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 teaspoon grated onion.

Season steaks lightly on both sides then place in a greased baking pan. Slice mushrooms and combine with melted butter, lemon juice and grated onion; pour over steaks. Place in a hot oven (450 degrees F.) and bake, allowing about 10 minutes cooking time per inch thickness of steaks. When flesh will flake easily on testing with a fork, remove steaks to heated serving platter and serve immediately. Makes 4 servings.

Don't return it for the woman wouldn't understand why and might be greatly offended. She was grateful for what you did and wanted to show her appreciation. The gift shouldn't have embarrassed you at all and, furthermore, there was nothing about the item or the giving that would indicate that the woman was courting friendship or gambling on other favors from you. I admit that her husband was crude in his remark to your husband. He meant well in his own peculiar way. Friends and neighbors don't like to be "tipped," but the man doesn't know any better, so his ignorance is worth forgiveness.

Speaker, Mrs. J. McNeill, recounted experiences in St. John's, Newfoundland, when her husband was ministering in a Presbyterian Church.

Reports were given and Mrs. H. Warren conducted the devotional period.

New Officers—Mrs. G. Harling was installed president of the Ladies' Auxiliary, Pro Patria Branch, No. 31, Canadian Legion, BESL. Other officers are Mrs. T. Deugan and Mrs. E. Mc-

Thank You! At a recent meeting of Sir Matthew Baillie Begbie Chapter, IOOE, Mrs. S. G. Wilson, educational secretary, read a letter from the chapter's adopted school expressing thanks for a parcel of treats, and Mrs. B. Pritchett read a letter of thanks from the Victorian Order of Nurses for a special donation of $26.84 given by the chapter for cod liver oil for elderly needy people. Reports were given on two social events enjoyed by chapter members, an afternoon tea at the home of the vice-regent, Miss Edith King, and a holiday party at the home of the regent, Mrs. H. D. Parizeau. Plans were made for a rummage sale in the spring.

Donation—It was reported at a recent meeting of the Alden Hamber Chapter, IOOE, that $25 had been donated to rehabilitation co-ordinator, Mrs. J. Dunn presided at the meeting. PEO SISTERHOOD

Founders' Day Marked

Seven lighted candles, commemorating the seven founders, enhanced the charm of the lounge in Oak Bay Beach Hotel, which was the setting this afternoon for the annual observance of the founding of the PEO Sisterhood, 89 years ago.

More than 160 members of the 11 local chapters gathered to hear the address given by Mrs. E. Stuart Davidson, a past president of British Columbia Provincial Chapter. She was introduced by Mrs. T. H. Johns, both past presidents of Provincial Chapter.

Preceding the talk, a musical program was provided by Mrs. Boris Zarzy, violinist, and Mrs. C. Howard Denike, pianist. Receiving guests were Mrs. Hugh M. Morrison, president of Victoria Presidents' Council; Mrs. P. B. Scurrah, past president of Supreme Chapter; Mrs. Wilfred Johns, first vice-president, and Mrs. W. D. Reid, corresponding secretary, both of the Provincial Chapter.

Honored guests from Vancouver, Mrs. B. E. Wales, second vice-president, and Mrs. J. R. McNeil, organizer of the provincial board, were introduced to the gathering by Mrs. Morrison. Greetings were read from those who were unable to attend. Introduced also, was Miss Patricia Petrie, daughter of Dr. R. M. and Mrs. Petrie, who was the minister of education; Mrs. Harold Roach, North Peace River, and Mrs. Don Campbell, Courtenay. The lounge and refreshment table were decorated with bouquets of fresh spring flowers.

Pipes-Young Wedding Ceremony In St. Luke's Anglican Church

Pastel pink and white chrysanthemums were placed on the altar of St. Luke's Church, Friday evening, for the ceremony which united Jocelyn Ann Young, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Young, 1136 Hilda Street, with William Charles Pipes, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Pipes, 2439 Lincoln Road. Rev. T. D. B. Ragg officiated.

A ballerina-length gown of lace and nylon tulle over satin was worn by the bride, given in marriage by her father.

Neckline of her gown was outlined with seed pearls. Two floating tulle panels fell from the back neckline to pose over the bouffant skirt. Strands of orange blossom which had been worn by her mother as a bride, held her chapel veil and she carried a bouquet of red roses and carnations.

Mrs. Donald Gillam, matron of honor, wore a gown of nylon over pink brocade taffeta with matching jacket and accessories. Bridesmaid, Miss Judy Murphy, wore a gown of nylon over flowered silk with matching jacket and accessories. Both attendants carried colonial bouquets of carnations.

Griffin Layne was best man and Donald Gillam and Brian Coutts were ushers.

Reception was held at the Strathcona Hotel where toast to the bride was proposed by her uncle, Travers Custance. Pink and white chrysanthemums decorated the reception room and a three-tier wedding cake topped with a decoration from the bride's mother's wedding cake centred the refreshment table.

For receiving guests, mother of the bride wore a brown and beige printed silk sheath dress with matching jacket, beige accessories and pink rosebuds, en corsage.

Mother of the groom wore a pale blue lame sheath with matching accessories and yellow corsage.

After a honeymoon on the mainland the newlywed couple will make their home in Victoria.

Washing Machine Beat for Hula

By JUDY NICHOLSON

Watch the hands! They're telling a story!

So says Hawaiian hula dancer Mrs. Robert Munro who has spent the past 11 years studying the fine art of the "hula."

She explains "Hula is an Hawaiian word for dance, and is the general name for all types of Hawaiian folk dances. These dances tell a story of nature, including the moon, sea, love, birds and trees, with all the graceful motions of the hands.

Though Canadian born, Mrs. Munro or "Leah" as she is called in Hawaiian dancing circles, has the grace and charm of movement one would find in the women of the islands.

A wife and mother, Leah has still managed to keep up long hours of practice.

She says with a smile, "I do my housework to an Hawaiian tune and away to the beat of the washing machine."

Where and how did she learn to dance?

Well, it was a burning desire even when she was very young. At first she could only watch native dancers when they came occasionally to Victoria, or listen and watch when they appeared in movies.

LESSONS IN NEW YORK

Then she married a naval man and "joy of joys we were transferred to the east coast."

Halifax naval base was really not far from New York and Mrs. Munro wasted no time getting in touch with a famed teacher of the hula there. She enrolled in the Hawaiian School of Dancing and took lessons from the famed "Huapala," a hula dance teacher.

Mrs. Munro practiced diligently under the skillful eye of "Huapala," who, by the way, is a white woman.

She became so accomplished at the dance that, on returning to Halifax, she started a group of her own. Joining her in the idea of forming a team of Hawaiian dancers were players of authentic Hawaiian musical instruments, Billy Reid and his orchestra.

Her dream had come true! Women of all ages, ranging from late to middle thirties, joined the group, donned grass skirts, sarongs and leis, to learn the dance of the hula gals! Not only did they join for pleasure, but for health, too. "Hula is one of the finest exercises for co-ordination, reducing and grace of movement," explained Mrs. Munro.

The group toured their dance act for charity shows, talent reviews. They became so popular they were always in demand.

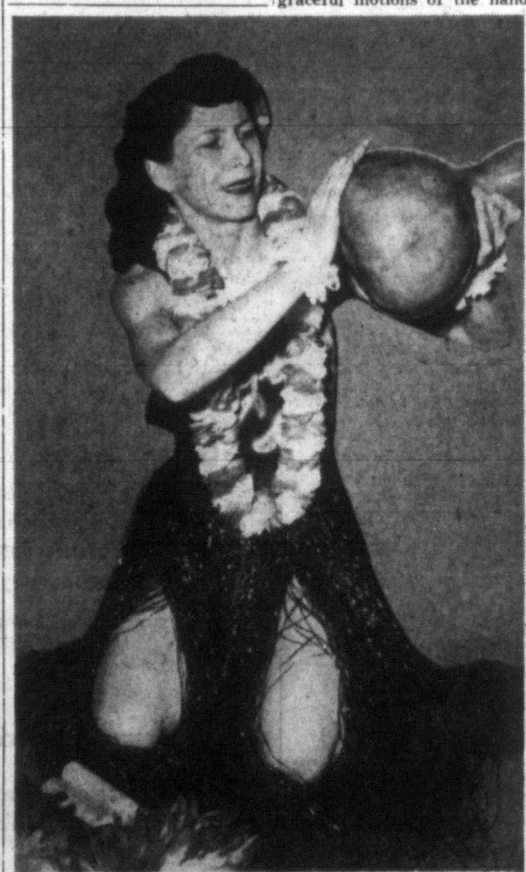

After five years on the eastern side of Canada, the Munros moved back to Victoria. In their home on Dysart Road where they live with their two adorable children, Wayne and Terry, is a collection of Hawaiian records and such instruments as the Ili Ili, a pair of lava rocks that are hit together during the dance.

Has Mrs. Munro ever been to Hawaii? "Oh, no; but my husband and I plan to visit there within this next year."

What does she plan to do in the islands?

Why, dance, of course!

Afternoon Branch, Christ Church Cathedral Woman's Auxiliary, Monday, 2.30 p.m. Memorial Hall.

Leah Munro tells story of hula with graceful hand movements.

Modern Design Concept Shown In Small Three-Bedroom Home

Trend toward keeping the living-cooking-eating area of a house free-flowing and open in arrangement while grouping bedrooms around a centrally-located bathroom, is emphasized in this small but well-organized three-bedroom design.

The house is built with a basement, a cess to which is handy to both kitchen and trade entrance. Approach to the house is simplified by having both main and kitchen entrances on the same side with a dividing wall between.

The plan is particularly suitable to the small city lot. Working drawings may be obtained at minimum cost from Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

QUIZZING THE GARDENER

By JACK BEASTALL

Q—A small hanging basket of Star-of-Bethlehem is now so straggly and yellow that it is no longer attractive. What can I do to improve things? Mrs. K. J. Metehosin.

A—Winter is resting time for Campanula isophylla alba, sometimes called Star-of-Bethlehem. Cut back all straggling ends to the edge of the basket, give only enough water to keep the plant alive, and give some fresh topsoil as growth recommences in a few weeks.

Q—Can you tell me the name of a rhododendron in bloom outdoors now, and a lovely deep rose-red color? Is it early for it to bloom? R. B. Gorge.

A—Your rhododendron could be the one named Christmas Cheer, blooming normally at this time in our normally mild Victoria winters.

BEASTALL ADVISES

Unlikely Corner Grows Watercress

By JACK G. BEASTALL

Many people have a useless corner in their garden which is too small for one purpose and too shady for another.

There was such a corner in my garden but a simple scheme resulted in it being a great use to the household and of interest to visitors.

You don't need running water to grow watercress.

It is true that the usual method of growing watercress is in a running stream, but where that is lacking the simple plan outlined here in this article may be adopted.

In my own case it came about because of perversity on the part of nature.

That circumstance provided a long period of drought immediately after planting and many plants of the local stream dried up completely.

My bed flourished and was soon providing the household with plants.

One bucket of water a day had been given for several weeks.

A watercress bed can be made at any time of the year; in the early spring a situation in a shady part of the garden or a damp shady position where nothing else will grow may provide the ideal site.

DIG TRENCHES

The dimension will depend upon circumstance, but a simple plan is to dig a trench about two feet deep and place in it a nine-inch layer of farmyard manure or good compost.

signs of flowering the whole crop may be cut well back and the plants allowed to rest.

Those who wish for a constant supply of watercress may prefer to make two or three beds rather than one large bed, in this way it is possible to have young plants by division.

As weeds revel in a rich soil they must be watched and checked.

Winter Construction Work Calls for Change in Habit

Seasonal unemployment in Victoria and the rest of Canada is partly a matter of weather, partly of habit.

That's the opinion of James Fox, National Employment Service manager in Victoria. "Concerted action by governments, industry, national and local bodies and private citizens has been bent, in recent years, on changing a national habit of thought which regarded seasonal unemployment as inevitable," he said.

Publicity campaigns again this year are reaching out into all parts of the country to stimulate efforts of local firms and citizens generally to plan their activities so as to build up employment opportunities wherever possible this winter, he said.

This campaign, now under way here, is a long-term program which requires determined efforts of a large number of people in all walks of life.

"Provision of more winter work produces widespread benefits throughout the country," Mr. Fox said. "Unemployment means a loss of trade to industry and a waste of manpower that can never be made good."

Tradition and habit are largely responsible for the idea that winter construction is more expensive and not as high in quality as summer construction, he said. "But new materials and equipment have resulted in the development of construction techniques which, in effect, control the weather on a building site."

"Proper planning of all stages and protection during the progress of certain parts of the work have made it feasible to carry out construction of equal quality to that of other seasons."

"In addition, factors such as greater availability of skilled labor, materials and equipment during winter, and earlier completion of projects, can result in a saving in net costs."

'DO IT NOW' DRIVE MAKING GOOD PROGRESS

Manager of the National Employment Service here, J. H. Fox, said today he "is very pleased with the progress to date of the 'Do It Now' campaign" designed to help relieve unemployment.

"There is a definite indication that the project is successful," he added, but stated that actual results were difficult to assess as much of the hiring would be done directly by contractors and not through NES offices.

DIVIDING LINES

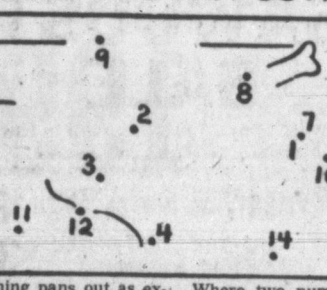

You have sixty minutes with which to play around in this test, but only one minute to answer. The question is this: The clock face at the top of this diagram shows five dividing lines. Notice that the numbers present in each segment total 13. You are asked to divide the second clockface similarly, but using only two dividing lines, so that the numbers in each of the three segments thus attained total 26. Remember, there's a one-minute time limit.

Water, you know
What goes under the water, over the water, yet never touches the water?
Answer: A person crossing a bridge.

RIDDLE

To what number can you add a letter and make it three less?
Answer: Six (which is spelled by putting the letter S to IX (9)).

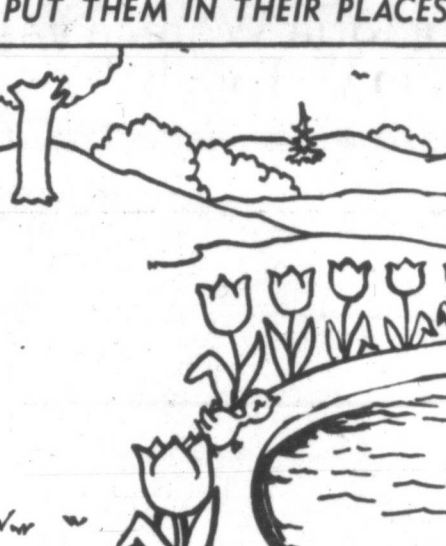

PERSON OF STRENGTH

At your next party or family get-together, ask someone if he is aware of how much strength you have at your fingertips. To prove your point, this is what you do: Stand with your elbows bent and your fingers touching as shown in the illustration. Have another person with strength about equal to yours, grab your left wrist with one hand and your right wrist with the other. Tell him to make sure he has a good grip. When he reaffirms this, tell him you defy him to pull your fingertips apart. That is to say, he must separate your fingertips by pulling your wrists outward horizontally.

Unless he possesses unusual strength, no matter how hard he tries he will not succeed. Your fingertips may separate if he pulls one hand up and the other down, but they will not pull apart by pressure exerted outward.

B.C.'s Highway Program Hit

Government Not Doing All It Claims Says Strachan—Trans-Canada Delayed

CCF Leader Robert Strachan claimed Friday the government's road-building program is not all that it's cracked up to be.

In the 1956-57 fiscal year, "this government wasn't doing all the work it was bragging about," he said in the Legislature.

Mr. Strachan said it did only enough work on the Trans-Canada Highway to collect $7, 000,000 from the federal government in matching grants, instead of the $15,000,000 it had estimated at the start of the year.

"It isn't how much money you spend," Highway Minister P. A. Gagliardi boomed across at him, "it's how much road you build."

Later, Premier Bennett admitted the government had deliberately held back its Trans-Canada highway program during the year because it was negotiating a better deal with Ottawa at the time.

Instead of the straight 50-50 split of costs, the federal government now contributes 90 per cent of the cost of some sections.

The provincial government would have been "foolish" to go ahead with contracts in the 1956-57 year on the old cost-sharing basis, the premier said.

CCFer DOUBTS B.C. HARD UP

CCF Leader Robert Strachan doesn't go along with the theory that the Social Credit government is short of money.

"I don't believe that," Mr. Strachan said Friday during a debate in the legislature on the unemployment problem. "I think this government has lots of money."

The government should use some of it to help combat unemployment, the opposition leader said.

CITY WON'T GO DRY

Watershed Requires Supply Facilities

By PETE LOUDON

Greater Victoria watersheds in the Malahat-Sooke Lake area can provide almost three times the water required by the population area they now serve.

But present supply installations will be adequate for only 20,000 more people than the 130,000 tapturbers now on the pipelines.

These and other interesting facts are a condensed version of the annual report presented to Greater Victoria Water District this week by commissioner Ronald Upward.

Mr. Upward discounts any suggestion of this area outgrowing its water supply. But his report underlines the need to expand supply facilities by future completion of a five-mile tunnel between Sooke Lake and Japan Gulch reservoir, and a new covered 7,000,000 gallon reservoir in Mount Tolmie area.

The tunnel would replace a pipeline which now runs around the mountain it would pierce, reducing the length of the flow route from 135,000 feet to 27,000 feet, greatly increasing the capacity and removing maintenance costs.

Plea Made to Save Fernie From Fate of Ghost Town

The provincial government was urged in the legislature Friday to seek some means of saving the city of Fernie from becoming a ghost town.

The city is threatened by closure of the Crow's Nest Coal Co. colliery at Elk River, putting 400 miners out of work.

The subject was raised in the House by George Gregory (Lib.-Victoria), who said a delegation of Fernie officials which met with the cabinet earlier in the day was disappointed because it received no commitment from the government.

"They were desperate," Mr. Gregory said.

He moved an amendment during the debate on unemployment that the situation faced by Fernie be given priority by the House labor committee. The government rejected the amendment, but later accepted a separate motion having the same effect.

UPHILL LEADS

Tom Uphill, veteran labor member for Fernie, made a passionate plea on behalf of his constituents.

No company should have the right, Mr. Uphill said, to close down a mine at a moment's notice without making some compensation to the people who had spent their lives there.

He urged Premier Bennett to consult with Premier Manning of Alberta on the situation. The Alberta government is interested, Mr. Uphill said, because a number of the miners live in Alberta and work at the Elk River colliery.

Randolph Harding (CCF—Kaslo-Slocan), said Fernie is "faced with a disaster that must be averted."

Leo Nimsick (CCF, Cranbrook) said the government should call in officials of the Crow's Nest Coal Co. and ask them to give their reasons for closing down the colliery.

Mines Minister Kiernan said the government had told the company that it had acted "rather abruptly."

However, the minister said the company maintains that as the result of the railroad's conversion to diesel engines, the advent of natural gas and failure to secure overseas markets made it uneconomic to operate two collieries. It plans to keep the colliery at Michel going, he said.

Young Liberals Win Revolt Over 'Old Guard'

Times Staff Reporter
VANCOUVER—B.C.'s Young Liberals swept to victory over the party's "old guard" this morning at the first annual convention here by forcing the resolutions committee to submit all resolutions to delegates. The revolt broke out on the floor of the convention after resolutions committee chairman Forrest L. Shaw of Victoria revealed that some of more than 100 resolutions submitted by ridings and associations had been consolidated and some "discarded because of policy."

Ron Lyon, president of the Vancouver-Burrard division five—a stronghold of young Liberals—launched the revolt by demanding that all resolutions sent in by ridings, the Young Liberals and the Liberal Women's Association, be presented to the delegates.

"Our new constitution clearly says the committee's job is only to compile and present all the resolutions, not to decide which ones will be submitted," he said.

He charged that at least 12 resolutions, "all of a controversial nature," had been dropped by the committee and made a motion that all be stenciled and distributed during the afternoon.

The motion, seconded by Kathy Sanjean, secretary of the

B.C. Young Liberals' Association, carried without an opposing vote following a flurry of impassioned debate.

T. R. Burnett, Vancouver, Quadra member of the resolutions committee, said, in a vigorous defence of the committee's actions, that no resolutions had been discarded.

"Some have been re-worded to consolidate a number of similar resolutions," he said, "but no resolution has been discarded."

Mr. Lyon countered that he knew at least one resolution—urging disclosure of all campaign funds by political candidates—from his group had been discarded.

Mr. Shaw said there were about 60 resolutions from Young Liberals and it would be virtually impossible to have them all typed out for the afternoon session.

This was countered by an unidentified girl who said the Young Liberal resolutions already were available on stencils.

Gerald Duffus, president of the Terrace and District Liberal Association, demanded that the convention reserve some time for discussion of a Liberal reorganization in the province.

"We are not getting through to the small man," he said. "And if we go back to our people and tell them we heard (national leader) Pearson, Sinclair, and (provincial leader) Laing it will make everyone go to sleep."

"What we need is something new. We have two years to win a provincial election and at the same time we should be keeping our eyes on Ottawa as well as Victoria."

Applause greeted his question:

"How many people will now say that Gordon Gibson (former Liberal MLA who attacked the Secord's forest policy) has not rendered people of this province an enormous service?"

Mr. Laing said Premier Bennett's methods of "getting things done through money power" had resulted in ministerial decisions becoming the order of the day with "disposition of huge sums of money demanded of the legislature, turned over to small groups of cabinet ministers... without benefit of inspection of any public accounts."

He said the Secord methods

Confidence Vote Accorded Laing

By Times Staff Reporter
VANCOUVER — Provincial Liberal leader Arthur Laing today told the first annual Liberal convention here that a special leadership meeting should be called.

"Our leadership at every level, and foremost of all my own, must be given the most rigorous inspection," he told the 200 delegates.

He said growing disillusion with the Social Credit government offered "new and great responsibilities to our party."

"For this reason it would seem imperative that the general convention of the party (required by the constitution for choosing a leader) be held at the earliest practical moment."

ALWAYS AVAILABLE

He indicated he had no intention of resigning by saying his services were always available.

Moments after he finished a lengthy attack on the Secord administration, he was given a virtual vote of confidence by the delegates.

When a resolution expressing confidence in his leadership came up, Victorians Hugh Botterell and Hugh Ramsay moved and seconded that it be tabled until a general meeting is held.

However, the delegates voted the threat down—in effect a reaffirmation of confidence in Mr. Laing, elected leader since 1953, and defeated in the provincial by-election last year.

Gov't Boosts Provincial Tax Shares $87 Million

B.C. Receives $5.5 Million

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government plans to give an additional $87,206,000 to the provinces in the next fiscal year starting April 1 without a new federal-provincial money conference, Finance Minister Donald Fleming announced today.

His statement to the Commons said that the federal government will give the provinces more leeway in collecting income tax without double taxation and will also provide direct cash grants from the treasury to the four Atlantic Provinces.

The Atlantic grants amount to $25,000,000 a year for the next four fiscal years. The other $62,000,000 may be collected by the provinces in personal income taxes given up by the federal government.

As an "interim" measure, the central government will allow the provinces to take over 13 per cent of the tax liability of individuals to the federal treasury. The previous federal offer to the provinces for tax-sharing agreements was 10 per cent.

(British Columbia receives an extra $5,563,000 under the new tax-sharing proposals, but due to the weekend shutdown at the Legislative Buildings, no expression of opinion could be obtained from the provincial government.)

(Premier Bennett, who is also finance minister, has an unlisted telephone number and his secretary, Ron Worley, said he could not be reached today.)

Russ Ready To Discuss Missile Ban

LONDON (AP)—Soviet Communist Party boss Nikita Khrushchev was reported by Moscow Radio tonight to be ready to discuss a ban on intercontinental ballistic missiles as part of a general disarmament agreement.

The Soviet news agency Tass published his speech today.

The broadcast said he stipulated that the West must first agree to a ban on nuclear weapons, an end to nuclear tests and the liquidation of overseas military bases.

The West has acknowledged that the Soviet Union is the only power at present capable of firing intercontinental ballistic missiles—possibly with a hydrogen bomb warhead.

EARLY ELECTION HINT REPEATED BY JOHN D.

By VICTOR MACKIE, Times Ottawa Correspondent
OTTAWA — Prime Minister John Diefenbaker threw out another deliberate hint of an early election when he spoke in the House of Commons Friday on the government's farm price stabilization bill. His statement strengthened speculation that the election will come on March 31 or April 14.

"The opportunity may not be too long delayed for the people to have the privilege of saying what they think of this legislation," he told the House.

B.C. Unhappy With New Plan For Hospitals

B.C. Health Minister Eric Martin today expressed "great disappointment" when told of the newly announced federal government policy of hospital grants.

The new policy, announced in Ottawa by Health Minister J. Waldo Monteith in many cases will double the previous assistance given for construction of new hospitals.

He said they were designed "both to facilitate hospital construction and to alleviate shortages of employment in the construction industry."

"The mountain has labored and brought forth a mouse," commented Mr. Martin.

"Even though they have doubled many of these grants, they are still poor by comparison with the B.C. government grants of 50 per cent of the total cost."

In Ottawa Mr. Monteith said the federal grants will be calculated on the following basis:

For acute-case beds, $2,000 instead of the present $1,000.

For chronic-case beds, including mental and tubercular, $2,000 instead of the present $1,500.

Nurses' residence beds, $750 instead of $500.

Internes quarters on the same basis as nurses.

Bed equivalents, such as the present computation of three new baby bassinets equalling one acute bed, $2,000 instead of $1,000.

"For a long time," Mr. Martin said, "the provincial government and the hospitals of B.C. have attempted to obtain an upward adjustment of the federal grants in aid for construction purposes, long recognized as inadequate. Now they have been doubled but they still do not compare favorably with the provincial government's grants of 50 per cent of the total cost."

B.C. Rate Highest in Canada

"The provincial government grants come to between $6,000 and $8,000 per bed and this is the highest rate paid in Canada."

"At the present time, 1,380 acute care beds are in course of construction in B.C., at a total cost of $21,000,000. Our share of this is approximately $10,000,000 or $11,000,000."

"Because of the provincial government's grants, hospital construction has already been stimulated in B.C.," the minister added.

"In the last five years construction, current construction and construction-to-be has amounted to $50,000,000."

'Playing Politics' Charge Fans House Jobless Debate

By PETER MURRAY

Unemployment touched off an unscheduled and angry debate in the legislature Friday.

The traditional second-day procedure was shattered when Opposition Leader Robert Strachan rose at the start of the sitting to move that the Throne Speech debate be adjourned to allow immediate discussion of the unemployment problem.

The government voted him down after Speaker Hugh Shantz had ruled the motion out of order, but opened the gates to the debate by moving another motion that unemployment be referred to the House labor committee.

The words flew thick and fast, with each side accusing the other of "playing politics" with the unemployment situation.

It was a harrowing baptism of fire for Speaker Shantz, who was just elected to the chair on opening-day Thursday.

The debate—mainly between CCF Leader Strachan and Premier Bennett—crackled for about an hour, then fell away into a hassle over amendments and amendments to amendments.

Final vote on Labor Minister

Wick's motion to refer the subject to the labor committee was taken at 5 p.m., two hours after the sitting began.

The vote was unanimous, with the reluctant support of the Opposition.

"Half a loaf is better than none," said Mr. Strachan, who said the problem was a matter

There'll be some o' th' Young Lib'als, no doubt, who'll say "Laing may yer hum reek."

Looks like there'll be no unemployment in th' Legislature, long's there's unemployment t' talk about.

Lot o' th' benefit o' harnessin' th' hydrogen atom will depend on whose wagon's goin' t' be hitched t' it.

LONDON (UP)—Newcastle, a six-time winner of British soccer's coveted Football Association Cup, was eliminated in today's fourth round of the trophy competition by Scunthorpe of the Third Division, 3-1.

While the First Division club was humiliated on its own field by Scunthorpe, Tottenham of the First Division also was upset. Sheffield United, whose forwards mastered the ice-covered Tottenham field, scored a 3-0 shutout.

The fourth round matches and today's other regular season contests were played in the worst playing conditions of the season. The players slithered on thawing snow or ice. Two of the scheduled 16 fourth-round cup matches were postponed because officials considered the men could not play on the fields.

York City held Bolton of the First Division to a scoreless tie. Darlington, another Third Division club, held Chelsea to a 3-3 draw.

Manchester United, favorite to win this year's cup at Wembley Stadium May 3, had to work hard to defeat Ipswich, 2-0. Wolverhampton, the league leader, romped to a 5-1 victory over Portsmouth in its cup game.

NORMAN CRIBBENS

IN THE
LEGISLATURE

When people stand up in the public galleries, as they did Friday afternoon, you can be sure something exciting is happening on the floor of the House.

So it was that both men and women rose to their feet during the unexpected hassle on unemployment which developed between Premier Bennett and CCF leader Robert Strachan—and were as quickly ordered to sit down.

"No standing in the galleries, please," said the attendant.

This is apt to be provoking when you are stretching your neck to get a proper view of Premier Bennett's quivering forefinger (pronouncing doom on the CCF) or Mr. Strachan shaking his fist at the government.

One elderly gentleman was so irritated by being told to sit down during these exchanges that he turned to the attendant and said:

"Am I permitted to stand in order to leave this place?"

The attendant nodded and the gentleman left in what looked like a bit of a huff.

Pleasantries Between Bennett, Uphill

The premier was in full flood when for some strange reason Tom Uphill, the pukeish 83-year-old Labor member from Fernie, raised the glass of water on his desk and smiling across at Mr. Bennett, said: "I drink your health."

The premier, of course, made full use of this.

"There," he cried, pointing at Mr. Uphill. "There is the only genuine Labor man in this house. He drinks my health because he knows I am sincere when I say this government has the interests of labor at heart."

Mr. Uphill bowed an acknowledgment. Some of the CCF members started to laugh, but broke off quickly when they realized the premier was not just patting his government on the back but Mr. Uphill as well. And Tom, with his 38 years' consecutive experience in the House, is respected by all.

When Premier Bennett gets worked up his words have a habit of coming out in a rush, one on top of the other.

"Th-banks-are-to-blame," he exploded.

Then hastened to say that

Cariboo Member Makes Good Debut

Young William Speare, the new Social Credit member for Cariboo, made his debut two hours late because of the unemployment debate.

He received a thunderous welcome and spoke in a firm, strong voice that promises well in future debates. His tribute to the late Ralph Chetwynd, his predecessor, was well and tastefully expressed.

Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross ignored a severe pain in his back in order to deliver the Throne Speech in the legislature Thursday.

He was suffering from what is believed to be a slipped spinal disc, but insisted on attending the house opening as the Queen's representative.

His Honor suffered this injury several days ago. He has been undergoing twice-daily medical treatment and is under doctor's orders to rest as much as possible.

Two Police Departments Deny Gorge Crime in Their Bailiwick

A houseboat break-in and theft last Sunday on the Gorge turned into a week-long jurisdictional dispute between police departments asked to investigate.

Entry to his houseboat and theft of $100 worth of gear was reported to Esquimalt police by owner P. J. Smith, 334 Goldstream, last Sunday.

Esquimalt police, who agreed to carry out an investigation, claimed Gorge waters were RCMP territory.

Mr. Smith called Colwood RCMP, who referred him to Esquimalt. RCMP headquarters told him to see Saanich police, who in turn suggested he take the matter back to Esquimalt.

Mr. Smith has offered a $25

reward for recovery of the gear and Sunday is sending a frogman into the Gorge to see if it was dumped overboard.

If he finds the equipment the frogman gets the $25.

Meanwhile the attorney-general's department is expected to rule on jurisdiction so that charges could be laid if inquiries are successful.

Break-in was between midnight Saturday and 10 a.m. Sunday. A lock was broken to gain entrance to the vessel, anchored about 150 feet from the foot of Arcadia. A seacock was opened but became clogged with seaweed before much water was taken.

WHAT'S

of urgent public business and should be discussed immediately.

Finally, at 5.07, William Speare, the newly-elected Social Credit member for Cariboo, arose to move the reply to the Speech from the Throne.

The unemployment debate almost precipitated a night sitting, but the House was adjourned until 2 p.m. Monday when Mr. Speare finished his 35-minute speech.

Gordon Gibson, new government member for Delta, who was to have seconded the reply to the Throne Speech Friday, will speak first on Monday. He will be followed by Mr. Strachan, who will launch the Throne Speech debate.

During Friday's debate, Premier Bennett accused the opposition, specifically Mr. Strachan, of being "discourteous" to the new members in holding up their speeches.

The CCF leader touched off the battle by asking leave of the House for an adjournment to discuss unemployment.

Speaker Shantz, previously forewarned by Mr. Strachan of his intended motion, ruled that it was out of order.

The Speaker agreed that unemployment is a matter of urgent public business, but said the motion was out of order because it "anticipated" business to come before the legislature at a later time in the session.

This was because unemployment had been mentioned in the Throne Speech as a matter which would be considered by the House.

NOT OUTSTRIPPED BY BRITAIN

American H-Bomb Tamers 'In Step'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congressional atomic specialists today appeared generally satisfied that the United States is not being outstripped in the effort to harness the H-bomb reaction for electric power.

"We're keeping our end up," was the tone of comment by members of the Senate House of Representatives atomic energy committee who were questioned about Friday's joint British-U.S. announcement on the break-through.

The atomic agencies of the two allies announced "fruitful and promising results" from separate laboratory-scale experiments in both countries, but said practical power from hydrogen fusion still is years away.

The announcement came after a series of stories in British newspapers that Britain had achieved a significant break-through in this research, but that U.S. pressure had prevented its announcement until American achievements could be shown in a good light.

There seemed little disposition among committee members here, even among some who have been critical of U.S. Atomic Energy Commission policies, to accept this view of the situation.

In fact, representative James Van Zandt of Pennsylvania said his principal interest was "to see that we got enough credit in the announcement."

"Without the information our people furnished, the British could not have accomplished what they did."

Chairman Carl Durham said the U.S. program seems to him to be "well along—I see no basis for thinking we were outstripped by the British."

A congressional source who asked not be quoted by name said he thinks the U.S. announcement was "perhaps unnecessarily defensive in tone—we stand up fully in comparison with the British."

"Unfortunately, the effort has become embroiled in politics in both countries—but especially in Britain, where the Opposition is trying to make an issue by charging the government with knuckling

under to the United States and keeping British scientists' achievements under wraps."

This source suggested also that both countries may be holding back some even more promising information in hopes of making a better showing at the September session of the International Atomic Energy Agency in Geneva. Russia, an agency member, will also be demonstrating progress in its admittedly well advanced program to achieve useful power from hydrogen fusion.

LESSONS IN LISTENING

After a two-week delay, due to illness, the lecture-recital series, "A Way of Listening to Music," will open Feb. 4 at Victoria College. Harry Adaskin, violinist, and Frances Marr, pianist, will present eight weekly sessions of discussion and performance, ranging from Bach to Copland. Enrollment is large to date and further registrations should be made prior to first session.

Modest Livelihood Rattigan's Choice

By WALLACE RAYBURN

LONDON—On the basis of output over the years and current production, Terence Rattigan and Noel Coward share the honors as far as being England's leading playwright of today is concerned. But they have a basic difference of attitude about all the money that pours into their coffers. Forty-four-year-old Rattigan, back from a visit to the U.S., tells of a meeting with self-exiled Coward.

"I do understand how he feels," says Rattigan, "and I don't want to sound too pompous over this, but I just feel, as I told Noel, that I would rather live in England than anywhere else in the world and I am prepared to pay for the privilege."

The sort of money that is rolling in for Rattigan can be gauged from the fact that his separate tables on Broadway made $30,000 a week, there was $350,000 in advance bookings for The Sleeping Prince, his fee for the film rights of The Sleeping Prince went into six figures, he has sold the film rights of his 1942 play Flare Path and the 1946 play Love in Idleness, etc. etc.

But for "the privilege of living in England," he must restrict himself to living on $13,500 a year. His accountant keeps him strictly to this annual salary. If he goes over it, he's in tax trouble. He lives in a simple little house in Berkshire and has a small, not palatial, top-floor flat on London's Eaton Square.

For the entire balance of the program, Clifford Evans is undertaking the task of his life, for he is soloist in that most challenging of all classical violin concertos, the one by Johannes Brahms.

NONE SO CRUEL

The truth is that, while there may be violin concertos that sound difficult to the listener, there is none that is so cruel to the virtuoso-violinist.

Why? Simply because Brahms was the first and foremost the surpassingly great creator of music, and had only secondary regard as to what is possible upon an instrument. He was not

HANS GRUBER CONDUCTS

Contrasts in Period and Style Feature of Next Concert Pair

There will be a change in the program for the next pair of symphony subscription concerts on Sunday afternoon and Monday evening, Feb. 3 and 4. The Leonore Overture No. 1, by Beethoven, will replace the originally announced Overture in G-Minor, by Bruckner. That is all.

Hans Gruber

We decided upon this change after searching re-examination of the structure and balance of this particular program, and are satisfied that it will improve these factors. To those of you who may have particularly looked forward to the Bruckner, we promise that it will be rescheduled at the earliest appropriate opportunity. And for those (everyone, I am sure) familiar with the famous Leonore Overture No. 3, interest may attach to the first live performance in Victoria of the first Leonore Overture—one of four overtures Beethoven wrote for his one and only operatic masterpiece, Fidelio.

This is to be followed by a very beautiful, simple, short, and quiet piece—the Pavane by Gabriel Faure. It came into being as a self-contained little composition, but was subsequently used by the composer as part of his Peléas et Melisande suite.

In contrast, again Stravinski's ballet suite, "Firebird," will bring the first half to a close. Igor Stravinski, perhaps the most celebrated and influential of contemporary composers, is celebrating his 75th birthday this year, which is being observed by the entire musical world by means of even more frequent presentation of his great output.

PERMANENT

Not that any such artificial excuse need be seized upon for playing his music, which, to a greater extent than the works of any other "modern" composer, has found a secure and permanent place in the hearts and ears of this generation of concert-goers.

The Firebird Suite, together with the other two ballets that make up this trilogy Stravinski wrote in 1911-13 on commission from the legendary impresario-choreographer, Sergei Diaghilev—Petroushka and The Rite of Spring—are among the most valuable of authentic 20th century masterpieces.

The version to be heard next weekend here is the one the composer revised in 1919 especially for the purpose of concert-performance, minus the dancing girls.

For the entire balance of the program, Clifford Evans is undertaking the task of his life, for he is soloist in that most challenging of all classical violin concertos, the one by Johannes Brahms.

NONE SO CRUEL

The truth is that, while there may be violin concertos that sound difficult to the listener, there is none that is so cruel to the virtuoso-violinist.

Why? Simply because Brahms was the first and foremost the surpassingly great creator of music, and had only secondary regard as to what is possible upon an instrument. He was not himself an active executant upon a string instrument though he pretended to consult his great contemporary violinist, Joseph Joachim, in matters of technique of the instrument. But woe was to poor Joachim when he acceded to Brahms' request for advice! It was thoroughly, utterly, completely disregarded by the composer, save for a historic tongue-lashing which was the only thanks Joachim received for his trouble.

Let him — Joachim — take heart, in whichever of the two likeliest places he may now be for it is his cadenza in the first movement that is in exclusive and universal use today. ONLY EQUAL

Otherwise, however, let us be thankful (I don't know though about violinists) that Brahms stuck to his guns. For his violin concerto is the only work of his kind that can stand, fully equal, beside the other extant violin concerto that makes up this duo of the greatest of all violin concertos — the one by Beethoven.

Brahms Condemned By Contemporaries

By HUMPHRY DAVY

"I do not like and cannot like the C minor symphony of Brahms. . . I am willing to admit without argument that the symphony is grand and impressive and all that. So is a Channel fog. . . This C minor symphony seems to me the apotheosis of arrogance."

An outspoken opinion, isn't it, but it's not mine. It was written by Philip Hale, music critic for the Boston Journal in 1893.

It just goes to show that some of the works of the 19th century sounded as unpleasantly in the ears of that age as our contemporary composers do to many of us.

The program notes for a new Epic recording (LC3379) of this symphony, contain some other revealing comments by critics of the day. Here is one that strikes home. It is what the Boston Daily Advertiser had to say about the symphony in 1878:

"Johannes Brahms is a modern of the moderns, and his C minor symphony is a remarkable expression of the inner life of this anxious, introverted and over-earnest age."

Seems to me that some people are saying the same thing about this age.

Another U.S. critic thundered that every note in the symphony "drew blood."

No one can say that these 19th century American music critics were inhibited, but they certainly were not perceptive or far-seeing. Brahms music today ranks among the most popular in the classical literature.

The reaction of 19th century music critics to new compositions raises an important point. How many of us are capable of recognizing a work of art. How many of the much criticized

The first movement finds Brahms in the loftiest of his many heroic flights of fancy, notwithstanding the irresistibly tender second main melody. When the (Joachim) cadenza leads directly into this, it is one of those moments in music when time stands still.

The second movement begins with an extended oboe solo—perhaps the most famous for that instrument together with the oboe solo of the funeral march in Beethoven's Eroica symphony.

The Finale is the sublimation of Brahms' life-long love of Hungarian gypsy music.

Mr. Evans and I have waited for a long time to play the Brahms violin concerto for you. We have spoken and thought about it for many seasons now. In short, regard its forthcoming performance—and should like you so to regard it, too—as one of the most important events of this or any season.

And just how many other orchestras can boast of a concertmaster to whom the solo part of the Brahms violin concerto could be entrusted? You may need but the odd toe in addition to the fingers of your hands to count them.

(BB PLUS) "APRIL LOVE" (Royal)—After the recent deluge of rock-'n'-roll films featuring rebels, reveals and devils "April Love" emerges as sweet and wholesome as a sniff of fresh-baked bread. What is more, the musical stars two of the most engaging and handsome youngsters ever starred together, Pat Boone and Shirley Jones.

Although it might not have quite the casual 'slap-happiness' of Boone's first starrer, "Bernadine," it has a stronger plot and boasts color and country background that this dirty old hydrogen-bombed world of ours takes on that precious breathless quality reserved for the eyes of the young and in love.

"April Love" starts off with Boone arriving at the farm of his bitter uncle Arthur O'Connell from Chicago where he has been let out on parole after having been involved in a stolen car incident. At first the big city boy is all thumbs when it comes to horses and chores but he displays a neat hand at mechanics and an even neater hand at wooing the two gorgeous sisters who live in the adjoining farm, Shirley and Dolores Michaels.

Eventually, of course, Boone becomes more adept at his chores, wins over his uncle and his uncle's trotter and winds up winning Shirley as well.

But the plot is just a background for the gay swirl of youth. There is the colorful rock-'n'-roll session at the country club, the happy day at the county fair and some entertaining sulky racing. Throughout the 97 minutes running time Boone and Shirley find time to sing some fair numbers including "April Love," "Clover in the Meadow" and "Give Me a Gentle Girl."

(B) "BOMBERS B-52" (Capitol)—Those who enjoy watching the mighty bombers of the U.S. whoom through the skies may find a few minutes enjoying this in Warner Brothers' picture. But it is only fair to warn them that they will have to sit through a highly improbable plot to get them.

The plot goes like this. Natalie Wood thinks daddy Karl Malden should get out of the air force and go into private business and "get somewhere," meaning, of course, that she is more than somewhat ashamed of her old man.

Daddy, however, a true blue flyboy, is proud of his sergeant's stripes and believes he is doing very well as he is, both for himself and for his country. But instead of bending daughter over his knees and lustily smiting the place made for smites he turns in his resignation. Meanwhile daughter falls in love with daddy's new C.O. but daddy thinks the colonel has had too much experience pulling rickshaws in other theatres and places the kids out-of-bounds to each other.

Miss Wood's acting is something not to behold.

Torin Thatcher, formerly a lieutenant-colonel in the British Army, didn't mind playing a sergeant in "Darby's Rangers."

"The pay is better," he said.

ENDS TONIGHT "THE KING AND I" Starring DEBORAH KERR, YUL BRYNNER

This magnificent film has been called "entertainment perfection" by all critics without exception. It is a picture which has everything one could desire for sheer entertainment—romance, drama, music, exotic color and beauty, and children. A picture that will hold the attention of the family as it tells the story of the English governess who went out to the palace of the King of Siam to educate his children in the ways of Western civilization.

A tremendous production in the new Technicolor process known as "Cinemacolor 15." To avoid disappointment, we urge you to see this picture from the beginning and as soon as possible. THREE DAYS ONLY. No increase in prices.

Miss Anderson, one of the world's great singers, was barred because of her race from singing in Constitution Hall here in April, 1939.

The daughters of the American Revolution, who own the hall, would not permit Negro performers to appear. In protest Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt arranged for Miss Anderson to sing on the steps of the Lincoln Memorial.

Since then much has changed. The DAR has long since ended its race barrier in Constitution Hall and Miss Anderson has sung there a number of times. Recently she made a world tour in behalf of the U.S. information agency.

Ballet dancing has all sorts of derivative uses. In the case of Finnish star Taina Elg it helped her come back from a 26-day tour of the country looking fresh as a daisy. Miss Elg, whose trip was to promote "Les Girls," said such traveling was relatively easy because of her trouping with the Marquis de Cuevas ballet before she undertook a film career.

Speculative Trend Boosts Trading on Canadian Marts

By RON ANDREWS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Speculative buying and selling this week helped create the heaviest trading in three months on Canadian stock markets.

Penny speculative mines were up and down in a narrow range.

An underwriting on New Mylamarque shares Jan. 17 set the stage for that stock's 1,000,000 share turnover Monday on the Toronto Stock Exchange.

It climbed from 19 cents to 36 1/2 cents in the week, closing with a 48-cent gain, a 23 1/2 per cent.

Its volume for the week was 2,932,453 shares, biggest total for any stock since last summer.

Trading on the entire Toronto market Monday totalled 4,648,000 shares, heaviest since Oct. 17, and of that volume more than one-half the total was produced by 10 mines selling at less than 40 cents a share.

Will the medicine speed the end of the slump?

DESIRE IMPORTANT

Senator Paul Douglas (Dem., Ill.) commented: "We need not only available credit, but a desire on the part of business if we're going to have an upturn."

President Eisenhower, in his economic report to Congress, said in effect: Consumers haven't stopped spending. Production has sagged because retailers, wholesalers and manufacturers have been getting rid of surplus stocks.

It predicted business will pick up when inventories get down and said this would be by or before mid-year. If a recovery does not come, Washington served notice it will keep pushing anti-recession programs.

A week ago the federal reserve used another of its weapons to give the economy a psychological shot-in-the-arm. That took the form of a cut in margins on stock purchases.

During the week, key business indicators showed mixed trends. Steel operations were off a bit. Auto production rose but retail sales continued well below earlier forecasts.

Railroad freight carloadings climbed slightly but still were about 13 per cent below loadings a year ago. Recent head-aches of the railroads were given emphasis when the Pennsylvania and New York Central both deferred paying their common stock dividends. The Pennsylvania, largest carrier in the United States, reported its 1957 earnings fell to $1.45 a share from $3.16 in 1956.

Logger Drowns In Overturning Of Small Boat

From CP Dispatches

UCLUELET — An employee of the Kennedy Lake Logging Company drowned late Thursday in Kennedy Lake, near here, RCMP announced Friday.

The dead man was Richard Dudley Smith, who had set out in a 12-foot skiff to move to another logging camp. Later the overturned boat was found and a search party organized.

He leaves a wife and six young children at Kennedy Lake.

BOGUS BILL

PRINCE GEORGE — An American tourist is to appear in police court here Jan. 29, charged with issuing a bogus $100 Confederate bill. Mrs. Patricia Whitehurst, who pleaded guilty to the charge when she appeared in court here Jan. 13 without counsel, has changed her plea to one of not guilty and engaged a lawyer to defend her.

JAIL IN WOUNDING

FARMERS URGE BOOST IN BUTTER FLOOR PRICE

QUEBEC (CP) — A resolution asking a boost in the government floor price for butter to 64 cents a pound from the present 58 cents was adopted Friday night at the annual convention of Dairy Farmers of Canada.

The association said present costs are exerting undue pressure on producers and the price should be raised May 1 when the term for the 58-cent support ends.

The association also resolved to ask the government to adopt a more realistic method of establishing prices, using farm production costs rather than retail prices as the main basis.

Auto Workers Force Showdown at Chrysler

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers Union may call a strike on one of the big three car manufacturers two months ahead of the time talks are scheduled to get under way on new contracts.

The UAW executive board Friday approved calling a strike at Chrysler Corp.'s Detroit Dodge main plant in a dispute over layoffs and work standards. The union served a five-day strike notice on Chrysler.

The strike threat was announced during the final session of the union's special three-day convention that approved 1958 bargaining demands, including a profit-sharing plan, and set up a $50,000 strike fund.

COMPLETE SHUTDOWN

The 3,000 delegates from the United States and Canada were adopting a resolution on how to deal with what the union calls speed-up practices in the auto industry when UAW vice-president Norman Matthews announced: "We will have a showdown at Chrysler."

Matthews, director of the union's Chrysler department said a strike at the Dodge main plant "will shut down all Chrysler plants." The plant is a major supplier of parts for all Chrysler divisions.

Matthews said the company contended that UAW members did more work at Ford and Whisky Makers In U.S. Oppose Any Tariff Cut

WASHINGTON (CP) — U.S. whisky makers protested today that they can't sell their product in Canada because most of the provincial liquor commissions simply refuse to buy and stock it.

Opposing any reduction in the present U.S. tariff on whisky imports from Canada and Britain, Dan Street of the Distilled Spirits Institute said American whisky should be allowed to compete on Canadian and British markets "with the same freedom enjoyed by their products" in the U.S.

He said more than $60,000,000 worth of Canadian whisky was imported to the U.S. in 1956. The present tariff is about $1.25 a gallon.

Street said Canada's federal government imposes no quotas or legal restrictions on importing American whisky to Canada, but provincial distributing commissions do not stock it in any great quantity.

SPORTSCRIPT

BY ERNIE FEDORUK

While it is fairly certain that the Campbell brothers of Avonlea won't be coming to Victoria in March as Saskatchewan representatives in the Canadian curling championships, the all-brother rink continues to keep in the news.

And back on the Prairies, where curling rates second only to wheat in news value, the roarin' game has taken on the aspects of an international incident.

The Prairie lads are up in arms over a ruling by the Ontario Curling Association that has ousted two of the Campbells—Don and Garnet—from competitive curling in the eastern province. In Saskatchewan, the curling fraternity regards the Campbells in the same light that Montreal's hockey population regards Maurice Richard.

OCA officials have branded the Campbells as "professionals" although the OCA did never clearly define the difference between an amateur and a professional. Their rather vague ruling said anyone playing the game "for material gain" is a professional.

The OCA made its classic ruling without specifically mentioning any names. But the good burghers of Saskatchewan believe it was pointed directly at the Campbells. For the record, the OCA edict might prevent Victoria ice-maker (and newly-crowned Vancouver Island champion) Tony Gutoski from participating in bonspiels if it became a Dominion ruling.

But is Gutoski any more of a professional curler than you or I? Would a sportswriter be classified a professional because he writes about the game? This idea is as ridiculous as the men who dreamt up that ruling in Ontario.

Our sympathy leans towards our Prairie pals. Indeed, the OCA action—jealous and lame-headed—smacks of bigotry!

Ontario, long a weak sister in Canadian curling circles, invited Garnet to conduct a series of clinics in that province. Between classes, Garnet, who skipped the family foursome in past seasons, managed to take part in a few bonspiels. Garnet had followed brother Don eastward. His older brother had been invited, and later accepted, to take over a position with an elite Toronto club. Don's chief duties were to instruct members as well as look after the ice-making.

After the brothers accepted the invitations and, we might add, broken up a family rink that had long been recognized as a power and great drawing-card in curling, the higher echelon of the OCA closed the door on their competitive ambitions with that ruling.

The Ontario action is akin to inviting your neighbor over to dinner and then handing him a check before he leaves.

At any rate, the boys on the plains have picked up their biggest cudgel. Regina's curling writer, John Robertson, feels Ontario's ruling "is just eastern Canada's way of saying that it wants to restrict the game to a social outing for those snobs who tell you that winning is incidental—because they never win."

John might have hit the nail right on the head. In many eastern rinks, it must be pointed out, you must have a small fortune salted away before you could even start to think of joining one of Ontario's elite clubs. Cost of curling on the Prairies is practically nothing in comparison. It could be very embarrassing, therefore, for our very-well-to-do Ontario friends to be consistently beaten by "hay-shakers" off the farms.

The Campbell clan has won more than $40,000 in curling prizes during the past decade. Still, you can not call them "professionals" unless you include at least 80 per cent of western Canada's leading curlers.

It has been reported that Ontario intends to carry its ruling to the Dominion Curling Association in the form of a resolution.

We sincerely doubt that Ontario will receive much backing on this stand from western Canada. If Ontario does get this support, then it will be a rather sorry day for curling in Canada.

RATED GERMAN SOCCER TEAM TO VISIT CANADA

Canadian soccer fans appear destined to get their first chance to watch a German league team in action this summer.

According to European newspaper reports, Hamburg G.V. has accepted an invitation from the Canadian Soccer Association to make a six-game tour of Canada.

Hamburg G.V., leading club in the German Oberliga Nord (Northern Division) plans to start the tour in Vancouver and also play at Edmonton, Regina, Winnipeg, Toronto and Montreal. No dates have been set.

Werner, Posipal, Geeler and Stiirmer are among the Hamburg players well known to many German-Canadian fans.

Even added days don't seem to be able to accommodate all the teams wanting to enter the Victoria tenpin championship team events slated for Strathcona Bowling Alleys Feb. 2.

It may be because of the recent announcement that the latest in alley equipment that will make its debut at that time, but alley manager Roy Begg stated Friday that they had already added a day to the event and that the day was already nearly full.

The response has forced the local association to open action a day earlier in the team events and will now get under way with shifts starting Saturday, Feb. 1.

Only a couple of spaces are still available.

Striking sparks with every ball rolled, Nick Howard roared into blazing flame Tuesday night in the Senior Tenpin League at Gibson's, and set a new season's high of 663, 13 pins better than the mark set by Bill Holness earlier in the year.

On his way to the total, Nick had singles of 182, 235 and 246.

Behind Howard were seniors Roy Begg at 571, George Motion 561, Sheldon Nipp 562, Con McBeth 552, Wally Noonan 549, and Roy Harris 542.

Webb 547, Len Murrant 545, Marg Beane 511, Mona Corbett 505 and Lolly Hughes 503.

High fivestep of the week was Stan Williams of Gibson's CPR loop with his 877 (328, 300, 249) series ahead of K. Wright, with an 804 series.

In the Commercial Fivepin League, it was Stan Bell with 784 leading the way for Ken Smith's 778, Reg Waggoner 752 and Harry Smith 746.

At Strathcona, Roy Jago peeled off a 788 series in the City Hall League while Miss Jackie Henderson bounced to a 722 in the B.C. Telephone fivepin loop.

Bud Marty topped off the Douglas Street tenpinners with his Senior League 590 score. Behind him were Ralph Baker 548, Steve Chamut 546, Ron Wilson 543, Wilf Smith 571 and Herb Chandler 545.

Pick of the Esquimalt fivepin fraternity was Frank Morgan with his 849 (300, 341) series ahead of Ben Price's series of 765 and 822.

Behind them were ranked Tony Bishop, 740, 796, Jack Frampton 784, Doug Crawford 759, George McCreddie 759, H. Schaub and Geoff Worrall 745 and Flora Kirker 743.

At Esquimalt, the fivepinners were led by Roy Jago with a 788 series in the City Hall League while Miss Jackie Henderson bounced to a 722 in the B.C. Telephone fivepin loop.

There seems to be no doubt that all the class and polish belongs to Porky Andrews' Victoria High Totems.

The stylish Totems romped through an unbeaten season to capture the Victoria Inter-High Senior Boys' Basketball League championship Friday night with a 44-32 win over Mount Douglas.

Totems would up the schedule two points in front of Esquimalt Dockers, whose only loss was at the hands of Vic High.

Taking full advantage of the 22 fouls called on Mount Douglas, Andrews' charges hooped 18 from the free-throw line.

Pick of the winners was Darryl Lorimer with 22 points.

In exhibition action, Dockers thrilled a home-court crowd with a 39-29 win over Mount View.

Dave Nelson led the assault with 23 points as Esquimalt dropped in 10 unanswered points in the final frame.

Oak Bay downed Courtenay 35-32 in a second exhibition.

Vic High moves on now to the Lower Island tournament at Esquimalt High Feb. 21 with the winners advancing to try for a provincial title.

Exhibition games, featuring Courtenay, Oak Bay, Esquimalt and Mount View, continue to-night at Esquimalt High. Oak Bay meets Mount View in the opener while the host team plays Courtenay in the night-cap.

TIME OUT!

Marlene Moves To Semi-Finals In Tee Tourney

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UP)—Marlene Stewart Streif of Toronto, the Doherty Women's amateur golf tourney's new favorite, meets former winner Dorothy Kirby of Atlanta in the second round Friday in the semi-finals today.

In the other match, Mary Ann Downey of Baltimore goes against newcomer Nan Berry of Quincy, Ill.

Mrs. Streif, former Canadian women's amateur champion, hurdled her biggest test in the second round Friday by eliminating tourney favorite Barbara Romack Porter of Sacramento, on the 19th. The young Canadian then went on to beat veteran Marge Burns of Greensboro, N.C., 6 and 5 in the afternoon quarter-finals.

Miss Kirby advanced with victories over Gale Fleming, Tulsa, Okla., 2 and 1, and Cookie Swift Berger, Buffalo, N.Y., 4 and 2.

VENTURI FIRES 63

So Who's Right, Ken or Jolly Jim?

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UP)—It takes all kinds of people to make a world—and the same holds true for the golf tour.

Ken Venturi is a 26-year-old athlete dedicated to the game, who loves to practice and spends hours every day on the practice tee.

Jolly Jimmy Demaret is 45, a grandpa who never goes near the practice tee and who seldom even plays a game these days.

So Venturi and Demaret, two of the finest tee-shot performers in the business, were tied for the lead as the $13,000 Thunderbird invitational gold tournament went into the third round today.

Venturi, a San Franciscan in his first year as a pro, had a torrid eight-under-par 63 Friday to come up with a 133 total for 36 holes. Demaret, defending champion and three-time winner of this tourney, has played exactly one round of golf in two months. He fired a very fine 65 Friday for the same total.

The two have a two-stroke lead over first-round leader Dave Marr and up-and-coming Paul Harney, each with a 135 score.

Al Balding, Toronto's free-swinging shotsmith, stayed close to the front-runners with a one-under-par 70, for a two-round total of 138—five strokes off the pace.

The people of north-central British Columbia are "most enthused" about the proposed Wenner-Gren development, William Speare, new Social Credit member for Cariboo, said in the Legislature Friday.

Bids Asked On $175,000 Home Project

PORT ALBERNI — Tenders have been called by Victoria architect John DiCastri for construction of buildings for the Alberni Valley Memorial Homes project, to cost an estimated $175,000.

Tenders will close Feb. 14. The homes will consist of seven separate buildings to be erected on a large lot on Tenth Avenue.

Three of the buildings will contain four apartments each for married couples, and the remaining four buildings each will have accommodation for four single persons.

Victor Belknap, member of the home society executive, said suites would be assigned according to a point system based on means, present living quarters and other considerations.

The society itself has $18,000 in assets, he said; the provincial government has made a grant, and a loan from Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation is assured.

False Store Fronts Centennial Feature

COURTENAY — Chamber of Commerce here will sponsor the erection of false fronts on stores as a centennial year feature.

Those decorated will be stores on Cliffe Avenue between Fifth and Sixth Streets, and on Fifth Street from Cliffe to Duncan Avenue.

Costs and construction details were discussed at a chamber meeting here with the president, William Finlayson, in the chair.

Reports given at the meeting on signs of progress in the dis-

In his maiden speech moving the reply to the Speech from the Throne, Mr. Speare said northern residents have full confidence in the Wenner-Gren proposals.

"Conversant with the region involved, they quite appreciate the transformation and tremendous benefit which will evolve," he said.

Mr. Speare, a hospital administrator at Quesnel, also had words of praise for the B.C. Hospital Insurance Service.

"The people of this province enjoy a public service health program which serves as a model for interested centres across the face of the continent," he said.

"It is designed with flexibility of adjustment, yet with measures of control that are essential to ensure its continued operation."

Island Hunters Fulfil Promise Of Moose Feast

CHEMAINUS—Before Rotarians Bob Bennie and Jack Jameson left for a hunting trip to the interior last fall with two companions, they had to promise that when they got back they would provide a feast for club members.

This week members of the Rotary Club and visitors were treated to a supper of roast moose.

for the unit and civilian administration.

It will meet at Patricia Bay Airport.

The squadron will be open to boys of from 14 to 18 years, or those younger than 14 if in grade 9. They will receive instruction in citizenship, foot drill, aero engineering, and aspects of flight, and will be eligible for summer camps, overseas visits, flying courses, and other awards.

Two officers and two civilian instructors will be attached to the squadron. Initial parade of the squadron will be announced later.

HER OWN TOTEM FOR PIONEER'S 93RD BIRTHDAY

CAMPBELL RIVER—Mrs. Charles Thulin, pioneer resident and one of the leading citizens here was presented a totem pole on her 93rd birthday depicting the various stages of her life.

It had been carved by Ernest Henderson, 15, son of Sam Henderson, official totem pole carver of Wee-weikum Indian band.

In 1914 Mrs. Thulin's late husband donated the site for Lourdes Hospital and also the lumber to build it. Mrs. Thulin was first president of the hospital women's auxiliary.

New Plebiscite Urged On Foreshore Project

ISLAND DIGEST

SATURDAY, JAN. 25, 1958

Economic Hopes Never Brighter, Chamber Told

NANAIMO — Economic outlook of Nanaimo has never been brighter, William J. Lupton, president, told Nanaimo Chamber of Commerce this week.

Local industries are expanding, he said, and there is the strong possibility of a new industry establishing here shortly.

MORE PUBLICITY

There has been new emphasis by both federal and provincial governments on publicizing Vancouver Island, Mr. Lupton said.

He suggested sending a strong delegation to the B.C. Chamber of Commerce convention in Vancouver May 4-6, and ordered preparation of resolutions both for the Vancouver convention and the annual convention of the Associated Chambers of Commerce of Vancouver Island here June 18.

Chamber council will meet Jan. 30 to elect a new executive. New directors elected to the council were John Dunham, E. L. Hodson, Arnold McGillivray, A. L. Pickard and Norman Schroeder. Installation of the new executive will take place Feb. 22.

Dan Campbell, Social Credit MLA for Comox, said Friday he will recommend to the government that another plebiscite be held on the controversial foreshore development at Campbell River.

In a statement released outside the Legislature, Mr. Campbell said the controversy following the first plebiscite was not healthy for the community.

"The pros and cons of the development and its use as the berthing site for the Quadra Island car ferry have been well aired throughout the Campbell River area," Mr. Campbell said.

"An inquiry board handed down certain recommendations with respect to the development and the Quadra Island car ferry.

"It would be right going back to the people to ask them if they would accept the recommendations of the inquiry board."

ISLAND VIEWPOINT

Winter Irony

COURTENAY ARGUS—It is ironic that the winter of 1958, so far, presents the finest logging and construction weather in years, combined with the lowest level of employment.

Jobless totals have mounted this month to what NES officials describe as nothing less than dismal.

We heartily endorse the action of the Island Labor Council in its program of this week to seek some respite. It seems to us all three levels of government along with business and individuals could be doing much more about the situation than at present.

Farmer's Market

COWICHAN LEADER — A worthy project for some organization to take up is a new and more modern farmers' market in Duncan.

There have been rumors off and on during recent months of a change of location for the present market on Government Street. There will be support for such a proposal.

The market is not in a good position in relation to traffic, although little fault can be found with the general site.

Cowichan Agricultural Society and the Chamber of Commerce have always been good friends of the farmers' market. A new lead might possibly come from them. There are many reasons for them giving it their support. One is the greater income to be derived by farmers at the expense of itinerant pedlars and trucking merchants, few of whom have any investment in the district, but who prosper because they perform a service and fill an existing need.

Another reason why the farmer should be free to market his own produce is to enable him to test a favorite theory of his, that the middleman gets all the profit! A compelling reason is the provision of a market for local produce.

Court of Revision

$2.25 a Month From Every Taxpayer Would Give New Life to Needy

For 785 Victorians on social assistance, life has become grim existence. They are the lowest in the city's social order. To them, a pensioner seems well-to-do. In many ways he is, for pensioners receive up to $25 more each month than an unemployed man or woman. City welfare officials feel it is high time the situation was rectified.

By DINAH KERE
An investment of $2.25 will not buy much these days. "It's no great staggering amount," city welfare administrator Bill Hooson said, "about the price of seven packages of cigarettes." But that investment on behalf of every B.C. taxpayer would enable the "forgotten few" to hold their heads high again. For B.C.'s 10,000 heads of families and single persons on social assistance, it would mean an extra $15 each on monthly cheques. For the 9,500 dependents, it would mean an extra $7.50 each. Four hundred units of 765 persons in Victoria would benefit from the increase. The total cost to the provincial government and all B.C. municipalities would be about $2,500,000.

Of this, the government would pay 80 per cent; the municipalities, 20 per cent. But under terms of the Unemployment Assistance Act, the federal government pays one-half the costs of social assistance in the provinces. And since the municipalities pay 20 per cent, the cost to the provincial government is actually only 30 per cent of the total sum. Victoria's share would be about $18,500, representing an increase of about two-fifths of a mill in city taxpayers. That sum would be tacked on to $185,000 which the city spent on social assistance last year. What would an assistance increase mean to the 19,500 who need help to live? To put it simply, it would give them a chance to live half decently again, Mr. Hooson said. Nobody likes to live at a subsistence level, dealing with nickels and dimes where others have dollars. No man wants to see his children deprived, no wife wants to prepare only the cheapest foods, no child wants to pass up shows and candy because there is no money. But some people have to. The increase, for one thing, would enable them to buy more and better food. But apart from food, personal happiness is involved, Mr. Hooson said. "More money would help to keep the family unit together. If we don't give them enough money, we're just compounding their physical, mental and personal difficulties." An extra $45 a month for a family of five would allow them to regain "a little self-respect." David Woodsworth, director of the Family and Children's Service in Victoria, had this to say: "I know people who come to this agency who, if they went on social assistance, would not be able to hold their heads up. Rather than do that, they ask us to take their children into our care so they can go out and make a living." Mr. Woodsworth thinks the present social assistance set-up prevents the needy from earning money when it should encourage. As it is now, heads of families are allowed to earn $20 a month at part-time jobs. Three-quarters of their wages above that amount is deducted from the social assistance allotment. "Earning restores initiative and self-confidence," Mr. Woodsworth said. "It's good business and good morality to give people a reasonable standard of living." Current social assistance rates are "completely inadequate," he said. People who must live within them are "either poorly clothed, half-starved or cold." "If you were on social assistance you couldn't feed your children and heat them at the same time," he said. "Naturally the parent feels guilty and resentful. He just can't live with self-respect." Mr. Hooson and Mr. Woodsworth have come up with what they think is the only possible solution to the dreary, penniless life of 19,500 British Columbians. Now, they think it's time for action.

MONTE ROBERTS

The verdict has been returned in the case of the cat, Little Miss Muffet, and the bird, Robin Redbreast. The verdict is "not guilty," the jury having been convinced by the plea of defence counsel that, when Miss Muffet attacked Robin Redbreast, she was only doing what comes naturally.

But the jury—as juries are so fond of doing—brought in a recommendation.

The recommendation said the wrong party was on trial. The jury said the Old Man—namely me—should have been tried.

Joy Stonehouse, Hampshire Road, who was elected foreman of the jury by acclamation, summed up its findings in a personal message to me, as follows:

Dear Old Man:
While voting not guilty, I feel Miss Muffet is neither guilty nor NOT guilty, but is a victim of circumstances. I should like to put the Old Man on trial instead.

Am I correct in assuming the Old Man feels—as I do—that Miss Muffet and Robin Redbreast are natural enemies? If so, what about Judy Boots Streak and Miss Muffet?

When it was decided the cat and the dog were to live in the Old Man's house, did he not teach them to tolerate and get along with each other?

Then why couldn't the Old Man have simplified matters by acquiring a pet bird with whom Miss Muffet would also have to learn tolerance?

To sum up, Miss Muffet may have had one of two reasons for assaulting Robin Redbreast, but both are fundamentally the Old Man's fault.

1. Perhaps Miss Muffet had a common case of hunger. If so, why hadn't the Old Man fed her?

2. It may have been a simple case of lack of activity, or companionship. All cats like to pounce on small moving objects. Did not the Old Man ever think of teasing her with a bit of his column tied to the end of a piece of string, instead of leaving her to venture away from home to find Robin Redbreast to attack?

Does the Old Man feel he has fulfilled these duties? If so, his conscience may be eased a little.

But he still missed a very important precautionary measure. Why didn't the Old Man tie a little bell on Miss Muffet's neck?

In conclusion, I am sure the jury agrees with me when I say the Old Man should be on trial—and that there is only one verdict.

GUILTY.

Thank you, Joy Stonehouse, for those kind words. I will accept whatever punishment the court chooses to dish out.

As long as Joy Stonehouse will tackle the job of tying a little bell on Miss Muffet's neck.

You don't know Miss Muffet very well, do you, Joy?

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Assistant director, university extension department at University of B.C., Gordon R. Selman will address a public meeting Wednesday in the Art Gallery on "Canada, an Emerging Power."

Mr. Selman's address will be sponsored by Victoria branch of United Nations Association. He recently attended UNESCO conference in San Francisco as one of Canada's delegates.

Two men were taken to hospital with face cuts after the car in which they were riding crashed into a seawall on Dallas Road at 12:20 a.m. today.

Driver Robert Caird, 462 East Burnside, went to Jubilee Hospital and passenger James Alexander Ray, 21, HMCS Venture, was taken to HMCS Naden Hospital.

Police said Caird drove east on Dallas and was in collision with the wall about 50 feet east of Pilot.

There was medium damage to the car, none to the wall.

The late F. J. Tate, 526 Langford, was a former official of the Silver Spring Brewery here, not of the Crystal Spring Beverage Co. Ltd. as was reported in his obituary Friday.

Victoria Gyros will hear Dr. Gordon Shrum, UBC dean of physics, talk on "Sputniks" at a meeting in the Empress Hotel Monday noon.

Annual Meeting For Red Cross On Wednesday

Annual meeting of the Victoria branch, Canadian Red Cross Society, will be held in Red Cross headquarters, Fort Street, Wednesday at 2:30 p.m. Present will be Eric Marsden, president of the B.C. division, Mrs. J. N. Mawer, chairman of the provincial blood donor panel and Col. M. D. Robertson, director of blood donor panels for B.C.

Louis Heggelund, Sooke, was fined $200 and $650 costs in Sooke RCMP court today for driving while impaired.

Three new benches have been installed on downtown streets. Victoria Chinatown Lions Club has placed benches at Government and Fisgard, and Government and Yates, while the Victoria Lions have placed a bench at Yates near Douglas.

The benches were donated to the city by the clubs.

Noble Cecil A. Holt was installed Friday as president of the Victoria Gizeh Temple Shrine Club at the annual banquet attended by close to 300 persons in the Sirocco Supper Club.

Noble Charles R. Savage was installed as vice-president, Noble Kenneth Davies as treasurer and Noble Jack Walton as secretary.

ASK THE TIMES

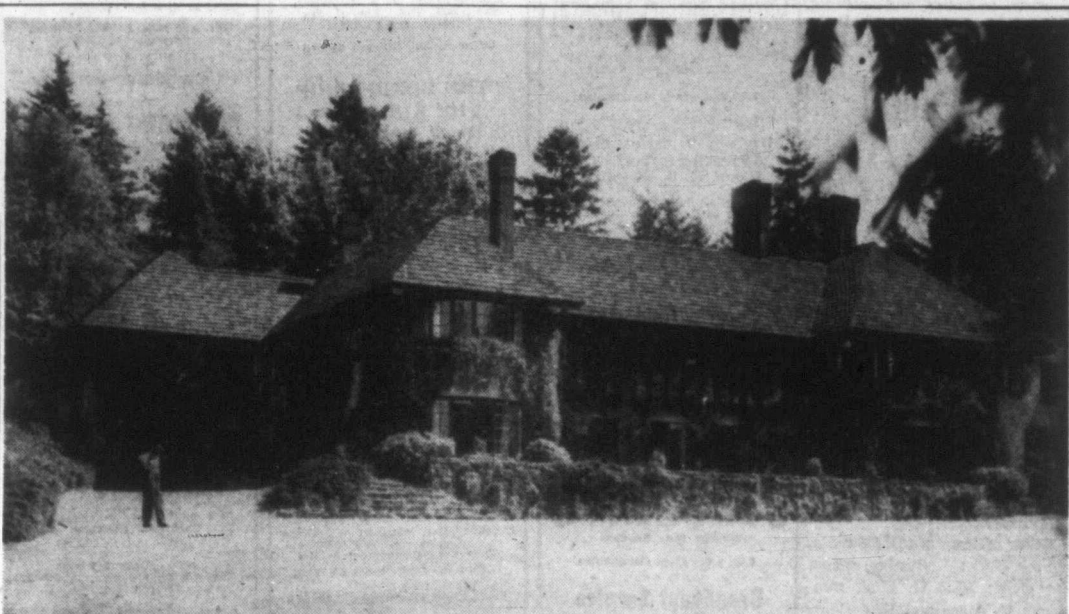

Q.—Would you be able to tell me which financial papers or magazines supply information concerning building expansions and work in the construction fields?—F.E.T.

A.—Your best bet is to subscribe to the Financial Post, 481 University Avenue, Toronto, and for industrial expansion in B.C., the Journal of Commerce Weekly, 1606 West Broadway, Vancouver.

Q.—Could you please tell me what days of the week Dec. 4, 1956, and Jan. 23, 1958, fell on?

A.—Dec. 4 was a Tuesday; Jan. 23 was a Monday.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to The Times, addressed to "Ask The Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily. All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve

HAGGIS IS WHERE THE HEARTH IS

Contrary to the opinion of non-believers, the traditional Scottish haggis can serve a useful purpose.

This was proven Friday by a slightly bemused Scotsman who mistook a generous slice of haggis for a bit of prestidigitator, and added it to his fireplace.

He reports it burned well, and gave out a steady heat over a long period of time.

Appropriately enough, the haggis was burned on the eve of Burns day.

Petunias, Single Roses, Not Dogwood on Plaques

By HUMPHRY DAVY

If paintings of the provincial flower on plaques in front of the Legislative Building bear any similarity to the dogwood, it is purely coincidental.

They are petunias or English single white roses. That is the opinion of Victoria flower lovers who were quick to notice that someone erred in drawing dogwood blooms for the centennial decorations.

The floral plaques are being used in conjunction with streamers hanging from the buildings.

"They are petunias without any doubt," said one gardener, "but they could be mistaken for the English single rose."

The painted flowers on the plaques are lobed. The dogwood has four to six pointed bracts—all are pointed.

"It is sloppy work," said one gardener. "There is no excuse for it. A job should be done with paintings of the provincial flower, also erred in its design. One calendar depicted a cherry flower as the dogwood.

J. A. Heritage, 92, Here 57 Years, Dies

John Alexander Heritage, 92, well-known retired marine engineer and church worker, died early today in hospital after 57 years of residence in Victoria. He was born in Bloomington, Ill., and came to Canada in 1893. He spent four years on the Empress of India on trans-Pacific service, and later joined the B.C. Coast Steamships. By the time of his retirement in 1932 he had served in all the company's coastal vessels, and had supervised construction of two of them.

Mr. Heritage was a member of First United Church board of managers for several years, a YMCA board member, member of the B.C. Historical Association and university extension worker.

Surviving are the widow, Mary, at home, 1438 Grant Street, two daughters at home, a son and grandson in Powell

PUBLISHER'S NOTEBOOK

According to reports, more than 3,000 alumni of the University of British Columbia are out knocking on doors in the current Development Fund drive.

"Don't see how you do it," a friend commented the other day. "I hate begging for money."

The truth is I've never met anyone who actually liked it. People work on campaigns for a variety of reasons: some of them funny, some deadly serious, most of them personal.

Today I'd like to tell you about one.

A group of us went out to Point Grey in the fall of 1930, from the same high school. Like all freshmen, we had our heads shaved (a practice since abandoned). We wore beanies, rolled-up "cords" and signs with our names on the back in green letters.

After a week or so of je-ne-sais-quoi floundering, we observed a strange fact: everywhere we turned there was another freshman, unknown to any of us, following us around the campus.

He was a quiet, self-effacing boy with a shock of copper-gold hair, pink cheeks and bright blue eyes. We

Two Killed, Two Injured In Car Crash

Inquest Into Cowichan Fatalities Set for Today

Two men died Friday night when the car in which they were riding failed to make a turn on the Cowichan Lake Road and rolled over several times before coming to rest 200 feet from where they left the road.

Killed were Norval Petrie, 20, and Robert Ketch, 17, both of Youbou.

Taken to King's Daughters' Hospital for treatment of under-termined injuries were Melvin Edward Hansen, 26, and Larry Ketch, cousin of Robert Ketch, who was killed, also of Youbou.

The car is registered in the name of Helen Phyllis Hansen, wife of one of the injured men.

STILL SERIOUS

Hansen's injuries were understood to be minor. Ketch, originally reported as in more serious condition, was reported by hospital authorities today as "unchanged."

RCMP from Lake Cowichan, who attended the accident, said the car had been proceeding from Duncan to Youbou, on the north shore of Cowichan Lake, where the four men worked in the logging and lumbering industry. The accident occurred at 8 p.m. about 10 miles west of Duncan.

They said it appeared the car had rolled both end for end and sideways, and had cut a swath through small trees and brush before coming to rest against two larger trees. The victims apparently had been killed by impact, and were still in the car when found by passing motorists.

Gordon Terness, of Lake Cowichan, took the two injured men to hospital. It is not yet known for certain which of the four men was driving the car at the time.

An inquest was scheduled to open at Lake Cowichan at 2 p.m. today, but it was believed evidence would be heard at a later date.

45 Performers In Polio Show Tonight on TV

A pageant of Victoria artists and stage talent will be featured in a mammoth television here over CHEK-TV tonight in aid of the B.C. Child Care and Polio Fund.

There will be 45 performers, ranging from magicians to ballet dancers.

Funds to fight polio will be raised from listeners, who will have 10 votes for $1 to boost their favorite performer's standing. The three top artists, chosen by popular vote, will win $75, $50 and $25.

The show will run from 6 to 7 p.m., 9 to 10:30 and 11:20 to 1. It is sponsored by CHEK and the Vic-Van-Isle Kinsmen, organizers of the polio drive here.

A Kind of Debt

learned that his nickname was "Hob."

At the end of a week, one of our mob turned to him and said: "I hope you won't mind me asking this—but who exactly are you? How come you're so friendly?"

The boy blushed violently. "Well," he said, "I just moved into the neighborhood where you fellows live, and you seemed like pretty good guys, so I thought I'd get to know you."

This was the beginning, for me, of a fast friendship. "Hob" turned out to be a boy of endless surprises. Shy as he was, he volunteered for the Frosh Revue and did a hilarious bit in front of an audience of 1,500 as a drunken professor. Like many quiet men, he had a wonderfully wry sense of humor. He was a good student and an aggressive rugby winger.

About two years after I had met him, he sat down one day and started to play the piano. (This was an accomplishment he had concealed.) It developed that he could play the clarinet and guitar, too. And when he went to his room, ostensibly to study, what did he do? He wrote romantic poetry!

I never knew anyone exactly like him.

Early in the war this gentle, ascetic fellow volunteered for the RCAF—as a bomber pilot. A couple of years later we got word that he had been shot down and killed.

And then, not long after, we heard another startling piece of news. "Hob" had left behind a young wife and son. A story on the front page of a Vancouver newspaper said that this toddler, playing with a grate, had pried it loose and gone toppling down the flue into the furnace. Thank God (most reverently), the fire was out and the baby retrieved, bruised, bewildered, but alive.

I have often thought of that boy since. I have never met him, but know his mother remarried, to a fine fellow. "Hob's" son would be about 16 or 17 now—just about ready to enter the university. So maybe that's why we canvass. It's a kind of debt.

TV, 'Nonsense' Courses Debate Splits Educators

CALGARY (CP) — Public statements by teachers at two levels have prompted renewed debate on educators' common talking points: the effect of television on studies, and "nonsense" courses in the modern curriculum.

As ever, few conclusions were reached.

The poll of principals was prompted when Dr. Leon Katz, University of Saskatchewan physicist, suggested in Vancouver this week that courses such as hygiene and driver training are "junk and nonsense" and should be scrapped to make way for more emphasis on science.

NO TV: GOOD GRADES

At the same time, public school teacher James Gordon told a panel discussion in Regina that the only two children in his class who got "A" grades in their last reports were the only ones who came from homes without television. He conceded it might be a coincidence.

High school principal H. D. Cartwright, Calgary, said parents have forced schools to add extra courses by neglecting their duties. Dr. Katz was more adamant on the same point. He said that if mothers don't teach their children to brush their teeth it's not the school's job.

Mr. Cartwright also took a moderate view on the effect of television on children.

"TV is a distraction," he said, "but it is only one of many distractions..."

THREE R's FIRST

H. T. Pritchard, principal of a Calgary elementary and junior high school said of the curriculum question:

"I'll stay with the three R's first and then add the other stuff."

On television, Mr. Pritchard said his own children have grown accustomed to TV and now found more interest in other things.

High school principal Ward Steekle, Calgary, had a good word for TV. He said travel and science films provide useful information and presentations such as the opening of parliament serve a useful purpose.

Junior high principal E. M. Borgal, Calgary, felt the United States has "gone overboard" on "nonsense subjects" to a greater extent than Canadian schools.

At Douglas Street Baptist Church, Rev. Cecil Barner will preach on "The Second Mile" and "I'm Glad I'm Alive."

WE WELCOME VISITORS

Church Bells To Welcome Queen Mother

VANCOUVER (CP) — The eight bells of Holy Rosary Cathedral will ring out a royal welcome to the Queen Mother when she visits City Hall Wednesday.

Princess Margaret will get a similar welcome when she visits the city in June, says Tony Collins, president of the Vancouver Society of Change Ringers.

"Ringing of church bells for a royal visitor is an old English custom," Mr. Collins said Friday. "The peels she hears will be a token of esteem and good will."

Silent for five years, the Holy Rosary bells were set ringing again Christmas Eve by Mr. Collins, a 26-year-old English immigrant.

Visiting Record Set By Rev. A. I. Avery

Rev. A. I. Avery set an all-time record for hospital and pastoral visits in St. Aidan's United Church last year, it was reported at an annual meeting this week.

Mr. Avery made a total of 954 calls—averaging almost three a day through the year.

Evangelistic calls made by the Couples' Club resulted in 50 new members for the church.

Plans for a new church building will be discussed at a special congregational meeting in early February.

Preaching in Victoria Truth Centre Sunday, Rev. Emma M. Smiley's subjects will be "Now are Ye Sons" and "The Birth of Abundance."

Symphony in Black and White

Annual Symphony Ball Outstanding on February Calendar

First major social event on the 1958 social calendar in this city is the annual Symphony Ball to be held on Friday, Feb. 7, in the Crystal Ballroom at the Empress Hotel. Held under the auspices of the Women's Committee to the Victoria Symphony Society, the ball promises to be an outstanding success. Many prominent citizens have signified their intention of attending, not only to enjoy an evening of dancing but also to add their prestige and to show their pride in the Victoria Symphony Orchestra, which has won praise from coast to coast. Mr. Hans Gruber, conductor of the orchestra, and Mrs. Gruber pictured

SHOPPING GUIDE

By PENNY SAVER

There is one place in Victoria that boasts something new every time I drop in to its fascinating depths. Now they tell me that plastic can be used in almost everything imaginable... including hostess ware.

I was entranced with the latest in salad bowls. Large oval and circular-shaped bowls of clear plastic are embossed with gold dust to give any dinner or buffet a party effect. These bowls come complete with matching salad servers and the price is just $9.75.

This set would make a wonderful bridal gift for a young couple... so go and see!

Also in the new and different collection were relish and dip holders in the same transparent plastic sprinkled with gold dust. Tall gold stands held the servers at different heights for simple serving. The price for these marvellous little stands is $3.95.

I noticed that the dip servers come in a black plastic, too, very modern and effective on the hostess table! The amazing feature about this ware is the light, easy-to-handle fabric.

Ever think of how useful a large plate is, in serving at a party? You probably haven't, as you've just been "making do" with the various plates in your china cabinet and running short of them right in the middle of a tea or coffee party! That's why I'm telling you about this long, flat plastic plate that holds miles of sandwiches and buns. Being light, anyone would enjoy passing the refreshments on it! It would be wonderful at cocktail parties too, because it's long enough to stretch along the table, making for easier reaching! It comes in gold dust or black at $7.95.

All you do is... oh, pardon me, I didn't realize you were there. I was just reading the directions for this amazing spun aluminum serving oven. I really must tell you about this little pot that you place on the top elements of the stove, and it bakes just as it would do in an oven! You can bake potatoes, cakes, bread and even roasts, not to mention the wonder of it when you want to keep dishes warm! It's an oven, saucepan and warming oven.

A Move Into Spring With Colorful Straw Chapeaux

By NONA DAMASKE

Silver grey pussy willows are pushing their way through brown winter overcoats, a sure sign that spring is just around the corner.

The first item of winter wardrobe that Milady casts aside is her felt hat and in its place will be a light fresh straw.

Wear a spring chapeau with your fur coat if you want to give yourself a lift and be a fashion pace setter.

During the past several seasons there have been some pretty earth-shaking changes in millinery and spring and summer 1958 will have its full quota of new hat shapes.

Among them, the high-winding Carmen Miranda turban is front and centre on the millinery stage.

Tams pulled to the back or side are tops. The new cloche sits high on the head and may come to a steeple-like point. The few large hats that are being shown have brims that flare out and upward as if they would lift you skyward.

BRETONS MISSING

Missing from the scene for the first time in many years is the Breton-type sailor. Long the favorite of many women this shape will be sadly missed.

For the fortunate few who do not have to consider a second season's wearing when choosing millinery some of the new exciting designs will create a sensation. For the rest of us, who carefully put away a few hats at the close of a season, hoping to be able to wear them the following year, a modified version of trend setters is the best answer.

The ever popular beret is a style that is becoming to almost all women, and if chosen in a soft material can be arranged in many ways. The new soft, backswep look is at its best in berets. When travelling, several soft berets will solve all your millinery problems as they adapt themselves to any hour of the day or evening depending on choice of fabric.

TURBAN EFFECT

Effect of a turban can often be achieved by a wrapped trimming over a straw body. Much more easily worn than a really high brimless turban a lower fuller design will still have the new look.

LOUISE DAVIS

On Etiquette

Should gift be returned?

My husband and I have been living in a two-family house. The other occupants are the owners who have become quite affluent recently. As tenants and neighbors, we have done little things for this couple, such as watching the house and forwarding mail when they were away. They enjoy presenting gifts to people and are sure to mention it afterwards. My husband recently paid $15 for a C.O.D. package, and when the owner reimbursed him with a twenty-dollar bill, the man said "Keep the change." My Louise Davis husband didn't, of course. The woman recently gave me an English bone china cup and saucer (for services rendered, I suppose), and I don't want to keep it. Should I return the gift or not?

Louise Davis Answers: Don't return it, for the woman wouldn't understand why and might be greatly offended. She was grateful for what you did and wanted to show her appreciation. The gift shouldn't have embarrassed you at all and, furthermore, there was nothing about the item or the giving that would indicate that the woman was courting friendship or gambling on other favors from you. I admit that her husband was crude in his remark to your husband. He meant well in his own peculiar way. Friends and neighbors don't like to be "tipped," but the man doesn't know any better, so his ignorance is worth forgiveness.

Reports were given and Mrs. H. Warren conducted the devotion period. Speaker, Mrs. J. McNeill, recounted experiences in St. John's, Newfoundland, when her husband was ministering in a Presbyterian Church.

New Officers—Mrs. G. Harling was installed president of the Ladies' Auxiliary, Pro Patria Branch, No. 31, Canadian Legion, BESL. Other officers are Mrs. T. Deegan and Mrs. E. Mc-

Kay, first and second vice-presidents; Mrs. O. Cook, secretary; Mrs. F. Beaven, treasurer; Mrs. A. Thomas, sergeant-at-arms; Mrs. P. Roy and Mrs. J. McGregor, standard bearers; Mrs. E. Turner, Mrs. N. Wootche, Mrs. J. Bridgeman, executive; Mrs. M. Trace and Mrs. J. Smith, district council; Mrs. T. Hull and Mrs. J. Morris, sick visiting; Mrs. J. McMillan, ways and means; Mrs. Bridgeman, bandages; Mrs. A. Ball, social; Mrs. S. Smith and Mrs. A. Creed, funerals. Mrs. S. McDonald of Provincial Command conducted the installation ceremony. Plans were made for a St. Valentine tea on Feb. 14.

Donation—It was reported at a recent meeting of the Alden Chapter, IODE, that $25 had been donated to rehabilitation co-ordinator. Mrs. J. Dunn presided at the meeting. Also reported was the chapter's share of net proceeds of the Penny Sale amounting to $494.26. Letters of thanks for the chapter's holiday gifts of books and hampers were read. Also reported was placing of a wreath on the Cross of Sacrifice at Ross Bay.

Korean Fund—It was noted at a recent meeting of St. Mary's Women's Parish Guild, that donations had been made to the Korean fund, the surplus food stall, and the Bible Society, during the year 1957. Also reported were receipts for over $3,000. Election of officers was held with Mrs. Hye Jones in the chair. Named to the executive were Mrs. R. W. Gibson, honorary president; Mrs. Hye Jones, honorary vice-president; Mrs. D. F. C. MacArthur, president; Mrs. T. B. Bird, vice-president; Mrs. C. K. Saunders, vice-president; Mrs. J. Fehler, secretary; Mrs. K. J. Bartlett, treasurer; Mrs. B. R. Berrick, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. H. V. Littler, membership.

Sick visiting report was given by Mrs. M. Cagney and a report of volunteer work at the Blood Bank at Red Cross House by Mrs. M. Hallam.

Bowling league report was given by Mrs. L. Hobday, who was also named convener of a bazaar. Her bazaar assistants will be Mrs. Hallam and Mrs. M. Brown.

It was announced that a social meeting will be held Feb. 5 at 8 p.m. at the home of Mrs. B. McGaw, 564 Alpha Street.

There is a terrific amount of brightly colored floral fabric being used by high style designers. Co-ordinated with the correct suit or dress the effect is stunning.

These one-outfit eye-catchers are not for the hat shopper who must consider her budget.

Everyone would like to have a hat for each suit or dress but when that isn't possible you must choose very carefully.

It is not necessary to avoid color. Just be sure you decide on a shade that will go with several of your outfits.

Don't wait until Easter to wear your spring hat. Be daring. Start wearing it soon.

By the way a wonderful gadget to keep in your purse at all times is a little package about the size of a box of Chiclets which contains a plastic hat covering. It is folded in accordion-like pleats and has ties which make a bow under the chin. So many times a sudden rain shower will damage a good hat. The covering is simple to whip on.

First Big Naval Wedding In Christ Church Cathedral

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Romance bloomed in the early days of Victoria just as it does today. There were courtships, engagements and many marriages.

Young ladies of the day could choose from a goodly share of suitors for there were many eligible bachelors in this new community, including some young and good looking English officers from the fleet based at Esquimalt.

These dashing young men in blue were much sought after for parties and dances. Parents of eligible daughters opened their homes to them and, just as in this present day, a naval wedding was something for a young girl to place high in her dreams.

Down at the turn of the century there were a number of big naval weddings.

None created more interest than that of Miss Caroline Pinder and Hon. Richard Hare, commander, RN.

Pretty Miss Caroline Pinder (Carrie for short) had come from England with her handsome brother, William George, to visit an uncle, Hon. Joseph Trutch, then Lieutenant-Governor of British Columbia.

YOUNG GUESTS

They were guests at Cary Castle, the gubernatorial residence that stood on the same Rockland Avenue hillside as the present residence. Like its modern counterpart—it also burned to the ground.

The arrival of the sister and brother was the signal for much entertaining in their honor. They had many relatives here and the gay round of parties, dinners and dances continued unabated for some time.

There would, of course, be many young people included in these social affairs and no doubt the naval officers at Esquimalt received their share of invitations.

Pretty Miss Carrie, with her lovely English complexion, sensitive mouth and big eyes, soon gathered around her many would-be suitors.

Records show that Capt. Hare, a brother of the Earl of Listowel of that day, arrived at Esquimalt in HMS Myrmidon on July 13, 1873.

There is nothing to tell us, however, when or where he met Miss Pinder.

Conjecture has it that it may have been in England. That they may have been in love then and that when Capt. Hare was sent to the Pacific Coast, Miss Carrie made haste to arrange with her parents a visit to her uncle in Victoria.

No matter when—or where—the young couple were immediately drawn to each other. Soon it was known that they were betrothed.

So it was that on July 17, 1874, in Christ Church Cathedral, Miss Caroline Pinder and Hon. Richard Hare exchanged wedding vows.

Pilots Die in 3-Jet Crash

WAKUNI, Japan (UP) — Three U.S. jet trainers crashed into the sea shortly after takeoff tonight from the marine air facility here and all three pilots are presumed dead.

Burned Children Found in Ruins

CHICAGO (AP) — Workmen sifting the ruins of a burned-out south side tenement today uncovered the charred remains of four small children, victims of an explosion-kindled fire Thursday morning. The discovery brought to seven—all children—the number who died when flames consumed the four-story honeycomb of apartments.

Families Flee London Fire

LONDON (Reuters) — Scores of families fled their blaze-threatened east London homes today as 100 firemen battled the city's fourth big fire in three days. The latest fire raged in rubber storage warehouses at Poplar.

IGY Rocket Soars in Manitoba

CHURCHILL, Man. (CP) — An American rocket, designed to probe the mysteries of the upper air, blasted 100 miles into the clear wintry sky today from a special launching site, 13 miles east of here on the tundra. The rocket, a Nike-Cajun, was the first of the Churchill base's 1958 program for the international geophysical year.

Students, Police in Clash

NAPLES, Italy (UP) — Police battled 2,000 demonstrating students for two hours today in a pitched fight in downtown Naples. Twenty-one persons were injured and 334 detained.

Traffic was blocked as police turned jeeps and water hoses on the rioting students, who have been occupying Naples University for three days in protest against a new law on examinations.

Confidence Vote Accorded Laing

By Times Staff Reporter

VANCOUVER — Provincial Liberal leader Arthur Laing today told the first annual Liberal convention here that a special leadership meeting should be called.

"Our leadership at every level, and foremost of all my own, must be given the most rigorous inspection," he told the 200 delegates.

He said growing disillusion with the Social Credit government offered "new and great responsibilities to our party."

"For this reason it would seem imperative that the general convention of the party (required by the constitution for choosing a leader) be held at the earliest practical moment."

ALWAYS AVAILABLE

He indicated he had no intention of resigning by saying his services were always available. Moments after he finished a lengthy attack on the Social administration, he was given a virtual vote of confidence by the delegates.

When a resolution expressing confidence in his leadership came up, Victorians Hugh Botterell and Hugh Ramsay moved and seconded that it be tabled until a general meeting is held.

CNR Building

Fire Loss $500,000

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (BUP) — Fire early today completely destroyed the Canadian National Railways express office and damaged several other buildings. The loss was estimated at $500,000.

However, the delegates voted the threat down—in effect a reaffirmation of confidence in Mr. Laing, elected leader since 1953, and defeated in the provincial by-election last year.

George Gregory, Liberal MLA for Victoria, who recently hinted that he would like to stand for the leadership, would make no immediate comment on Mr. Laing's call for a leadership convention.

"There have been spreading reports among the delegates that a resolution setting up a general meeting was to be presented during the one-day convention."

However, it realized, a general meeting is not expected to take place for several months.

Mr. Laing attacked the "high-handed, arbitrary attitude in disposition" of timber and mines affairs as shrouding the province "with the most sinister forebodings in its history."

Applause greeted his question: "How many people will now say that Gordon Gibson (former Liberal MLA who attacked the Socialists forest policy) has not rendered people of this province an enormous service?"

Mr. Laing said Premier Bennett's methods of "getting things done through money power" had resulted in ministerial decisions becoming the order of the day with "disposition of huge sums of money demanded of the legislature, turned over to small groups of cabinet ministers . . . without benefit of inspection of any public accounts."

Ottawa Hikes Tax Shares $87 Million

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government plans to give an additional $87,206,000 to the provinces in the next fiscal year starting April 1 without a new federal-provincial money conference, Finance Minister Donald Fleming announced today.

His statement to the Commons said that the federal government will give the provinces more leeway in collecting income tax without double taxation and will also provide direct cash grants from the treasury to the four Atlantic Provinces.

The Atlantic grants amount to $25,000,000 a year for the next four fiscal years. The other $62,000,000 may be collected by the provinces in personal income taxes given up by the federal government.

As an "interim" measure, the central government will allow the provinces to take over 13 per cent of the tax liability of individuals to the federal treasury. The previous federal offer to the provinces for tax-sharing agreements was 10 per cent.

(British Columbia receives an extra $5,563,000 under the new tax-sharing proposals, but due to the weekend shutdown at the Legislative Buildings, no expression of opinion could be obtained from the provincial government.

Premier Bennett, who is also finance minister, has an unlisted telephone number and his secretary, Ron Worley, said he could not be reached today.)

Boston Wins In Comeback; Howe Injured

BOSTON (UP) — Detroit lost the services of high scoring winger Gordie Howe, possibly for a month or more, as the Boston Bruins came from behind to score a 3-1 victory over the Red Wings today in a nationally-televised game.

The win, fashioned on three goals in the game's dying minutes, moved the Bruins into a third place tie in the National Hockey League standings with the Red Wings. Jerry Toppazzini, who scored twice and had one assist, got the deciding marker at 19:05 in the last period, beating Detroit goalie Terry Sawchuk on a solo dash.

The 29-year-old Howe, leading scorer for the Red Wings with 45 points, was injured in a first period collision with Bruins defenseman Leo Bolvin. Dr. Edward R. Browne, Bruins physician, said Howe had suffered a broken rib on his right side and would be lost probably four to six weeks.

Young Liberals Win Revolt Over 'Old Guard'

By JOHN MIKA
Times Staff Reporter

VANCOUVER—B.C.'s Young Liberals swept to victory over the party's "old guard" this morning at the first annual convention here by forcing the resolutions committee to submit all resolutions to delegates.

The revolt broke out on the floor of the convention after resolutions committee chairman Forrest L. Shaw of Victoria revealed that some of more than 100 resolutions submitted by ridings and associations had been consolidated and some "discarded because of policy."

Ron Lyon, president of the Vancouver-Burrard division five—a stronghold of young Liberals—launched the revolt by demanding that all resolutions sent in by ridings, the Young Liberals and the Liberal Women's Association, be presented to the delegates.

"Our new constitution clearly says the committee's job is only to compile and present all the resolutions, not to decide which ones will be submitted," he said.

He charged that at least 12 resolutions, "all of a controversial nature," had been dropped by the committee and made a motion that all be stenciled and distributed during the afternoon.

The motion, seconded by Kathy Sanjean, secretary of the B.C. Young Liberals' Association, carried without an opposing vote following a flurry of impassioned debate.

T. R. Burnett, Vancouver-Quadra member of the resolutions committee, said, in a vigorous defence of the committee's actions, that no resolutions had been discarded.

"Some have been re-worded to consolidate a number of similar resolutions," he said, "but no resolution has been discarded."

Mr. Lyon countered that he knew at least one resolution—urging disclosure of all campaign funds by political candidates—from his group had been discarded.

Mr. Shaw said there were about 60 resolutions from Young Liberals and it would be virtually impossible to have them all typed out for the afternoon session.

tee's actions, that no resolutions had been discarded.

"This was countered by an unidentified girl who said the Young Liberal resolutions already were available on stencils."

Gerald Duffus, president of the Terrace and District Liberal Association, demanded that the convention reserve some time for discussion of a Liberal reorganization in the province.

"We are not getting through to the small man," he said. "And if we go back to our people and tell them we heard (national leader) Pearson, Sinclair, and (provincial leader) Laing, it will make everyone go to sleep."

"What we need is something new. We have two years to win a provincial election and at the same time we should be keeping our eyes on Ottawa as well as Victoria."

Lowly Scunthorpe Upsets Newcastle in Cup Soccer

LONDON (UP)—Newcastle, a six-time winner of British soccer's coveted Football Association Cup, was eliminated in today's fourth round of the trophy competition by Scunthorpe of the Third Division, 3-1.

While the First Division club was humiliated on its own field by Scunthorpe, Tottenham of the First Division also was upset. Sheffield United, whose forwards mastered the ice-covered Tottenham field, scored a 3-0 shutout.

The fourth round matches and today's other regular season contests were played in the worst playing conditions of the season. The players slithered on thawing snow or ice. Two of the scheduled 16 fourth-round cup matches were postponed because officials considered the men could not play on the fields.

York City held Bolton of the First Division to a scoreless tie. Darlington, another Third Division club, held Chelsea to a 3-3 draw.

Manchester United, favorite to win this year's cup at Wembley Stadium May 3, had to work hard to defeat Ipswich, 2-0. Wolverhampton, the league leader, romped to a 5-1 victory over Portsmouth in its cup game.

Would Be Part Of Arms Pact

LONDON (AP) — Soviet Communist Party boss Nikita Khrushchev was reported by Moscow Radio tonight to be ready to discuss a ban on intercontinental ballistic missiles as part of a general disarmament agreement.

The Soviet news agency Tass published his speech today.

The broadcast said he stipulated that the West must first agree to a ban on nuclear weapons, an end to nuclear tests and the liquidation of overseas military bases.

The West has acknowledged that the Soviet Union is the only power at present capable of firing intercontinental ballistic missiles—possibly with a hydrogen bomb warhead.

In a speech made last Wednesday before a conference of agricultural workers in Minsk, Khrushchev noted President Eisenhower's recent call for a ban on testing missiles in cosmic space.

"In this connection Khrushchev recalled the Soviet Union's proposals on the subject of banning atomic and hydrogen tests," said the broadcast for overseas newspapers.

He said the Western Powers, while hindering a nuclear weapons ban, now want to ban weapons testing in space—"in effect a ban on intercontinental ballistic rockets."

"The purpose of this U.S. proposal was to ban weapons which could threaten U.S. territory but to preserve other forms of weapons with the aid of which they would like to keep the whole world in a state of fear," Khrushchev said.

The radio said: "Khrushchev declared that in the interests of strengthening peace, the Soviet Union would be prepared to discuss the question of the intercontinental ballistic rocket as part of the general problem of disarmament if the Western Powers agreed to a ban on atomic and hydrogen weapons, the suspension of tests of such weapons and the liquidation of military bases with which the U.S.A. has encircled the Soviet Union and the other Socialist countries."

Khrushchev accused "U.S. imperialist circles" of trying to build up rocket bases to "place the Soviet Union under daily threat."

B.C. Unhappy With New Plan For Hospitals

B.C. Health Minister Eric Martin today expressed "great disappointment" when told of the newly-announced federal government policy of hospital grants.

The new policy, announced in Ottawa by Health Minister J. Waldo Monteith in many cases will double the previous assistance given for construction of new hospitals.

He said they were designed "both to facilitate hospital construction and to alleviate shortages of employment in the construction industry."

"The mountain has labored and brought forth a mouse," commented Mr. Martin.

"Even though they have doubled many of these grants, they are still poor by comparison with the B.C. government grants of 50 per cent of the total cost."

In Ottawa Mr. Monteith said the federal grants will be calculated on the following basis:

For acute-care beds, $2,000 instead of the present $1,000.

For chronic-care beds, including mental and tubercular, $2,000 instead of the present $1,500.

Nurses' residence beds, $750 instead of $500.

Internes' quarters on the same basis as nurses'.

Bed equivalents, such as the present computation of three new baby bassinets equalling one acute bed, $2,000 instead of $1,000.

"For a long time," Mr. Martin said, "the provincial government and the hospitals of B.C. have attempted to obtain an upward adjustment of the federal grants in aid for construction Continued on Page 14

'Playing Politics' Charge Fans House Jobless Debate

By PETER MURRAY

Unemployment touched off an unscheduled and angry debate in the legislature Friday.

The traditional second-day procedure was shattered when Opposition Leader Robert Strachan rose at the start of the sitting to move that the Throne Speech debate be adjourned to allow immediate discussion of the unemployment problem.

The government voted him down after Speaker Hugh Shantz had ruled the motion out of order, but opened the gates to the debate by moving another motion that unemployment be referred to the House labor committee.

The words flew thick and fast, with each side accusing the other of "playing politics" with the unemployment situation.

It was a harrowing baptism of fire for Speaker Shantz, who was just elected to the chair on opening day Thursday.

The debate—mainly between CCF Leader Strachan and Premier Bennett—crackled for about an hour, then fell away into a hassle over amendments and amendments to amendments.

Final vote on Labor Minister Wick's motion to refer the subject to the labor committee was taken at 5 p.m., two hours after the sitting began.

The vote was unanimous, with the reluctant support of the Opposition.

IN THE
LEGISLATURE

When people stand up in the public galleries, as they did Friday afternoon, you can be sure something exciting is happening on the floor of the House.

So it was that both men and women rose to their feet during the unexpected hassle on unemployment which developed between Premier Bennett and CCF leader Robert Strachan—and were as quickly ordered to sit down.

"No standing in the galleries, please," said the attendant.

This is apt to be provoking when you are stretching your neck to get a proper view of Premier Bennett's quivering forefinger (pronouncing doom on the CCF) or Mr. Strachan shaking his fist at the government.

One elderly gentleman was so irritated by being told to sit down during these exchanges that he turned to the attendant and said:

"Am I permitted to stand in order to leave this place?"

The attendant nodded and the gentleman left in what look like a bit of a huff.

Pleasantries Between Bennett, Uphill

The premier was in full flood when for some strange reason Tom Uphill, the pukka 83-year-old Labor member from Fernie, raised the glass of water on his desk and smiling across at Mr. Bennett, said: "I drink your health."

The premier, of course, made full use of this.

"There," he cried, pointing at Mr. Uphill. "There is the only genuine Labor man in this house. He drinks my health because he knows I am sincere when I say this government has the interests of labor at heart."

Mr. Uphill bowed an acknowledgment. Some of the CCF members started to laugh, but broke off quickly when they realized the premier was not just patting his government on the back but Mr. Uphill as well. And Tom, with his 38 years' consecutive experience in the House, is respected by all.

When Premier Bennett gets worked up his words have a habit of coming out in a rush, one on top of the other.

"Th-banks-are-to-blame," he exploded.

Then hastened to say that he did not mean the chartered banks but the Bank of Canada, which had "caused unemployment by restricting purchasing power."

"You said the bankers were to blame," interrupted Mr. Strachan.

"That's right," answered the premier, "I said the Bank of Canada. What do you think they are—bankers?"

These sort of jokes don't look so funny on paper yet somehow when the premier makes them there is an answering roar of laughter, as if a great vaudeville star were at work on the floor of the House.

Then, of course, the premier had to have his little joke about the Liberal party.

"There," he cried, pointing across the House at George Gregory and Archie Gibbs, "are the gallant remnants of that once great party."

Neither Mr. Gregory nor Mr. Gibbs seemed to mind being called remnants—especially gallant remnants. At any rate they wore their red rose buttonholes with an air of gallantry and smiled back at the premier without a trace of hostility.

Two Police Departments Deny Gorge Crime in Their Bailiwick

A houseboat break-in and theft last Sunday on the Gorge turned into a week-long jurisdictional dispute between police departments asked to investigate.

Entry to his houseboat and theft of $100 worth of gear was reported to Esquimalt police by owner P. J. Smith, 334 Goldstream, last Sunday.

Esquimalt police, who agreed to carry out an investigation, claimed Gorge waters were RCMP territory.

Mr. Smith called Colwood RCMP, who referred him to Esquimalt. RCMP headquarters told him to see Saanich police, who in turn suggested he take the matter back to Esquimalt.

Mr. Smith has offered a $25

reward for recovery of the gear and Sunday is sending a frogman into the Gorge to see if it was dumped overboard.

If he finds the equipment the frogman gets the $25.

Meanwhile the attorney-general's department is expected to rule on jurisdiction so that charges could be laid if inquiries are successful.

SPORTSCRIPT

BY ERNIE FEDORUK

While it is fairly certain that the Campbell brothers of Avonlea won't be coming to Victoria in March as Saskatchewan representatives in the Canadian curling championships, the all-brother rink continues to keep in the news.

And back on the Prairies, where curling rates second only to wheat in news value, the roarin' game has taken on the aspects of an international incident.

The Prairie lads are up in arms over a ruling by the Ontario Curling Association that has ousted two of the Campbells—Don and Garnet—from competitive curling in the eastern province. In Saskatchewan, the curling fraternity regards the Campbells in the same light that Montreal's hockey population regards Maurice Richard.

OCA officials have branded the Campbells as "professionals" although the OCA did never clearly define the difference between an amateur and a professional. Their rather vague ruling said anyone playing the game "for material gain" is a professional.

The OCA made its classic ruling without specifically mentioning any names. But the good burghers of Saskatchewan believe it was pointed directly at the Campbells. For the record, the OCA edict might prevent Victoria ice-maker (and newly-crowned Vancouver Island champion) Tony Gutoski from participating in bonspiels if it became a Dominion ruling. But is Gutoski any more of a professional curler than you or I? Would a sportswriter be classified a professional because he writes about the game? This idea is as ridiculous as the men who dreamt up that ruling in Ontario.

Our sympathy leans towards our Prairie pals. Indeed, the OCA action—jealous and lame-headed—smacks of bigotry!

Ontario, long a weak sister in Canadian curling circles, invited Garnet to conduct a series of clinics in that province. Between classes, Garnet, who skipped the family foursome in past seasons, managed to take part in a few bonspiels. Garnet had followed brother Don eastward. His older brother had been invited, and later accepted, to take over a position with an elite Toronto club. Don's chief duties were to instruct members as well as look after the ice-making.

After the brothers accepted the invitations and, we might add, broken up a family rink that had long been recognized as a power and great drawing-card in curling, the higher echelon of the OCA closed the door on their competitive ambitions with that ruling.

The Ontario action is akin to inviting your neighbor over to dinner and then handing him a check before he leaves.

At any rate, the boys on the plains have picked up their biggest cudgels. Regina's curling writer, John Robertson, feels Ontario's ruling "is just eastern Canada's way of saying that it wants to restrict the game to a social outing for those snobs who tell you that winning is incidental—because they never win."

John might have hit the nail right on the head. In many eastern rinks, it must be pointed out, you must have a small fortune salted away before you could even start to think of joining one of Ontario's elite clubs. Cost of curling on the Prairies is practically nothing in comparison. It could be very embarrassing, therefore, for our very-well-to-do Ontario friends to be consistently beaten by "hay-shakers" off the farms.

The Campbell clan has won more than $40,000 in curling prizes during the past decade. Still, you can not call them "professionals" unless you include at least 80 per cent of western Canada's leading curlers.

It has been reported that Ontario intends to carry its ruling to the Dominion Curling Association in the form of a resolution.

We sincerely doubt that Ontario will receive much backing on this stand from western Canada. If Ontario does get this support, then it will be a rather sorry day for curling in Canada.

RATED GERMAN SOCCER TEAM TO VISIT CANADA

Canadian soccer fans appear destined to get their first chance to watch a German league team in action this summer.

According to European newspaper reports, Hamburg G.V. has accepted an invitation from the Canadian Soccer Association to make a six-game tour of Canada.

Hamburg G.V., leading club in the German Oberliga Nord (Northern Division) plans to start the tour in Vancouver and also play at Edmonton, Regina, Winnipeg, Toronto and Montreal. No dates have been set.

Werner, Posipal, Geeler and Stürmer are among the Hamburg players well known to many German-Canadian fans.

By GRAHAM COX

Even added days don't seem to be able to accommodate all the teams wanting to enter the Victoria tenpin championship team events slated for Strathcona Bowling Alleys Feb. 2.

It may be because of the recent announcement that the latest in alley equipment that will make its debut at that time, but alley manager Roy Begg stated Friday that they had already added a day to the event and that the day was already nearly full.

The response has forced the local association to open action a day earlier in the team events and will now get underway with shifts starting Saturday, Feb. 1.

Only a couple of spaces are still available.

Striking sparks with every ball rolled, Nick Howard roared into blazing flame Tuesday night in the Senior Tenpin League at Gibson's and made a new season's high of 663, 13 pins better than the mark set by Bill Holness earlier in the year.

On his way to the total, Nick had singles of 182, 235 and 246.

Behind Howard were seniors Roy Begg at 571, George Motion 561, Sheldon Nipp 562, Con McBeth 552, Wally Noonan 549, and Roy Harris 542.

VENTURI FIRES 63

So Who's Right, Ken or Jolly Jim?

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UP) — It takes all kinds of people to make a world — and the same holds true for the golf tour.

Ken Venturi is a 26-year-old athlete dedicated to the game, who loves to practice and spends hours every day on the practice tee.

Jolly Jimmy Demaret is 45, a grandpa who never goes near the practice tee and who seldom even plays a game these days.

So Venturi and Demaret, two of the finest tee-shot performers in the business, were tied for the lead as the $15,000 Thunderbird invitational gold tournament went into the third round today.

Venturi, a San Franciscan in his first year as a pro, had a torrid eight-under-par 63 Friday to come up with a 133 total for 36 holes. Demaret, defending champion and three-time winner of this tourney, has played exactly one round of golf in two months. He fired a very fine 65 Friday for the same total.

The two have a two-stroke lead over first-round leader Dave Marr and up-and-coming Paul Harney, each with a 135 score.

Al Balding, Toronto's free-swinging shotsmith, stayed close to the front-runners with a one-under-par 70, for a two-round total of 138 — five strokes off the pace.

Canada's "old pro," Stan Leonard of Vancouver, shot a hot 68, but an opening day 74 put him low on the list with a 36 hole 142 total.

Venturi had a near-perfect round. But as far as Ken is concerned it was no better than his first round, when he shot a 70.

"I hit the ball just as well with 70," says Ken. "But on the 63 round, the putts were dropping in from all over."

The Pro-Amateur title chase, which ended Friday, went to a team headed by George Howard, pro at a local course. Their best-ball for the 36 holes was a 31-under-par 111. The amateurs on the team were Fred Whitman, San Francisco; Phil Taber, Tulsa, Okla., and Earl Buckingham, Rapid City, S.D. A team headed by Demaret picked up $500 for finishing second in this division.

Vikings Tackle Alberni Quintet

Victoria College Vikings will be hoping to start a brand new winning streak tonight at Victoria High School when they meet Alberni High School Chieftains at 8:30.

Vikings, who had won nine straight games this season, saw their skein snapped last Saturday as Dairy Queen Eds avenged an earlier defeat with a thrilling 46-45 win.

Chieftains will be hoping to do the same thing, but Vikings have already beaten them twice this year.

In a preliminary at 7:30, Victoria College Vikings will play the Alberni High School girls' team.

government's new stand in tabling identical telegrams by Prime Minister Diefenbaker to all provincial premiers, in which he stressed the policy is an interim measure only and also that it is subject to the approval of Parliament.

Mr. Diefenbaker said it is aimed at assisting the provinces to meet immediate problems of preparing budgets and to help ease unemployment.

"This is an interim measure pending reconvening of the dominion-provincial conference to seek fiscal settlements," his telegram to premiers said.

Under previous proposals put before the provinces by the federal government, the provinces would have been allowed to take only 10 per cent of the tax liability of individuals to the federal government.

The extra grants to the provinces are: Prince Edward Island, $2,870,000; Nova Scotia, $10,127,000; New Brunswick, $9,611,000; Quebec, $17,780,000; Ontario, $21,316,000; Manitoba, $3,219,000; Saskatchewan, $3,290,000; Alberta, $4,335,000; British Columbia, $5,563,000; Newfoundland, $9,095,000.

Various provincial governments have asked the federal government for tax concessions in new agreements that could run to well over $1,000,000,000 a year.

At the latest federal-provincial conference here in late November, nothing conclusive was done on the income tax question, though some provinces indicated they wanted more than the 10-per-cent deductibility on income tax offered in the federal plan.

New Plebiscite Urged On Foreshore Project

Dan Campbell, Social Credit MLA for Comox, said Friday he will recommend to the government that another plebiscite be held on the controversial foreshore development at Campbell River.

In a statement released outside the Legislature, Mr. Campbell said the controversy following the first plebiscite was not healthy for the community.

"The pros and cons of the development and its use as the berthing site for the Quadra Island car ferry have been well aired throughout the Campbell River area," Mr. Campbell said.

"An inquiry board handed down certain recommendations with respect to the development and the Quadra Island car ferry.

"It would be right going back to the people to ask them if they would accept the recommendations of the inquiry board."

ISLAND VIEWPOINT

Winter Irony

COURTENAY ARGUS—It is ironic that the winter of 1958, so far, presents the finest logging and construction weather in years, combined with the lowest level of employment.

Jobless totals have mounted this month to what NES officials describe as nothing less than dismal.

We heartily endorse the action of the Island Labor Council in its program of this week to seek some respite. It seems to us all three levels of government along with business and individuals could be doing much more about the situation than at present.

Farmer's Market

COWICHAN LEADER — A worthy project for some organization to take up is a new and more modern farmers' market in Duncan.

There have been rumors off and on during recent months of a change of location for the present market on Government Street. There will be support for such a proposal.

The market is not in a good position in relation to traffic, although little fault can be found with the general site.

Cowichan Agricultural Society and the Chamber of Commerce have always been good friends of the farmers' market. A new lead might possibly come from them. There are many reasons for them giving it their support. One is the greater income to be derived by farmers at the expense of itinerant peddlars and trucking merchants, few of whom have any investment in the district, but who prosper because they perform a service and fill an existing need.

Another reason why the farmer should be free to market his own produce is to enable him to test a favorite theory of his, that the middleman gets all the profit! A compelling reason is the provision of a market for local produce.
